FORMAL NOTE TO MEXICO FROM KELLOGG LIKELY

It Will Point Out Situations in That Country Which United States Wants Remedied.

CALLES' STATEMENT CAUSES SURPRISE

American Ambassador Has Made Representations to Mexico and Thought Statement Necessary.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 16. — While obviously surprised that President Calles of Mexico has chosen to view as an "insult" the statement issued last week by Secretary of State Kellogg warning Mexico that she must live up to her international obligations, Administration officials have declined to comment in any way upon the Mexican executive's rejoinder.

It was indicated yesterday that the statement of the Secretary of State will be followed up by a formal diplomatic note, pointing out the matters to which the United States Government takes exception. Meanwhile there will be no public debate between Washington and Mexico City.

Had President Calles issued his reply in the form of an official note our Government would have been compelled to take immediate notice of it. Since it was in the form of a statement to the press and public, President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg may ignore it entirely if they see fit to do so.

Secretary Kellogg had not seen the Calles reply until he arrived at his office yesterday following a week-end trip on the presidential yacht Mayflower. It was indicated clearly that the Coolidge administration is much more interested in what President Calles may do in the way of seeing that Mexico's obligations to foreigners are fulfilled than in what he has to say by way of reply to a statement calling the situation to the attention of the public in other countries.

Advisability of Policy Questioned.

Government officials are by no means a unit concerning the wisdom of the course pursued by Secretary Kellogg following conferences with Ambassador Sheffield, some of which were participated in by President Coolidge and Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Some disposition was shown to question the advisability of coming out with such a pointed public statement. Those holding his view feel that President Calles could not have done less than show vigorous resentment, since failure on his part to do so might lend comfort to dissatisfied elements in Mexico and assist in bringing on another revolution.

Apparently administration spokesmen take the position that the Kellogg statement said all that was necessary in the way of a public declaration and nothing is to be gained by carrying on the discussion through the press. They do not feel that the wording of the Kellogg statement justified the interpretation placed upon it by President Calles.

It was indicated that President Calles is mistaken if he seriously believes the application of the Mexican laws cannot be the subject of complaint because they were issued by Mexico in her sovereign capacity. Already they have been the subject of many formal complaints through the American Embassy in Mexico City.

To Enumerate Specific Complaints.

The forthcoming note will contain specific complaints against the application of these laws and the failure of Mexico to compensate American citizens for expropriated property.

Mexican Consul-General Says Payment of Debt Will Be Renewed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Arturo M. Elias, Mexican Consul-General in this city and half-brother of President Calles, said yesterday that the Mexican Government intends to renew payment on its external debt next year, after the establishment of a central bank of issue on Jan. 1.

The Mexican debt, which was funded according to an agreement with American bankers in June, 1922, went into default at the time Huerta rebelled against Obregon last year.

Canada to Export Power by Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 16.—Premier King last night stated in the House that the Government intends to permit the exportation of hydro-electric power to the United States for one year on a yearly basis.

FIVE MORE CITY OFFICIALS BEHIND IN PAYING TAXES

Comptroller Starts Clerk to Work Checking Them Up—Director Brod Latest to Settle to Obtain Release of Pay Check.

City officials who owe the city for back taxes will have a chance to pay up in the next two weeks, so that they can look the City Treasurer right in the eye when they draw their pay checks July 1.

Comptroller Nolte today started a clerk at the work of checking up all city officials and members of the Board of Aldermen, to see how many others owe the city for back taxes, as did the three whose pay checks were held up by the Comptroller's order yesterday.

John H. Brod Jr., Director of Public Safety, and former Alderman, today paid $29.34, his personal property taxes due for last year and for 1923. The Comptroller's order had held up his mid-June salary pending a settlement.

Two Police Judges Settle.

The two police judges, Harry P. Rosecan and Clyde C. Beck, paid their back tax obligations yesterday afternoon and thus qualified themselves, under the Comptroller's order, to receive their salaries from the City Treasurer. Rosecan owed $75.44 for six years, and this included $28.77 for which the City Collector had obtained judgments. Beck owed $116.44 for four years, and the Collector was suing him for $61.15 of the amount.

Reporters, examining the records which the Comptroller's clerk will check up later, today found several instances of unpaid tax bills of city officials. A number of these were only for the year 1924, so that the delinquency has existed only since Dec. 31 last.

Circuit Judge George E. Mix was shown to owe $5 personal taxes for 1922, $48.60 for 1923 and $23.71 for 1924. H called at the City Hall this afternoon and paid up.

Delinquents for 1924 Only.

Those found to be delinquent for 1924 taxes only were:

E. R. Kinsey, president, Board of Public Service, $17.78.

F. W. Pape, Park Commissioner, $5.92.

Cliff Haley, Commissioner Weights and Measures, $4.44.

Elisha Freeze, Workhouse Superintendent, $10.37.

Louis Wollbrinck, Deputy Assessor, $15.76.

In the examination of the records, it developed that Fred Gehner, City Assessor, last Friday paid his taxes, amounting to $34, which were then delinquent for the four years 1921-24, inclusive.

The examination also showed that Wilbur Klene, secretary of the Efficiency Board, and M. C. Leffman, city jailer, are not on the list of assessed taxpayers. Both were recently appointed to their city positions.

A city ordinance makes it obligatory on the Comptroller to withhold payment of any city employe whom he knows to be indebted to the city.

COMPTROLLER CALLS FIRE CHIEF A LIAR

"Come Outside and I'll Repeat It," Note Says, in Call on Alt.

"You're a liar," Comptroller Nolte said to Fire Chief Alt, in a heated dispute in the latter's office today. "Come outside in the hall and I'll repeat it for you."

Chief Alt did not avail himself of the invitation.

The passage between the two city officials was a flareup in general differences between Comptroller Nolte and Mayor Miller and arose out of a question of veracity resulting from discussion of the dismissal of Charles Regli, secretary of the Fire Department for 11 years.

That the situation had reached an open break became known when Comptroller Nolte came striding out of Chief Alt's office, his face flushed and his fists clenched. Regli, over whom the dispute arose, was a classified employe, supposedly immune under the Charter from dismissal for political or religious reasons.

How Situation Arose.

When Regli was discharged at the beginning of the administration of Mayor Miller, Comptroller Nolte said he was informed by Mayor Miller that Chief Alt considered Regli incompetent and inefficient. Comptroller Nolte called Chief Alt to his office for a conference on the point.

After the conference the Comptroller announced that the Fire Chief had said he considered Regli competent and efficient. Nolte told Mayor Miller of Chief Alt's statement. Today the Comptroller received a letter from the Mayor, in which, among other things, the Mayor said, Chief Alt had informed him he had not declared Regli was efficient or competent.

This statement, of course, was in direct contradiction to the Comptroller's version of his interview with Chief Alt. After reading the Mayor's letter, the Comptroller instructed his first associate, Charles Cunningham, to call Chief Alt to the Comptroller's office. Chief Alt declined, saying he was too busy, although it is customary for City Hall officials to go to the Comptroller's office on his request, as his office is second in importance to that of the Mayor.

So Nolte went to see Chief Alt in the Fire Department office.

"He denied he'd told me Regli was competent and efficient," Comptroller Nolte heatedly said to reporters, after the conference. "He had said it previously to my face, and Cunningham heard him. Why I was so pleased with his open mindedness in praising Regli even if he had been fired, that I complimented him—told him I had known the Alts for years and knew they would tell the truth. When he denied it to my face today I called him a plain liar. And I told him to come outside if he wanted to hear it repeated."

Chief Alt told reporters that he had not told Nolte that Regli was competent and efficient. "Mr. Nolte asked me if I had said Regli was incompetent and inefficient," the Chief declared. "I told him I had not. But I didn't volunteer the opinion that he was competent and efficient."

HIGHWAYMAN SEIZES UPPER DECK OF BUS

Obtains $118 From Three Passengers During Ride of Sixteen Blocks.

A lone highwayman took possession of the upper deck of a west-bound Delmar-University bus shortly before last midnight and, while the passengers and conductor below were unaware of what was going on overhead, held sway with a revolver for a distance of 16 blocks, taking a total of $118 from the pockets of three passengers who chanced to stray into his domain.

In the course of his buccaneering activities, the bus crossed Grand boulevard, where a large number of persons were still on the streets and twice during the ride, the conductor came above to collect fares. It was a method of robbery new to St. Louis.

The robber, who was in his shirt sleeves, boarded the conveyance on Washington avenue at Jefferson avenue, climbed to the upper deck and took a seat behind Harold D. Sharits and Sred Blackwell, of 4364 Delmar boulevard. There he waited until the conductor had collected his fare and gone below; then he drew a revolver.

First Commands Silence.

Thrusting the weapon between the men ahead of him he commanded:

"No noise and no excitement now, and we'll get along nicely. Hand me your money and you had better stand up to do it."

The astonished passengers did as directed, Sharits handing over $18 and Blackwell $50. They were then ordered to sit down and keep quiet while the vehicle crossed Grand, discharging several passengers and taking several on. In the meantime other machines in the street below were passing within a few feet of the holdup scene.

One of the fares picked up at Grand was Erwin Junges of 5087 Cates avenue, and he naively strolled to the upper deck to get a fresh-air ride. Behind him came the conductor, but the two holdup victims, with the robber seated behind, kept their silence.

Business Gets "Too Rotten."

The robber again waited until the coast was clear and then paid Junges a visit, taking $50 more. For several blocks, while the bus was making its way west on Washington, north on Spring avenue and west on Delmar, he sat there, guarding his three fellow passengers and watching for other prey. As they approached Sarah street he grew impatient. "Gosh, the business is rotten tonight," he complained, and rang for a stop.

When the vehicle had started again the passengers hurried below to relate their experiences to the conductor, but no policeman was found until Taylor avenue was reached. It was then too late to get on the robber's trail.

FRENCH PRISONER SAID TO BE REAL 'JEKYLL AND HYDE'

Marseilles Doctor, Accused of Murdering Friend, Declared to Have Possessed a Double Personality.

GENTLEMAN BY DAY, RUFFIAN AT NIGHT

Police Think He Had Craving for Scientific Murder —Body of Victim Found in Cupboard.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, June 16.—Marseilles police believe they have caught in Dr. Bougrat, who is accused of murdering his friend, the bank messenger Rumebe, one of the greatest criminals of modern times. They say Bougrat led a dual life and possessed a double personality.

Normally a polished, cultured gentleman, a respected member of the social circles in which he lived, he would suddenly become a degraded, unscrupulous ruffian, delighting in the company of the worst characters, with whom he drank in low cabarets in the slums of the city.

Bougrat, according to police reports, would quarrel with such companions at night and return home, his clothes torn and covered with blood. The next day he would be a courtly professional man whom his conferees would be proud to call into consultation.

The most sinister side of his personality, however, if police suspicions are confirmed, was a passion for scientific murder. A number of unexplained deaths may be laid at his door when investigations are completed. Among his papers have been found a number of newspaper clippings and other documents relating to mysterious murders and the scientific aspect of crime.

All death certificates delivered by Bougrat are being examined and testimony is being given by his patients. They say the doctor had a mania for making subcutaneous injections, and several add that the effect of such injections was to send them to sleep immediately.

One woman declared that after the doctor made an injection and she had come to her senses she found all the money gone from her handbag; she said she heard another patient complaining to the doctor in his consultation room of similar treatment.

For some time Bougrat had been in financial difficulties as a result of the extravagance of a woman for whom he divorced his wife and who has been living with him. She has been arrested.

Rumebe, whose body was found in a cupboard in the doctor's home, is now believed to be only one among Bougrat's victims.

LIFE INSURED FOR $6,500,000

William Fox, Head of Film Firm, Second Largest Policy Holder.

SWIMS FIVE MILES, SAVES 10 PERSONS FROM THE SHARKS

Hawaiian's Rescue Party, However, Arrives Too Late in Case of Two Others.

By the Associated Press.

LAHAINA, Island of Maui, T. H., June 16.—A sampan overturned in the swift current off Molokai Island. Fifteen of the 16 occupants of the craft clung to the capsized shell while their extremities dangled in the shark-infested waters.

The sixteenth member of the party, Eugene Dauvauchelle, 40 years old, made a daring swim of five miles to a lonely spot on Molokai Island, ran overland for several miles, organized a relief party, cruised to the rescue and saved ten of his companions. The shark-torn bodies of two members of the party, one a woman, were recovered. Three other persons were drowned in the accident.

Survivors of the accident arrived here today on an inter-island vessel and told how Dauvauchelle returned with his rescue party and picked them out of the water. The accident occurred on Sunday night The survivors were in the water for ten hours they said. The party was composed of Hawaiians.

EARTH IN FIELD BURNED

Land Is a Kind of Peat—Blaze Left Thick Ashes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DEXTER, Mo., June 16.—The rain that fell here Friday has extinguished the burning earth in a field two and a half miles east of Bell City, in this county. This field, which belongs to Steven B. Hunter of Cape Girardeau, had been burning for several days. The earth is land recovered from overflow and is in a slough. It is said to be a form of peat. Last week, with M. T. Minton, overseer, Hunter went to the farm and was forced to stop his car at the edge of the burning field, as the earth was burned out in many places under the surface and a car or even a person on foot would sink several inches into ashes of burnt earth. The smoke from the fire could be seen for some distance. More than 100 acres were thus burnt.

CALM MAN IN CALM COUNTRY

Ex-Sultan of Morocco Unconcerned Over Situation There.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 16.—The most unconcerned man in France over the Moroccan situation is Former Sultan Mulai Hafid, who is living quietly on the outskirts of Paris. When interviewed by a French newspaper man he exclaimed: "I no longer know anybody down there. I have no family and I never write or receive letters. I am a calm man in a calm country."

The former Sultan is dividing his time between cultivating roses, learning French and writing a biography in Arabic of Marshal Foch.

MISS POPE TELLS OF PLAN TO DIVIDE FIANCE'S ESTATE

Testifies She Would Share in McClintock Property "50-50" Under Agreement Will Contest.

HER NOTES PRAISING SHEPHERDS READ

One Letter She Sent to McClintock Said Mrs. Shepherd Was "Lovely" Concerning Engagement.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Miss Isabelle Pope will divide Billy McClintock's $1,000,000 estate, "fifty-fifty" with Iowa cousins of his mother if the will leaving it to William Darling Shepherd, his foster-father, is broken, she testified upon cross-examination in Shepherd's murder trial today.

"You know, don't you, Miss Pope, that some Iowa cousins of Mrs. McClintock contemplate a suit to break Billy's will, leaving most of his estate to Mr. Shepherd?" asked William Scott Stewart, chief of defense counsel, at the end of a cross- examination which had lasted an hour and a half.

"Yes," replied the young woman who waited with a marriage license to marry the rich youth as he died of typhoid fever, a death Shepherd is charged with causing by administering germs.

"You have made some arrangements with the cousins to get some part of the money if the will is broken, haven't you?" was the next question. "Yes," replied Miss Pope.

"Fifty-Fifty" Agreement.

"What part of it would you get —a dower interest?" pursued the defense attorney. A moment of slight confusion, while she apparently weighed the "dower," which under the Illinois law is one-third, against the larger share she would receive under the agreement, and the pretty little witness shook her head in negation.

"No, I understand it would be 'fifty-fifty,'" she replied.

Miss Pope added that $100,000 of the estate was to go to Mrs. William Shepherd, wife of the defendant, and foster mother of "Billy," in the event the pact with Iowa relatives was carried out.

Court then recessed for lunch.

Concluding her direct testimony, begun late yesterday, the young brunette reiterated that the Shepherds' attitude toward her changed when they learned of her engagement to marry Billy, and that Shepherd had talked with her on his study of typhoid and germs."

Dealing leniently and considerately with Miss Pope, Stewart was able, upon cross-examination, to bring out that she had mentioned only "typhoid" in her Coroner's inquest testimony, and that in a letter to young McClintock while he was a student at Dartmouth University, she had written that Mrs Shepherd had telephoned her an acknowledgment of the wedding announcement and "had been wonderful."

Her direct examination was concluded in 10 minutes with a further story of the Shepherds' change of attitude toward her after they learned she was affianced to Billy, and Shepherd had told her he had studied about typhoid germs.

"Did Billy ever discuss typhoid with you in the presence of Shepherd?" asked Joseph Savage, Assistant State's Attorney. "No," replied Miss Pope.

"Did Shepherd say anything in your presence to the doctors and nurses about Billy having typhoid fever?" "No," again was the reply.

Miss Pope was asked about a conversation regarding a spiritual medium Shepherd was said to have seen, but reply was broken by successful objections.

Cross-Examination Begun.

Upon cross-examination, William Scott Stewart, chief of defense counsel, began in a mild manner to impeach Miss Pope's testimony by trapping her in a reply that did not agree with testimony she had given before the Coroner's investigation of Billy's death.

"Did Billy love the Shepherds-

EARTH SLIDE IN STORM DERAILS EMIGRANT SPECIAL

Twenty-One Passengers Succumb in Hospitals to Burns Caused by Steam From Locomotive.

WOMEN, CHILDREN AMONG THE DEAD

Cars Pile Up Near Wrecked Engine in Accident on the Lackawanna Near Hackettstown, N. J.

By the Associated Press.

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J., June 16.—Twenty-nine persons are dead and 69 injured are in hospitals as the result of the wrecking early today of a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railway special emigrant train t Rockport, N. J.

Twenty-one of the ded succumbed to injuries after being taken to hospitals. Others of the injured may die.

The wreck was caused, according to railroad officers, by an earth slide in last night's storm.

George Taule, Mrs. Augusta Isman, Mrs. Antonio Bernhardt and Mrs. Barbara Sahrner of Chicago, died at Dover General Hospital. Eight dead here include Jacob Scanlon, trainman, of Easton; Fred Loomis, engineer, Scranton, Pa.; Carl Haehn, fireman, Scranton, Pa.; a girl and two unidentified women. The bodies of the engineer and fireman have not yet been removed from the wreck.

There are 17 dead at Easton, Pa. Those identified are:

Mrs. Anthony Ernst.
Mrs. Louise Troike.
Martin Heinig Sr.,
Martin Heinig Jr.,
Mary Cink,
Helen Wagner, 9 years old,
Edwin Brunner Sr.,
Edward Brunner Jr., 5,
Mrs. Wilgameier,
Philip Schuster.
Mrs. Heing, whose husband and son were killed.
Oscar Daniel, negro porter of Chicago.
Mrs. Otto Grunder.

The critically injured at Dover General Hospital include: Catherine Wilgermein, Mrs. Catherine Kerling, Carl Gantz, Hans Toske.

Many Expected to Die.

Doctors said that at least a dozen among the injured would die.

The train was filled with immigrants who had become prosperous in the corn belt and were returning for a visit to their native lands accompanied by children and grandchildren. The cars were decorated with banners reading: "See the old country again."

The train had been re-routed at Portland, Pa., over the Old Lackawanna main line that was replaced by a cut-off 12 years ago. The accident occurred in what is known as the Rockport Sag, where the rails, although on a long straightaway, dip into a hollow and then rise, at a point beyond the state game farm. Trains generally speed down the grade and take the rise on the momentum.

Those who reached the wreck first could see the body of Fred Loomis, the engineer, his hand still on the throttle together with his fireman. On the ploughed up road bed beneath the locomotive lay the twisted body of a little girl in flimsy night gown.

Mrs. Duncan Dunn, who lives about 500 yards from the scene of the crash, sounded the first alarm. She telephoned physicians, who called hospitals at Dover, Phillipsburg, Eaton and Morristown. Hundreds of rescue workers had arrived by daylight and two relief trains began receiving the injured. Scalds and burns caused the most serious injuries. Steam was issuing from the wreckage three hours after the crash.

Persons in Two Cars Escape.

Bundled in blankets, bodies of the victims were laid side by side on the grass. The faces of two were said to be scalded beyond recognition.

Passengers in the last two cars, which did not leave the rails, escaped injury.

Most of the passengers were asleep in their berths when coaches pounded upon one another into the stream and scalding water

CHINESE PLOT AGAINST FOREIGN ZONE UNEARTHED

Many Agitators of People's Party Arrested at Hankow and Arms Are Seized.

PLAN WAS TO START FIGHT AMONG GUARDS

British Premier Tells Commons Government "Is Watching Situation Most Seriously."

By the Associated Press.

HANKOW, June 16.—Many agitators of the Kuomintang, or People's party, have been arrested and a quantity of arms and ammunition seized as the result of the discovery of an unannounced plot to cause fighting at the foreign concessions, Sunday night.

The American Consul and Chinese officials conferred regarding evidence of Kuomintang connivance to bring about a clash between Chinese troops guarding the foreign concessions and the foreign guards stationed there.

The Chinese garrison commander admitted he had received information that agitators with bombs and guns intended to approach the concession lines and fire upon both the Chinese and foreign forces, intending to create the impression that each was being attacked and thus to cause the two forces guarding the concession to fight each other. Each side was warned and evaded the trap.

British Policy to Be Withheld Until Chamberlain Returns.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 16.—Premier Baldwin told the House of Commons yesterday that the British Government "is watching the situation in China most anxiously." The Cabinet is known to take a grave view of conditions there, but determination of the country's policy will not be made until after Foreign Secretary Chamberlain's return, Wednesday or Thursday.

The Government is reluctant to advocate armed intervention, particularly as because it is understood that the United States opposes such action. On the other hand, Japan, according to British information, favors more drastic action than has been taken thus far, although it is said she will do nothing except in consultation and with consent of other Powers.

Woman Tells of Shooting of British Subject by Chinese.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, June 16.—Foreign officials today expressed the opinion that the circumstances surrounding the assassination of W. W. MacKenzie, a British subject, here yesterday indicated a deliberate attempt to interrupt the progress of the negotiations with the Chinese Government and to revive waning animosities. They emphasized the necessity for the Chinese authorities to control the lawless agitators operating around the borders of the foreign settlement.

Miss Mary Duncan, also a British subject, telling of the killing of her companion, MacKenzie, said:

"We encountered seven Chinese, dressed like coolies, who stopped us near the Great Western Road extension. MacKenzie asked what they wanted and they laughed, at the same time turning flashlights upon us. MacKenzie alighted and, speaking in both English and Chinese ordered them to leave. One of the Chinese then fired and MacKenzie ran back and jumped into the car, starting the engine.

"It seemed that all the Chinese opened fire and suddenly MacKenzie lurched forward telling me he had been shot and was dying. The car had gained headway and as he fell I took the steering wheel while the Chinese were still firing."

It was discovered that Miss Duncan, who never before had driven a car, had guided the machine with the body of her escort for more than one thousand yards into the settlement, finally coming to a stop when the car pitched into a six-foot ditch. She then awakened residents of a nearby dwelling. Her wounds are trivial.

One foreign life for every Chinese life taken in the Shanghai riots was the slogan adopted by Chinese in posters distributed today.

The British Consul-General here today vigorously protested to the civil government and also to the Foreign Commissioner because of the killing of McKenzie.

Further reports received up to 11 o'clock tonight from Chung King, Kiukiang and Nanking (ports on the Yantse River) described the situation at these points as increasingly grave.

Foreigners at Nanking are considered in danger—Chinese employed by Japanese and British firms are on strike. The British Consul and his family are reported to have taken up residence at the American consulate. The principal menace at Nanking, however, lies in the possible cutting off of water and food supplies.

TOKYO, June 16.—The Japanese Government, impressed by the gravity of the Chinese antiforeign feeling, ordered four additional cruisers to sail tonight.

Police Uncover Secrets Of Chicago Liquor Ring

Six Books Taken in Drive on Gangsters Show Details of Operations — Mayor Congratulates Hero of Saturday Fight.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Six leather-bound books, which, according to the police, form a complete revelation of the operations of one of Chicago's largest liquor rings, have come into possession of authorities through the drive on the city's gangsters.

In a raid on the headquarters of the Genna Brothers, one of whom, Mike Genna, was slain in Saturday's street fight between gang members and police, the police found records of liquor receipts and shipments, names of shippers, the prices received and the prices paid for the ring's product. There were even receipts for gas bills paid, one showing that some "workers" of mash used as much as $100 worth of gas a month. The papers also disclosed, authorities said, the identity of a fourth person connected with the gangs who participated in Saturday's fight.

State's Attorney Crowe characterized the documents as enough ammunition to send to the penitentiary or drive out of the city every one of the Genna gang "from the four Gennas who are left down to their lowliest lemonade distiller or shotgun man."

Joining in the effort to purge Chicago of illicit liquor operations, Federal agents started work on a new program for checking alcohol distribution in Chicago under Government permits through which they believe the volume of business can be reduced by at least 25 per cent.

Howard Eby, head of the Immigration Bureau in Chicago, disclosed that Mike Genna had been questioned last week in connection with the activities of V. Arisello, an Italian. Arisello is said to have had seven immigrants with him when arrested in Tampa, Fla. He had smuggled them into this country by way of Cuba.

A special session of the Cook

SERGT. WILLIAM SWEENEY.

County grand jury yesterday indicted John Scalise and Albert Anselmi, members of the beer-running Genna gang, who were wounded in Saturday's fighting with the police. Each was charged with murder on two counts, one for each of the police officers slain.

Sergt. William Sweeney, who killed Mike Genna and captured two other gangsters after his companions, Sergts. Olson and Walsh, had been shot, was escorted to the city hall to receive the commendation of Mayor William E. Dever yesterday.

"Your courage, as shown by the coolness with which you performed your duty in the face of what seemed certain death, makes you an outstanding hero of the department and entitles you to the gratitude of the city," the Mayor said, and remarked the small stature of the policeman. He is about 5 feet 8 inches tall.

"Small man," the Mayor said, "but about easier and are not so easy to hit."

McClintock's Fiancee on Stand in Shepherd Trial

like a boy usually loves his father and mother?" asked Stewart.

"I don't think he did," replied Miss Pope.

"I did not ask you what, you thought," replied Stewart, and he read to her replies she had made at the Coroner's inquest. "Billy loved them and they loved Billy," read the record.

"At the time you made that answer was it true?" asked Stewart, thereby arousing Savage to objection.

She was asked about the conversations with attorneys and others after young McClintock's death. Miss Pope admitted that when Shepherd told her about Billy's irregular mode of life affecting his health, Shepherd apparently was speaking from a deep interest in the boy.

"Yes, Billy was fond of oysters," admitted Miss Pope, when Stewart questioned her about an occasion shortly before Billy became ill, when, while they were together, the youth had eaten oysters. An epidemic of typhoid attributed to oysters was noticed in Chicago at that time.

Previous Testimony Cited.

Stewart brought out that at the Coroner's inquest Miss Pope said Shepherd had mentioned a study of "typhoid" while on direct examination yesterday she had said "typhoid and germs."

Stewart sought to show that Shepherd's interest in typhoid came from the part his brother, a physician, played in the Spanish-American war typhoid epidemic.

Miss Pope identified a letter she had written to Billy McClintock on March 17, 1924, in which she said: "I went to church today with your father and mother. They were darling to me. I invited myself to tea. I enjoyed myself thoroughly."

Stewart was permitted to introduce only parts of the letter, with Judge Lynch ruling he might introduce the complete epistle upon presentation of defense evidence. In a letter Miss Pope acknowledged she wrote on Jan. 24, 1924, she said "Our engagement isn't announced yet, and not even known to our families." Miss Pope said Billy's family knew of the engagement but her family did not.

Mrs. Shepherd "Lovely" to Her.

In another letter written on April 19, 1924, Miss Pope told Billy that his mother (Mrs. Shepherd), had telephoned her an acknowledgment of her engagement to the millionaire youth, and was "lovely to me." Mrs. Shepherd invited Miss Pope for dinner, and the young woman told her fiance of her great pleasure in accepting.

Excerpts from several other letters of a similar trend written at about that time were read of Stewart and in each instance Miss Pope admitted from the witness stand that what she had said about the Shepherds' consideration for her and attentiveness to her was true.

Stewart was attacking Miss Pope's testimony that the Shepherds' attitude toward her changed when they learned of Billy's engagement to marry her.

In one letter to Billy the young woman told of a visit to the Shepherds when Shepherd had given her some "excellent wine." On another visit to a bridge party Miss Pope acted, but regretted that she had not won first prize, a beautiful handmade scarf, which she would have prized for her hope chest, she said in a letter.

Discussed Marriage.

The defense chief counsel indicated he had more than a half hundred such letters when he read from "No. 51" that Miss Pope and Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd had discussed marriage and its after life.

"No, that was not our marriage," Miss Pope said when Stewart tried to show the women had discussed a wedding involving Billy.

"Oh! it was an abstract proposition, was it?" asked Stewart, and Miss Pope agreed that was correct.

"Was it true at the time you wrote it?" and "You did enjoy your visits with the Shepherds?" were questions Stewart asked after each reading. All Miss Pope's answers were affirmative.

"What if I should send it to your mother?" was a sentence in a letter that Miss Pope could not explain. Stewart sought to bring out that the remark was occasioned by "a little difference."

Miss Pope admitted that during the period of young McClintock's attendance at Dartmouth University, she kept in close touch with the Shepherds and kept the young student informed.

"Won't it be wonderful when, instead of referring to my mother and your mother, we can say, 'Our mother!'" was read from a letter written late in 1923.

"Did you say that," asked Stewart. "Yes," replied the petite witness.

"Did you mean it?" "No," she replied, with a negative toss of the head.

Late in November, 1923, Miss Pope wrote Billy that she was considering what Christmas present to give Mrs. Shepherd.

Reading of the letters completed, Stewart asked: "As a matter of fact, when the Shepherds learned of your engagement to Billy, didn't they remark that, instead of losing a son, they would gain a daughter?" "Yes."

The witness admitted she cherished ill-feeling toward Shepherd, but said she entertained no ill feeling toward Mrs. Shepherd.

Much of Miss Pope's Story Kept Out by Objections.

Still wearing the diamond engagement ring, presentation of which, the State contends, was the signal for Shepherd to perpetrate the final deed in a 16-year plot to obtain the $1,000,000 McClintock estate, the frail, demure Miss Pope took the witness stand late yesterday.

Much of Miss Pope's array of accusations against the man who prevented her marriage to young McClintock was kept out by defense objections.

The Shepherds were "nice" to her, testified Miss Pope, until it became apparent that Billy's intentions toward her were serious.

Shepherd also told her of his study of typhoid fever, said Miss Pope, and practiced duplicity in telling Billy before he lapsed into the unconsciousness which preceded his death that the presence of both the youth and Miss Pope would be necessary at the bureau for them to obtain a marriage license.

The first change in the Shepherds attitude toward her was remarked while she was on a trip with them and Billy to Wisconsin, Miss Pope testified.

"When we were at dinner Billy said to Mrs. Shepherd: 'Get down to earth; you look like you were in China,'" testified the young woman.

"Mrs. Shepherd said: 'I wish I were in China. You promised to take us on a trip around the world with you when you became 21, but I never expect to go now.'"

Her Teaching Delayed.

Her acquaintance with the young millionaire began while they were high school students, she said, and they became sweethearts in the spring of 1921. They had an understanding, but their engagement was not announced until July 1, 1924, their marriage being delayed because of her contract as a school teacher.

After young McClintock's return from Dartmouth College that summer they were together every day, Miss Pope stated, until he became ill in midwinter. The youth was taken ill while at her home, Miss Pope testified, and she drove him home and insisted that he go to bed. That night, Shepherd drove her home, she said, and told her he had given Billy some pills.

"He said Billy was troubled with his stomach because he did not take care of himself and always was out late."

She told of the trend of the youth's illness, until five days later she was permitted to be with him 30 minutes and forced to sit six feet away. The next day she was permitted in the room only a few minutes.

Washington U. Summer Classes.

Classes at the summer session of Washington University begin tomorrow, today being the last for registration. Monday's registration showed an increase of 50 per cent over that of the corresponding period of last year, and it is expected that a great number of out-of-town students will arrive today.

WHIPPING CHARGES UNDER ADVISEMENT

C. G. Williams Testifies in His Own Behalf at Hearing Before East Side Justice.

The case of C. G. Williams, principal of the Webster School of East St. Louis, who was arrested June 2, charged with unlawfully whipping Gerald Gates, an 8-year-old pupil, was taken under advisement after a hearing in the court of Justice of the Peace Albert Lausmann today. A decision is to be given Thursday.

The whipping was administered by Williams after Gerald and his 6-year-old sister, Lorene, had attempted to cross a busy street in the middle of a block in disregard of previous cautionings against this practice. The parents of the children, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Gates, charged that Gerald bore welts on his body when he returned to his home at 1454A State street and in court today testified his legs and hips were "like a piece of beaten beefsteak." The whipping was administered with a wooden paddle, 14 inches long by two inches wide, which was an exhibit in the trial.

Although the charges of unnecessary abuse were made only as to Gerald, the parents testified that Lorene, who was also paddled for the offense, bore welts on her body, too, but that her condition was less serious than that of the boy. Both children came home crying, they said, and a little later Gerald's nose appeared to be a mass of bruises. Miss Midge Hargrave, a relative of the family, testified that when she visited the Gates home that afternoon Gerald was screaming and rolling on a bed. Another relative said the boy's body looked as if it had been burned.

Williams' defense was that the punishment inflicted was not unduly severe and that other children had withstood it without serious results. He declared he had repeatedly warned the children against the danger of crossing streets between intersections and that he administered the paddling as a last resort. He said he thought the welts may have been due to the fact that the boy's skin was unusually thin, "as it was only an ordinary paddling."

Other teachers corroborated his story, testifying he struck only about a half a dozen raps, none of which was delivered with a full swing of the arm. G. Walter Potts, superintendent of schools in East St. Louis, said he saw no welts when Gates brought the boy to his office on the afternoon of the whipping.

Williams has taught school for 20 years, 20 years of that period having been spent in East St. Louis. He has been a principal for the last 12 years.

'FED GIFT OF CANDY TO DOG, BUT KEPT $100'

Harry B. Mathews Jr. Testifies as to What Wife Thought of Christmas Present.

Mrs. Henry B. Mathews Jr. fed candy sent by her husband for a Christmas gift, to her dog, but kept $100 which accompanied it, Mathews testified before Judge Peery of the Court of Domestic Relations today in his divorce suit.

"In 1920 Mrs. Mathews was in California and I sent her $100 and a five-pound box of candy for Christmas," said Mathews, who is vice president and general manager of the Mississippi Lime & Cement Co., Alton, and resides here at the Missouri Athletic Association. "She wrote back that she fed the candy to the dog but kept the money for future use. That's what she thought of my Christmas present."

Some Letters Introduced.

Mrs. Mathews had gone to California to seek a career in the movies. Her lawyers introduced some correspondence in the case today. Mathews being under cross-examination, in an effort to show that Mathews encouraged her to stay there, in order to bolster a claim for desertion. In one purported letter introduced, dated Aug. 29, 1923, Mathews asked her how he could send an extra $100 which she wanted when he was sending her $175 a month as it was. "I'm for you," the letter read; "I want you to have a good time. Raise hell and enjoy yourself as long as your money lasts." The "your" was underscored three times.

For $50,000 she would divorce him, Mathews quoted his wife as saying at one time. He replied that he would consent to a divorce but would require the question of alimony to be settled in advance.

Visited Wife After Separation.

Mathews admitted that he had visited his wife's home on several occasions after their separation. He said that several times during their married life she had talked about killing herself with poison. Once, in 1920, during their separation, he said that Mrs. Mathews proposed they try living together again for six months, to see if they could arrive at a reconciliation, on condition that he pay a large amount of bills she owed, but he refused because he did not feel responsible for the bills.

"Mrs. Mathews often has drunk a quart of whisky in a night," her husband asserted, "but I wouldn't accuse her of drunkenness on that account, for I understood she took it for medicinal reasons, having asthma."

The plaintiff denied that he ever had struck his wife. He said his father-in-law had told him that Mrs. Mathews was not inclined to relinquish anything valuable on which she laid hand, and that once, when her father needed money, she refused to return to him some bonds he had given her.

Alton Editor Testifies.

Paul B. Cousley, editor of the Alton Evening Telegraph and Postmaster of Alton, took the stand about noon, testifying that he had known Mathews about 20 years and that Mathews had always conducted himself as a husband should. Cousley related that he tried a number of times to act as mediator between Mathews and his wife when they separated. Once, he said, Mrs. Mathews told him her father was coming to Alton and they were going to "get rid of Harry" in the lime business. She asked for big headlines about it in Cousley's paper when that happened, the editor said, but it never happened.

Mrs. Mathews, who resides in New York, was Miss Marie McKenna, a daughter of the late Edward W. McKenna, vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. Her father left her a half interest in a $500,000 trust fund, but the estate was taken into litigation last year and her income from this was stopped. Mathews divorced his wife in 1922 at Edwardsville, but the decree was set aside on her appeal.

Questioned about a "Countess Verona," an actress and musician, Mathews said that he had seen her only once, a number of years ago. It was his birthday, but his wife was on one of her frequent visits to St. Louis, he explained, so he was dining alone at an Alton hotel, when a group of men and women friends invited him to join them and introduced him to this woman, who was with their party. They were all together from 4 to 10 o'clock that night, he said, but he never saw the "Countess" again.

"JELLY ROLL" HOGAN SEEKS REHEARING IN WEAPON CASE

Gang Leader Makes Another Move in Effort to Escape 50-Day Jail Sentence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 16.—Attorneys for "Jelly-Roll" Hogan, leader of the Hogan gang, filed a motion in Supreme Court yesterday for rehearing in Division No. 2 of Hogan's appeal from a 50-day jail sentence for carrying concealed weapons. Hogan's sentence was affirmed on June 5. His recent efforts here to have Gov. Baker commute or remove the jail sentence were unsuccessful.

bursting from the wrecked locomotive.

Injured at Morristown included: Mrs. Barbara Farmer, Mrs. F. Beechneer and Mrs. Annie Myers, all of Chicago. They are suffering from severe burns but are expected to recover.

First reports made to the Board of Public Utility Commissioners by Lackawanna Railroad officers said that lightning struck one of the rails, throwing it out of place, that a landslide due to the severe storm had covered the rails and that the track also had been undermined. The road's officers gave the number of injured as 70.

The first coach was hurled half way over the top of the overturned locomotive. Men and women fought madly to work their way out of coaches. The locomotive blew up and filled the air with steam. Passengers said they were unable to see more than a foot in front of them.

August Fox, 34 years old; Henry Steffens, 55; Carl Engle, 40, and Reinhold Teschkew, 54, were among the first to make their way out of the coaches, and, although all were seriously burned, cut and bruised, they did considerable to relieve the suffering of the others.

Railroad Agent Injured.

W. L. Kenny, city passenger agent for the Lackawanna at Buffalo, was scalded on both arms, his face and one leg. He is in the Easton hospital.

The first coach piled on top of the engine, the second coach followed the first and lay cross-wise on top of the heap, and the third, a sleeper, smashed into the wreckage ahead. The wreck occurred during the height of the storm. Rain was pouring down and lightning flashed.

126 Germans on Train Reach Hoboken in Time to Sail.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—W. F. Griffith, passenger traffic manager of the Lackawanna, announced that 124 of 182 Germans in the special tourist party on the train wrecked today had arrived at Hoboken in time to board the boat on which they were to sail.

The survivors, who boarded the Republic, were taken on a special train. Although some had been badly shaken in the wreck there was no injured person in the party. The liner delayed departure one hour on the chance that some late arrivals might be added to her passenger list.

KOMAR SHORTAGE TO REACH $21,000, AUDIT DISCLOSES

FILED ON EVE OF ANNUAL ACCOUNTING

Former Collector Was Arrested in Detroit and Told of Gambling in County Resorts.

The shortage in the books of George D. Komar, defaulting city clerk and collector of Maplewood, has been found to be $21,204.79, it was learned today. This is about $11,000 more than the shortage originally anticipated when Komar filed on the eve of the annual audit.

The audit of the city's books, which is being made by Muren & Co., accountants, with offices in the Arcade building, is not yet quite complete, but it is believed the present figure will represent substantially all the shortage to be disclosed.

Komar, known to St. Louis County gamblers, to whom he lost the city's funds, as "Maplewood George, the old boy from the suburbs," was arrested in Detroit in May, after having been missing for several weeks. On his return here he told a story of frenzied gambling in various county gaming resorts to account for the money he had taken.

Extent of Shortage.

His shortages, auditors have learned, extend not only to the fiscal year ending March 31, 1925, but also to the fiscal year ending March 31, 1924. Auditors have completed their examination of the year 1924-25 and have included in their figure for that year the defalcations of the first 20 days of last April, during which Komar was still in charge of the city funds.

Examination of the books now centers about the fiscal year 1923-24, during which Komar apparently began to abstract money from the city funds for his own use. The audit of this year, now nearing completion, will give a definte figure on the amount of the shortage.

The city of Maplewood is partially protected against the shortage by two $10,000 surety bonds written for Komar. One of these bonds was written several years ago, but is believed to extend into the period of Komar's delinquency. The second bond was written later and is still in force.

The two bonds are said to overlap in their effective dates, but the amount which the city is entitled to recover on each will not be set forth until the auditors are able to make a final tabulation of the shortages and distribute them under the two surety bonds.

Substantial Loss Likely.

Because the two bonds were not effective together throughout the entire period of shortage, it is believed likely the city of Maplewood will suffer a substantial loss not covered by the bonds.

In the beginning, auditors say, Komar made his abstractions from the funds simply by failing to deposit money which he received as collector. Later on, money was taken by a systematic juggling of the road fund and the general fund accounts.

Komar, who is 53 years old and a bachelor, is under a charge of embezzlement upon which he has been released on $5000 bond. Following his return here he professed himself ready to testify against the gamblers who fleeced him of the city's funds, but when warrants were issued against John Connor and "Hutch" McGuire, charging them with operating a gaming device, Komar failed to appear as a preliminary hearing witness and the case was continued until tomorrow, before Justice of the Peace Werremeyer at Clayton.

Eighth Tichacek Son To Wed "a Good Cook"

Jerome, 31, Like His Seven Brothers, Finds Girl to Meet Family Qualifications — Only Eugene, 20, Is Left Now.

"Now," said Jerome Tichacek, "Eugene can sing 'All Alone' for a while."

He meant that Eugene Tichacek, not yet 20 years old, will be the sole remaining Tichacek who is foot-loose and fancy free. Once there were nine—now there is one. For Jerome is to be married Saturday to Miss Frances Kalinowski of 4307 South Compton avenue, who admirably meets the qualification all the brothers have demanded—she is a good cook.

The boys got that idea from their mother, the late Mrs. Louis J. Tichacek, who said in an interview in the Post-Dispatch 12 years ago that "if a girl is good enough to work in my house five years, she is good enough to marry one of my sons." Five of them married servant girls, of whom three had been trained by their mother, one married a stenographer and the seventh married a "home girl" two months ago. But the stenographer and the "home girl" were good cooks. The Tichaceks saw to that.

Miss Kalinowski is a "home girl," Jerome Tichacek said today. "She has been trained by her mother to cook for a large family. I can't go so far as to say that I've been trained to eat for a large family, but I'm not a lightweight.

"We became acquainted about a year and a half ago. I was only supposed to be doing some graining on her residence, but you know a man can't afford to keep his eyes shut. I had mine open."

He described her as a brunette, therein differing from the composite picture of their ideal which the brothers gave the Post-Dispatch several years ago, but resembling it, in being of medium height and pleasingly plump. She is his age—31.

The Bohemian wedding feasts of the Tichaceks are not so rousing as they were before the death of the late Louis J. Tichacek, who started all his sons in his graining and marbling business as they became 16. The wedding will take place at 8 a. m. at St. Pius' Church, and will be followed by a breakfast at Mission Inn. The bride and groom will reside at the Tichacek residence, 3616 South Grand boulevard.

SPIRITUALISM BROKE UP HOME, DOCTOR SAYS

Meade Eugene Hagerty Is Granted Decree on Ground of General Indignities.

Charging that spiritualism had wrecked his home and that his wife had become dominated by the influence of a clairvoyant, Dr. Meade Eugene Hagerty, a physician with offices in the Century Building, obtained a divorce in Circuit Judge Wurdeman's court at Clayton today, on the ground of general indignities.

On the stand Dr. Hagerty declared that for several months past his wife had daily consulted W. L. Gladstone, a clairvoyant, of 6124 Easton avenue, Wellston. He told of a new home he had recently built in Ferguson at a cost of $40,000.

The suit, which was filed yesterday, was not contested, Mrs. Hagerty entering her appearance. In a stipulation filed immediately after the petition yesterday, both asked that the hearing be held as soon as possible.

The couple was married in Ogden, Utah, in June, 1916, and have two children, Meade Eugene Jr., 7 years old, and Dorothy, 4.

Gladstone today denied he had ever before heard of either Dr. Hagerty or his wife.

SUIT OVER THORNBY PLACE BOARDING HOUSE BEING TRIED

An injunction suit brought by residents of Thornby place to restrain Wolf Weissman and his wife, Leah, from operating a boarding and apartment house at their home, 10 Thornby place, is being tried in Circuit Judge Miller's court. The street is a private place extending between Maple and Bartmer avenues west of Goodfellow avenue, and, according to the contention of the plaintiffs, is subject to restrictions, adopted in 1908, excluding all forms of commercial establishments. By keeping boarders and roomers, it is contended, these restrictions have been violated by the Weissmans.

The defendants, however, contend that the restrictions were long ago abandoned, pointing out that in the block there are other boarding houses, one music teacher who gives piano lessons at her home, a photographer's studio and a dealer in antique furniture.

The plaintiffs are: George C. Willson, president of the St. Louis Bar Association; Lucetta F. Lippman, William A. Somers and wife, Alex S. Steedman and wife, Fred B. Wipperman and wife, William F. Carmichael, Kathryn L. Huntington, Victor Bergenthal and wife, and Nancy E. Jurden.

DRIVER OF AUTO THAT KILLED FIREMAN HELD TO GRAND JURY

Bond of Timothy Shelton, Who Struck Frank Connell, Fixed at $10,000 by Coroner.

Timothy Shelton, 34 years old, of 5553 Powers avenue, was held for criminal carelessness, with bond set at $10,000, by a Coroner's jury today in an inquest into the death of Frank Connell, a city fireman. Connell was fatally injured by Shelton's automobile as he was running out a hose reel at a fire in the 4500 block of St. Louis avenue, at 1:10 a. m. Sunday.

Testimony was that Shelton entered the fire zone in disregard of a warning that he could not go through, and ran over several hose lines before his machine struck Connell, throwing him about 15 feet and fracturing his skull. Shelton was pronounced intoxicated at city hospital.

DRIVE FOR $125,000 FOR LEGION BEGUN

Several Gifts Toward Endowment Announced at Opening Meeting of Campaign.

The drive to raise St. Louis' quota of $125,000 toward the national American Legion Endowment Fund of $5,000,000 for the relief of war orphans and disabled veterans, was opened yesterday at a meeting of the Special Gifts Committee at the American Annex Hotel.

The speakers, including former Mayor Kiel, former Governor Gardner, and Charles M. Hay, all stressed the need of aid above that which the Government has given. Kiel, who is chairman of the local committee, said he believed the cause deserved the same support as the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives.

"In peace time there is a tendency to forget the sacrifices of war time," Hay said. "When the war was on we would have been insulted if we were told we would forget the noble sacrifices of the boys in the trenches. We should welcome this drive as an opportunity to display our loyalty and to prove that we have not forgotten. If a single child of a father who sleeps in Flanders Fields goes uncared for or neglected, then it is to the shame of the American people."

Former Governor Gardner, state chairman of the campaign, said that Kansas City had guaranteed a fund of $75,000 and St. Joseph, one of $25,000. It was announced that 14 local legion posts have subscribed their quotas. A radio message was received from Clarence H. Howard, who is on his way to Europe, subscribing $1000 to the fund. Other volunteer subscriptions announced: $1000 from Dwight F. Davis; $500 from Harry F. Knight; $500 from Alexander Forbes; $100 from Mrs. Lon O. Hocker; and $200 from the Quentin Roosevelt Post Auxiliary.

Robert Burkham, who presided, announced that the team bringing in the largest amount in subscriptions will receive a large loving cup. Daily report luncheons will be held beginning tomorrow.

EIGHT MEN INDICTED IN WHISKY PLANT CASE

Five St. Louis Italians Among Number Accused After Raid at Tenth and Wash.

Eight men, five of them St. Louis Italians, are under Federal indictment on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and to defraud the Government of internal revenue taxes, in the operation of the "bottled-in-bond" whisky plant which was discovered April 28 at Tenth and Wash streets, and which was a source of supply for motor-truck runners between St. Louis, Terre Haute and Indianapolis.

The five St. Louis defendants, who have given bonds of $2500 each, returnable Thursday, are Tony and Frank Sansone, father and son, of 1007 Wash street; Jake Cunnetto of 5049 Shaw avenue; Carmelo Cunnetto, 2001 Edwards street, and Joe Gentile, 5045 Shaw.

Minor Son of Woman Killed by Los Angeles Dentist Says He Drew It at Step-Father's Instance.

PLANS FOR 12-STORY BUILDING FOUND

Structure Was to Bear Name of Prisoner—Search for Two Former Wives Begun by Authorities.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 16.—District Attorney Asa Keyes expects to go before the grand jury today with a request for the indictment of Dr. Thomas W. Young, Los Angeles dentist, who has admitted that he killed his wife, Grace, and concealed the body under the concrete false bottom of a cistern at a foothill cabin after maintaining for nearly four months that she had voluntarily disappeared.

Young, in his confession, said he administered lethal gas and then strangled his wife because she insisted on "being boss" and slapped his face and broke his glasses in a cafe the night of the killing. The district attorney says he has evidence pointing to a carefully planned murder as the result of which Young possibly hoped ultimately to come into possession of the fortune left by Mrs. Young's former husband, Patrick Grogan, millionaire olive grower.

Three alienists retained by the district attorney to examine Young last night reported that the dentist had declined to submit to an examination.

Held by Coroner's Verdict.

Careful planning of the murder was charged to Dr. Young, dentist, in the evidence produced at the Coroner's inquest yesterday. At the conclusion of testimony, the Coroner's jury laid the death of his wife at Young's door, naming the means as "administration of lethal gas and strangulation."

Charles Riemer, district attorney's investigator, detailed the high lights of Young's confessed preparations to cover his tracks before the killing took place as follows:

The pair had had frequent quarrels, including one the night Mrs. Young disappeared, Feb. 21 last, in which she slapped her dentist husband's face, breaking his glasses.

Signed Pieces of Paper.

They drove in their car from the roadhouse, where this occurred, to his office. There he plied his wife with liquor until she became confused. In this state he induced her to write a letter and a postal card addressed to him which he had a friend mail him from the East to indicate that she was still alive after Feb. 21.

Young also had her sign blank pieces of papers for use, he said, in obtaining $100,000 in Liberty bonds, which he had given her a short while before. Then they left the office but not before he had taken a quantity of lethal gas, a cone and tube for administrating it, and some cotton wadding.

Mrs. Young fell asleep in the car, and as they drove toward the Beverly Glen cottage he placed the rubber tube in her mouth, adjusted the cone, poured in the lethal fluid and stopped her nostrils with the cotton. When the dentist pulled up his car at the cottage door his wife was dead beside him. He got a wheelbarrow and trundled her body into the house.

Later he put it into the cistern and covered it with tar paper and a layer of concrete.

$1,000,000 Will Destroyed.

There it was found Sunday night after he made his first confession following his detention by District Attorney's investigators.

Dr. A. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon, testified, contradicting numerous published reports that there was a bullet wound on Mrs. Young's body and that it was bruised and some bones broken. He said he was unable to establish the cause of death, but that the method detailed by the husband was practical.

Charles P. Grogan, 18 years old, on his retrun to the District Attorney's office from the inquest over his mother's body, erased his last evidence of faith in his stepfather when he destroyed a will bequeathing $1,000,000 to Dr. Young. The youth told the investigators that he had made the will to his stepfather at the latter's instance June 9, nearly three months after Mrs. Young met death, because he "had faith in Tom." On advice of Keyes the document was destroyed by the lad, who was told that in event of his sudden death the money would go to Young. Before it was torn and burned, copies were made by the District Attorney to be used in prosecuting the confessed slayer.

Planned 12-Story Building.

Another angle of the case presented itself in the search by the authorities for two former wives of Young. Records say he married Katherine Young in Philadelphia in 1905, and she divorced him in 1909. The name of the second wife has not been determined.

Five weeks after the disappearance of his wife Young ordered plans drawn for a 12-story office building which was to bear his name, William Mellema, an architect, told the officers. Investigators had previously found preliminary drawings for such a building in the Young home.

ROBBERS GET $536 AT CAFETERIA IN MARYLAND HOTEL

Five Men, After Eating Breakfast, Hold Up Manager and Two Other Employes in Office.

MONEY TAKEN FROM THE SAFE

Party Seen to Drive Away in Touring Car — All Were Young and Fairly Well Dressed.

"Checks," called the cashier of the Maryland Hotel cafeteria, as five men hurried past her without offering payment for their breakfasts, at 8:30 this morning.

"Checks, please," she repeated more sharply, and one of the men turned and started toward her, as if to pay for the party.

Just then a pounding was heard on he door of the manager's office, beneath the stairway leading to Ninth street, and the man turne dagain and followed his comrades upstairs and out.

Safe Robbed of $536.

A moment later the cashier was releasing the manager and two other employes of the cafeteria, whom the five men had locked in the office after having held them up and robbed the safe of $536.

The men entered the basement restaurant about 8 o'clock, and ate breakfast at a table in a secluded corner. About 25 other customers and 10 employes were in the place.

When L. C. Hunt, bookkeeper, appeared and opened the office, the men abandoned their coffee and pancakes and followed him into the room. The office is hidden from view by the stairway, and no customer or employe in the cafeteria noticed that anything unusual was happening there.

As they entered the office, the men displayed revolvers and held handkerchiefs over their faces. They ordered Hunt to open the safe, and he began the task, which required him to open an outer and an inner door.

Other Employes Enter.

F. W. Schaffner, manager, and Charles Waterman, another employe, entered the office, and each was made to stand with his face to the wall, while the robbers cursed Hunt and prodded him with their weapons to hurry him up.

When the inner door of the safe swung open, the robbers inspected the contents hurriedly, and one of them seized a box which contained $200 in change, while others gathered up bills and coins which are figured as amounting to $336. Checks, amounting to several hundred dollars, were thrown on the floor, and sealed envelopes, which contained not only checks, but cash to an amount exceeding $500, were disregarded.

The cashier's Automatic changer contained about $200. The cashier, Mrs. Alice Loeb, believes that the man who, as she first thought, meant to pay the checks of the five, would have taken the money from the changer if the pounding on the door had not caused him to flee.

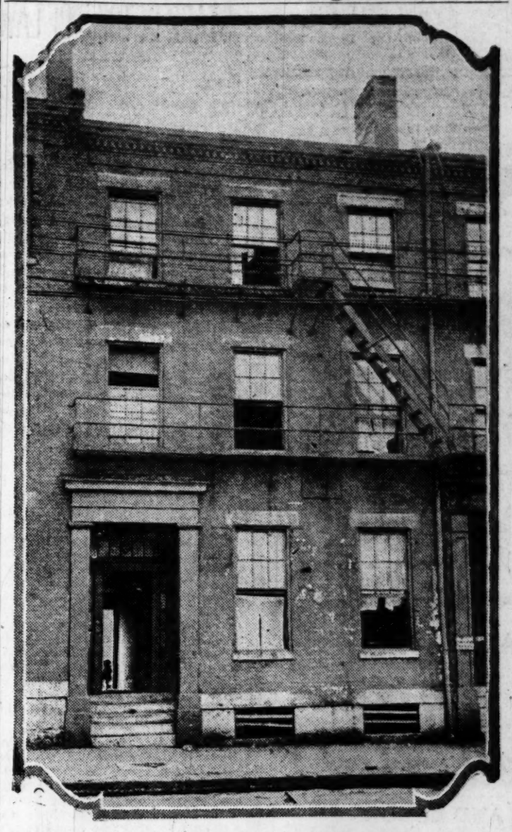

A Ford touring car stood on Pine street, just west of Ninth, during the robbery, and the five men were seen to get into it and drive away. One of the men was coatless, and all were young and fairly well dressed.

MOTION FOR PHONE RATE REHEARING FILED BY CITY

The city today filed a motion with the State Public Service Commission for a rehearing of the Bell telehone rate increase demands.

The commission recently granted the Bell an increase in rates on business phones amounting to $894,497 annually, it being the company's contention that the recent merger with the Kinloch caused an increase in operating costs resulting in a monthly loss of $75,000.

MOVE TO BUY OLD EUGENE FIELD HOME

Structure at 634 South Broadway About to Be Wrecked for Warehouse Site.

To save the old home of Eugene Field, 634 South Broadway, from being wrecked and replaced by a warehouse, two old acquaintances of the children's poet have started a movement for organization of a corporation to purchase the site and convert the antiquated structure into a memorial library and museum.

The movement is headed by John F. Storm, realty dealer, with offices in the Wainwright Building, and Albert St. Clair, coal dealer and former newspaper man, who worked with Field when the latter was a reporter in St. Louis. Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., is also one of the sponsors of the movement.

Under the present plan, shares in the company will be sold at $1 each, with a view to gaining as many subscriptions of small amounts as possible, especially among school children. Six or eight residences adjacent to the property would also be acquired by the corporation and their rentals as residence property be used to pay off the premium. The property is owned by Con P. Curran, who, it is understood, contemplates wrecking the buildings to make way for a warehouse of the Con P. Curran Printing Co. Wrecking permits already have been issued. A representative of the corporation will present the proposition to Curran when the latter returns from a river trip to the Upper Mississippi Wild Life Refuge.

NEPHEW OF OUTLAW STARR IN TOILS OF LAW

Frank Floyd Starr in Custody as Confessed Auto Thief and Holdup Man

Henry Starr, the notorious Oklahome outlaw, who was killed by a posse year ago, used to warn his nephew, Frank Floyd Starr, who was in his care, to "go straight" He would point out how the law was always on his trail, and how much happier the lad would be not to have a burden like that.

Young Frank, whose father died years ago, and whose other uncle, Bill Starr, was killed in action, too, today, at the age of 20, is a confessed automobile thief and holdup man, and an ex-convict He drove towards Springfield, Ill., with city detectives today in search of a Cadillac automobile, which he said he stole here last Monday in order to participate in a bank robbery.

Car Belongs to Acquaintance.

The Cadillac belongs to Marion Whaley of 115 North Twelfth boulevard, with whom Starr is acquainted. Once before, Whaley told the police, Starr borrowed the car without permission, but returned it. Whaley concluded Starr might have taken the machine again, so Detectives Bean and Schwartz were looking for Starr on Market street Sunday night, knowing he had frequented the neighborhood. At Eleventh street they found and arrested him.

He admitted the theft and proceeded to tell about other crimes, repeating his story afterwards to reporters. He said he had been going by the name of Joe Harris here because he feared there was a stigma to his right name resulting from his uncles' banditry.

A recent companion, known to him only as "Red," asked him a week ago Saturday to get a car for last Monday, without explaining the purpose, the youthful robber declared. "All you have to do is drive," "Red" told him. Starr took the Cadillac and he and his pal were joined in some small town in Illinois by a friend of "Reds'," whereupon "Red" said they were going to stop at a little town near Bloomington, Ill., in order to hold up a Bloomington bank last Tuesday. "You'll get your split," said "Red" to Starr.

Auto Is Smashed.

However, near Springfield, a farmer's wagon got in the way and the car was smashed so that it had to be left in a country town garage. Starr declared he could not name the town but could lead the detectives there, hence today's trip. After the accident, the prisoner related, the bank robbery plan was dropped, he returned to St. Louis, "Red" hopped a freight train for Chicago and the third man disappeared.

Other robberies admitted by Starr are being looked up in police records for verification, as he was unable a furnish full details, particularly details of location. He said he stole an Essex automobile from a West End garage and abandoned it in the street later.

NEW JERSEY PRIMARY TODAY

Senator Edge Backing Catholic for Gubernatorial Nomination.
By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., June 16.—Prohibition, religion and United States Senator Walter E. Edge, leader of the New Jersey Republican organization, figure in today's State primaries.

Edge, whose leadership is at stake, is backing former Attorney-General Thomas F. McCran of Passaic for the nomination for the governorship. McCran is a Roman Cahtolic. Opposing him are State Senator Arthur Whitney of Mendham, who has the support of the Anti-Saloon League, and former District Judge Cornelius Doremus of Ridgewood, who is running as a "bone-dry."

Whitney has charged Edge with setting up Doremus as a dummy candidate to split the drys and bring about the nomination of McCran. Doremus has said he will clean up the State as effectively as the Federal Government has cleaned up "Rum Row." McCran in his campaign has denounced the Ku Klux Klan.

Whitney has attacked McCran as the candidate of the Edge machine.

BANKS AUTO HORN, DISCONCERTS ROBBERS

Wife of Zoo Board Secretary Saves Her Jewelry, but Two Men Take Husband's Car.

George P. Vierheller, secretary of the Zoological Board of Control, and his wife, were held up and robbed of their Studebaker touring car about 11:45 o'clock last night as they were about to put the machine in a garage in the rear of their home, 6182 Waterman avenue.

The determined resistance of Mrs. Vierheller, who persisted in blowing the horn of the car after one of the robbers had pressed a revolver against her side, is believed to have prevented them from taking her jewlery and a small sum of money carried by her husband.

The Vierhellers had been to the Municipal Opera in Forest Park and later Vierheller had made his regular nightly visit to the Zoo. They had just turned into an alley in the rear of their home when they saw two figures lurking in the shadows and Vierheller remarked that it looked like a holdup. His wife promptly seized the automobile horn and set up such a racket that the men appeared to be disconcerted.

After hesitating a moment, however, they both drew revolvers, ran to the side of the car and covered the couple with their weapons, ordering Mrs. Vierheller to "cut out that honking." She kept right on honking until one of the robbers forced her out of the car with her husband. The robbers then leaped in the machine and hurriedly drove away. The license number of the car is 423-922. In the machine was Mrs. Vierheller's coat and a topcoat and stray hat, the property of Vierheller.

CHILDREN'S DONATIONS SWELL THE ICE FUND

Vaudeville Show Given by Six Little Girls Adds $7 to the Total.

Beatrice Fremder, 4916 Delmar boulevard	2 00
I. L. Schoen, 936 Pierce Building	1 00
Total	$837 33

A vaudeville show given Saturday evening, June 6, on the lawn at 3649 Humphrey street, by six little girls added $7 to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. Helene Obermoeller, 11 years old, at whose home the entertainment was presented; the four Muckerman girls, Ruth, Marie, Gertrude and Margie, and Virginia Crandell, were the workers. All six attend Loretto Academy.

Cash donations were received from the following: Fred Vitt and family, 1818 North Twenty-third street, $10; Pinkie D. McGrew, 2 Hortense place, $5; cash, $3; Mrs. A. Hoffman, 5909 Cates avenue, $2; Beatrice Fremder, 4916 Delmar boulevard, $2, and I. L. Schoen, 936 Pierce Building, $1.

Children were asked not to hesitate to give small affairs or to contribute small sums to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. At least half of the fund each year is made up of small contributions. Ten cents is all that is required to supply a tenement family with ice for one day.

PUBLIC HEARING TONIGHT ON PROPOSED ZONING ORDINANCE

City Plan Commission Seeking Suggestions for Preparing New Ordinance.

A public hearing on the proposed zoning ordinance will be held by the City Plan Commission at the Board of Public Service chambers, city hall, at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Representatives of civic, improvement and other organizations, property owners and other individuals are invited to attend.

The ordinance will be drafted under provisions of the enabling act recently passed by the Legislature. It will lay down rules for use and size of buildings. Tonight's meeting is for the purpose of eliciting suggestions for its preparation. An ordinance making the City Plan Commission the Zoning Commission is pending in the Board of Aldermen and is planned to become efective July 10, the day after the enabling act becomes effective.

LEFT WOUNDED AT HOSPITAL; DIES WITH LIPS SEALED

George R. Nelson, 28, East St. Louis, Refused to Disclose Names of His Assailants.

FOUND ON STEPS NINE DAYS AGO

Men in Auto Were Heard Quarreling and Shots Were Fired Shortly Before Machine Drove Up.

Nine days after being brought by unidentified companions to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, wounded by bullets, left on the hospital steps, George R. Nelson, 28 years old, a railroad employe, of 710 North Twenty-second street, East St. Louis, died last night, without disclosing the names of his assailants or explaining the circumstances of the shooting.

East St. Louis police, in their efforts to clear up the shooting, have learned that, in the early morning hours of June 6 an automobile of dark color was observed standing at the corner of Twenty-sixth and Belleview avenues. Its occupants were two or three men whose voices were raised in quarreling. Shots were heard.

A short time later, a dark colored automobile drove up to St. Mary's Hospital. A man was assisted from the car by two companions. A moment later the car was driven away, and hospital attendants, in investigating, found the man, wounded by five gunshots in the left side and leg, on the steps. He said his name was "Floyd," but would divulge no particulars as to his being wounded. Subsequently he gave his real name and his relatives were notified.

Nelson has been arrested a number of times, but was never convicted. The police learned that John Nelson, a brother, was fired upon the same night, and that George Nelson was seen with a known police character at about 11 p. m. Search is being made for the companion seen with George Nelson.

Following the inquest today, the body will be taken to Nashville, Ill., for burial. Nelson was employed by the Wabash Railroad. He was unmarried, the son of Robert R. Nelson. He is survived by his parents, two brothers and a sister.

$250,000,000 MERGER OF POWER CONCERNS IN SOUTH

Ten Companies in Nine States Are Affected by Consolidation of Two Corporations.

By the Associated Press.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., June 16.—Merger of the Southern Power and Light Co., controlling company of the Couch Longino properties in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, with the Electric Power and Light Corporation, was approved at a meeting here yesterday of the board of directors of the former company.

This will bring together in one group 10 electric power companies serving more than 350 communities in nine states, and effect close affiliation with other properties in 14 states, of the Electric Bond and Share Co. group, including the National Power and Light Co., which owns the Arkansas Central Power Co., supplying electric power, light and street railway service in Little Rock, and the Memphis Power and Light Co.

The properties involved in the merger are the Arkansas Light and Power, the Louisiana Power, the Louisiana Power and Light, the Pine Bluff Co., the Mississippi Power and Light, New Orleans Public Service, Inc., Texas Interurban Railway, Dallas Power and Light, Dallas Railway and the Idaho Power and Light, Nevada Power, the Utah Power and Light and Utah Light and Traction. The aggregate value of the properties involved in the merger is estimated to exceed $250,000,000.

GIRLS! USE LEMON TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

'SOLID SOUTH MUCH WETTER'

Arrests for Drunkenness on Increase, Says Moderation League.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Moderation League made public today the results of a survey in the Southern States, and prefaced its report with the statement that "The Solid South, long known for its dry tendencies, is much wetter now than its used to be under its own State laws."

The statement says: "Replies from the police departments of 34 places in the Solid South have already been received by the league. They show arrests for drunkenness in 1920, the year in which constitutional prohibition went into effect, to be 21,426. They rose steadily each year after that, and in 1924 reached 47,314, which is an increase of over 120 per cent. Given the first years of national prohibition."

DEMAND FOR RESIGNATION OF BISHOP BAST IS LIKELY

Methodist Conference in Denmark to Take Up Case of Official Accused of Mishandling Funds.

COPENHAGEN, June 16.—The Extrabladet says that at the Methodist Conference at Silkeborg, July 1, to be held under the presidency of Bishop Edgar Blake, a demand will be made for the dismissal of Bishop Bast, the American Methodist Episcopal Bishop for Scandinavia, who was detained last December because of alleged mishandling of charity funds.

The newspaper says the demand will be based upon information that became available during the recent investigations of the charges against Bishop Bast. It is also said that 70 per cent of the Methodist congregation support the demand for dismissal.

The charges brought against Bishop Bast, relating to the disposal of charity funds, resulted in his arrest. He was held without bail, but finally released pending investigation. He declared he would not resume his duties pending trial, Bishop Blake meanwhile officiating as Bishop for Scandinavia.

Bishop Bast's arrest brought protests from many prominent Methodists and the church's Board of Foreign Missions declared its confidence in his integrity.

GARY URGES THAT ROAD FUND TAX BE KEPT INTACT

Warns That Money From Levy on Gasoline Should Be Expended Only in Highway Maintenance.

A warning that the people of Missouri, who last year approved a two-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax for road maintenance, must be aroused to the necessity of keeping the fund intact, else it may be diverted for other purposes, was sounded by Theodore Gary, chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission before a full meeting of the commission at Hotel Jefferson, today.

The new tax went into effect Jan. 1, this year, and the revenue it is producing is exceeding expectations. While the last legislature authorized the expenditure of $4,000,000 from this anticipated tax, for the next biennial period, indications now are that at the end of the period there will be remaining $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 unexpended from this source. It was with special reference to the possible diversion of this fund, possibly to the building of additional roads or other purposes, that Chairman Gary sounded the warning.

Wants Fund Kept Intact.

"We should begin now," he said, "to impress the people of the State that all the revenue derived from the gasoline tax must go into maintenance. This revenue may reach $6,000,000 a year by 1930, but all of it will be needed. Not only the secondary roads but the primary types need maintenance, if only from unavoidable accidents, and always will need it. The people must be educated to the importance of keeping this fund intact."

Previously, Chief Engineer B. H. Piepmeier had said that while the roads were new the need for maintenance would not be so striking but that already gravel type roads, in instances, showed need of repairs. Subsequently, additional gravel will have to be put on every two or three years, at a cost of from $30 to $500 a mile.

The Commission, consisting of Chairman Gary and Commissioners Murray Carleton of St. Louis, C. D. Matthews of Sikeston and James R. Davis of Nevada, approved awards of contracts for the building of 58.771 miles of roads, to cost $1,554,537.71.

Contracts Awarded.

Of this amount the Pope Construction Co. of Jefferson City was awarded contracts for the building of 10.815 of primary, high type roads in Montgomery County, at $152,842.98, the State to furnish $168,364.79 in materials; and the J. R. Feigle Co. of Evansville, Ind., for the building of 5.382 miles of the same type roads in Pemiscot County, at $132,218.86, the State to furnish $52,466.09 in materials.

The following were the awards for secondary roads, high type surface: De Kalb County, 9.895 miles, Metropolitan Paving Co., St. Joseph, Mo., $116,094.84, State to furnish $100,626.43 in materials; Pemiscot County, 21.609 miles, Roy L. Williams, Charleston, Mo., $459,479.86, State to furnish $210,340.40 in materials; and Ray County, 7.312 miles, Richmond Construction Co., Richmond, Mo., $49,828.74, State to furnish $67,165.09 in materials. An award for chat pavement for 3.758 miles in Vernon County was approved as let to Graham Bros., of Leeds, Mo., at $40,072.43, State to furnish $1,077.35 in materials.

To Put Up Warning Signs.

Chief Engineer Piepmeier was authorized to put up warning signs along the completed highways in St. Louis, St. Charles, Jefferson and Franklin counties, giving the maximum speed limits as fixed by local authorities. In this connection attorneys for the commission pointed out that only municipalities could fix the speed limits, and not the county courts, as has been attempted in some counties, it was said.

Action of the case of Edwin S. Austin, suspended secretary to the commission, is expected to be taken today. He was suspended May 27, by order of Chairman Gary on account of a recent purchase of furniture for the department from Davis, the member from Nevada. Austin was present at the meeting, accompanied by former Supreme Judge Fred S. Williams, as counsel.

Girls! Try This

Hair Stops Coming Out

A 35-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" will do wonders for any woman's hair. After a few applications you cannot find a particle of dandruff or any falling hair. Hair grows long, heavy, luxuriant and full of life. Drug stores and toilet counters sell millions of bottles of "Danderine."

GIRL MINER KILLED IN CRUSH

Her Death Reveals That She Worked in Father's Shaft 6 Years.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 16.—Revelation that a girl had dug coal for six years in a pit near Bridgeville, came with the death of Anna Smoley, 23 years old, of Presto, in the Mercy Hospital yesterday.

The girl was crushed under a fall of slate Saturday. She had been working in a wagon commercial mine operated by her father, Thomas Smoley, according to morgue attaches.

According to reports, both the girl and her mother dug coal in Smoley's mine. Both dressed in men's clothes and it is said that outside of the Smoley family none knew that the "young miner" Anna was not a man.

Composers' Heads on German Stamps.

YEAR AT LEAVENWORTH FOR THIRD VIOLATION OF DRY LAW

Frank Cusamana Sentenced on Plea of Guilty—Jail Terms and Heavy Fines in Other Cases.

Heavy fines, jail sentences and, in one instance, a term in the penitentiary, were meted out to persistent violators of the liquor laws who appeared yesterday on a lengthy docket before Federal Judge Davis.

The third offense of Frank Cusamano of 714 Wash street drew a sentence of a year and a day in the penitentiary at Leavenworth on his plea of guilty. William Delabar, downtown saloonkeeper, on his plea of guilty to a third offense, was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $1000. A second offense by William F. Morie, proprietor of a bar at 6200 Page boulevard, resulted in a 30-day jail sentence and a $500 fine.

Eighteen others who appeared and entered pleas of guilty were fined amounts ranging from $100 to $1000. Nearly all of these were first offenders.

Allen R. Stansbury, who pleaded guilty of operating a still in his home, 225 Horn avenue, St. Louis County, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $1000, the minimum punishment fixed by the still and mash section of the internal revenue law, which he was charged with violating.

FOUR OVERCOME BY HEAT

Worker Falls in a Factory and Another Collapses on Street.

Four men were taken to city hospital yesterday to be treated for heat exhaustion.

William Ohlendorf, 70 years old, of 2023 Dickson street, was overcome while at work in a factory at 1101 North Second street.

Fred Runder, 75, of 3117 Hickory street, collapsed at Grand boulevard and Clark avenue.

Edward McGrath, 60, of 1610 South Tenth street, was overcome at Ninth and Market streets.

Westley Bell, 54, a negro, of 1611 Glasgow avenue, collapsed at Union and Page boulevards and was taken to City Hospital No. 2.

Beginning Wednesday—Timely and Unusually Extraordinary

Sale of Garment Bags

—Absolutely Moth, Dirt and Moisture-Proof—Each

Chemically treated, side-opening Bags which you will agree are the most convenient you have ever seen—offered at such an amazingly low price that you should secure all that you will need to protect garments, furs, blankets and such from moths, moisture and dust. All Bags are airtight, of the dependable "Sun" brand—made so that you may get at your clothes without pulling or tugging—and far too effective and reliable to be without. Every household should have several.

A side-opening with snaps which will not bend or break makes garments very accessible; a double flap makes the Bag airtight; as convenient as a cedar chest.

Three hanger hooks, all separated, prevent garments from crushing one another; an outside hook on top enables you to hang the Bag as you would any garment hanger.

All Bags are 28x57 inches in size, accommodating three coats or suits; ideal for Summer protection and for keeping clothes unmussed and fresh the whole year round.

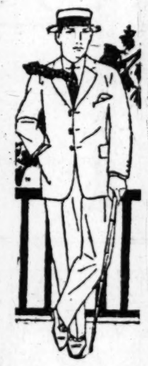

Mail and Phone Orders Promptly Filled. Get Several of These Bags—Will Prove an Excellent Investment

SENATOR REED RENEWS ATTACK ON WORLD COURT

Says American Adherence to Tribunal Would Subject Country to Will of 14 Men.

TRIBUNAL EITHER "A JOKE OR A MASTER"

Refers to John Bassett Moore as "Decoy Duck of League," and Says League Will Control.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Adherence of the United States to the World Court would make it subject to the will of 14 men "who would control the destiny of the world," declared Senator James A. Reed of Missouri in a speech here opposing his announced campaign opposing American participation in the court.

Incidentally, he assailed the Tennessee antievolution law, characterizing it as one that establishes a State religion.

He spoke yesterday at a tea of the Women's Jackson County Democratic Club.

"An international court not possessing jurisdiction of all international controversies, said the Senator, is powerless to prevent war. He continued:

"A nation able and willing to enforce its demands by arms, will not submit its vital interests to the doubtful decision of a tribunal.

"Brewing International Discord."

"A court pretending to assume jurisdiction against the will of the disputants and without power to enforce its decisions upon both parties is a juridical joke—a witch's caldron brewing international discord.

"A court possessing the inherent right to assume jurisdiction and commanding force great enough to compel obedience to its decree is master of the world. It is a judicial oligarchy from whose decisions there is no appeal—to whose mandates all must bow upon penalty of war and slaughter."

Senator Reed said that international law is "but a jumble of principles extracted by writers and theorists from what they are pleased to call the consensus of opinions of the enlightened nations."

"But," he added, "war abrogates treaties, destroys customs and defies theories.

"14 Men Will Rule."

"It follows, therefore, that the proposed International Court will make its decisions be governed by the will of the so-called Judges—that is to say, some 14 men will control the destiny of the world.

"I decline to set up any authority capable of crushing the United States.

"The League of Nations created the so-called World Court, and the creature will obey its creator.

"If the World Court shall acknowledge any rule of conduct other than its own will, it necessarily must obtain that rule from the Council of the League of Nations, of which we are not a member."

Reed declared that the Judges of the court would be molded selfishly by the interests of the nations which they represent. He stated that there is no appeal from the World Court, "but the appeal of the sword."

"Decoy Duck of League."

He spoke of John Bassett Moore, American on the court, as "filling the exalted and dignified position of decoy duck of the league."

The Senator averred that the United States had enough problems within its own borders without acquiring those of Europe also by adherence to the court.

Reed referred to the Tennessee evolution case as one of these domestic problems, declaring: "With spectacles such as this, what right have we to claim we have advanced far beyond the time when Galileo was tried for heresy because he taught that the earth moved; indeed, how far are we removed from the spirit which actuated those who scraped the flesh from the bones of Hypatia because she taught a philosophy not in accordance with the dominant creed of the time."

The Senator termed the Tennessee antievolution law "a law which in its last analysis means adoption of a state religion and the punishment of those who teach the truths of science."

Plea for Party Harmony.

Reed prefaced his address with a plea for harmony in the Democratic party. He declared there could be no harmony until Democrats agreed on policies that would command the respect of the masses.

"Have we (the Democratic party) not been the chief offender in the abandonment of a sound foreign policy?" he asked. "Is it [illegible] mainly for that reason we

SMOOT PROPOSES CONFERENCE OF TAX OFFICIALS

Declares Federal and State Representatives Should Work Out Plan for Tax Allotment.

WANTS U. S. TO LEVY ALL INCOME TAXES

Inheritance Taxes Would Be Collected Only by States—How President Could Call Conference.

Post-Dispatch Bureau
20-23 Wyatt Building

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee that will help frame the 1926 revenue act, stated today that a conference between Federal and State Tax officials should be called to make an arrangement whereby states would abandon the collection of income taxes and the Federal Government would cease to collect inheritance taxes.

Under his plan, states would leave income tax collection to the Federal Government, which would in turn leave inheritance taxes to the states.

Senator Smoot said that he did not believe the Federal Government had a moral right to collect taxes on estates, whereas states did, inasmuch as title to property, with the exception of Federal land grants, comes from State Governments.

Smoot's plan is in accordance with a suggestion made by President Coolidge before the National Tax Commission last February. The President at that time attacked Federal inheritance taxes as socialistic, stating that whatever collections were made should be made by the states.

The Utah Senator did not find fault with the present Federal estate tax law, on socialistic grounds. He declared that inheritances were "property" and for that reason should not be taxed by the Federal Government.

Tax on Property.

"There is a vast difference between inheritance and incomes," he explained. "When the Federal Treasury steps in and says to heirs 'you can't divide this property until we have had our share,' the government is levying a direct tax on property.

"I know that the United States Supreme Court has held that estate taxes are constitutional in spite of the fact that the constitution says no capitation or other direct tax shall be levied, unless in proportion to the census, but the Federal Government has no jurisdiction over property as such, while the states have. Every person I've explained my idea to, has agreed there should be a division of the taxation field.

"Besides this, we must do something to cut down the conflict of Federal and State laws, if we don't want to see the people rise up in anger. Take the instance of Arkansas. When we were framing the present law, we discovered that Arkansas had inheritance laws which took 40 per cent of a man's estate. Under some conditions, if the heirs paid the State and Federal inheritance taxes, the taxes would take more than all the assets."

"How can the separation of tax fields be brought about?" he was asked.

"Only by co-operation between the Federal and the State Governments," he replied. "Congress cannot tell the States what taxes they shayy levy. I suggest the calling of an entirely new tax conference, one that has made no pronouncement on any tax problem, so it could start with a clean slate. This question is so enormous that we could afford to do it."

President Could Call Conference.

"Who would call such a conference?"

"The President could do it, by asking the Governors to appoint commissions to work with a Federal Commission, or the State Legislatures could appoint their own commissions," Smoot replied.

"What would be done with a State like Florida, which has a constitutional amendment prohibiting the levying of State inheritance taxes?"

"That is one of the problems the commission would have to solve. The whole question, with all its ramifications and complexities, would have to be studied by the commission and settled by friendly arrangement. One idea only should be kept in view and that is that the State should abandon the collection of income taxes and the Federal Government should get out of the inheritance tax field.

MISSOURIANS IN 1923 PAID $2,000,000 LESS INCOME TAX THAN IN YEAR BEFORE Decrease Accounted for by Law Providing for Refund or Credits—State Fell Below Average for the Entire Country.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Making personal returns showing an aggregate net income of $632,443,938 for the calendar year 1923, 192,282 Missourians paid $13,588,695 into the Federal Treasury last year as income taxes, according to an announcement by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The amount of the taxes was $2,384,011 less than for the calendar year 1922, when the receipts were $15,972,706, but the number of returns and the aggregate net income increased. In 1923 there were 173,728 returns filed on an aggregate net income of $526,387,658, so the gains were 18,554 on returns and $105,056,280 on incomes.

The decrease in taxes is accounted for by the provision of the Simmons-Garner revenue act, passed last year, which required the Treasury to refund or credit 25 per cent of the tax.

How the Cities Stand.

St. Louis was responsible for 95,920 returns; Webster Groves for 2309, University City for 1073, Maplewood for 860 and St. Charles for 743.

The personal returns for the cities was as follows:

Cape Girardeau	900

State Makes Low Showing.

Missouri, being an agricultural State, fell below the average of the entire country. Using the Census Bureau calculation of population as of June 30, 1923, the Treasury announcement showed that 5.58 per cent of Missouri's population of 3,443,971 filed returns against the 6.94 per cent average of the country.

The State's average net income was $3289.15, while that of the nation was $3421.35. The average State tax was $70.67; for the nation it was $91.44. Spreading net income over the entire State gave a hypothetical net income per capita of $183.64, on which the Government could collect $3.94 in taxes. The per capita net income for the nation was $237.27, on which the taxes would be $6.34.

Another evidence of the lowness of Missouri's financial rank is the fact that the 192,282 returns represented 2.5 per cent of those filed by the nation, and the tax of $13,588,695 was only 1.93 per cent of the total tax collected throughout the country.

The following table shows the number of personal returns by Southwestern states and the amount of tax paid:

State.	No. of Returns.	Net Income.	Tax.
Kansas	86,291	216,221,969	2,191,621
Kentucky	79,091	232,912,807	4,065,930
Louisiana	67,440	229,818,318	4,863,403
Missouri	192,282	632,443,938	13,588,695
Nebraska	70,545	196,192,820	2,561,459
New Mex.	12,202	32,766,508	338,781

How It Was Divided.

Study of the Treasury Department figures gives an interesting insight of social conditions in Missouri. Of all the returns filed in the State, 117,211 were joint returns of husband and wife. These showed net incomes of $442,528,681 on which taxes of $8,797,935 were collected. Men, as heads of families, filed 10,301 returns, showing net incomes of $29,656,256, on which $411,929 in taxes were levied. Women, as heads of families, reported net incomes of $12,131,067, taxable at $532,925. Men, not heads of families, numbering 40,835, made returns on net incomes amounting to $86,472,637, taxable at $1,932,625, and 17,250 women, not heads of families, reported net incomes of $40,772,141, taxable at $1,058,066.

Wives making returns separate from those of their husbands numbered 2915. Their net income was reported at $20,883,756 for a total levy of $855,275.

Of the total amount of taxes collected, $6,720,183 was the normal tax, $6,488,220, surtax, and $380,292, tax of 12½ per cent on capital net gain.

Sources of Income.

The general net income was reported as arising from the following sources:

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO RUN MOTOR CARS

Incorporates $1,000,000 Subsidiary to Handle Passenger Service.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., June 16.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. today definitely entered the field of motor transportation on a large scale by incorporating here a $1,000,000 subsidiary, formed for this purpose. The organization, the New England Transportation Co., will transport passengers and goods by motor in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York, both in interstate and intrastate commerce.

Concerning the new company, New Haven officials said:

"This policy of the company is to be inaugurated and carried out with the intention of furnishing an adequate passenger service in connection with its rail lines; to give the public the accommodation which the demands of its patrons require; and to use that mode of transportation which is the most efficient, economical and best adapted to the performance of good service. Routes and service will be developed and the approval of the State commission will be sought."

Arthur P. Russell is president of the company and the other officers are Eugene Phillips, vice president; Charles A. Knights, treasurer; E. C. Parker, clerk; Arthur E. Clark, assistant clerk, and R. H. Palmer, auditor. There are six members of the board of directors and Frank S. Hobbs, recently superintendent of the New Haven's midland division, is manager in charge of operation.

ARGENTINA RECALLS ZANNI

Aviator Met Misfortune on Flight Around World.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, June 16.—The Minister of War today sent a cable dispatch to Maj. Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator, to return immediately to Argentina. The message followed a request of Zanni for instructions. The aviator was informed that he should consider his mission to fly around the world ended.

Zanni started from Amsterdam last September to fly around the world. After many vicissitudes he reached Tokio in October. On account of conditions Zanni postponed his attempt to fly across the Pacific until May. In taking off at Osaka, May 14, his plane fell and was damaged beyond repair.

Three New Visa Agreements.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The State Department announced today that agreements had been reached with Switzerland, Honduras and Panama, waiving the visa requirements for Americans and the nationals of those countries traveling on non-immigrant passports. The Swiss and Honduran agreements became effective June 1, and that with Panama at an earlier date.

CLARE SHERIDAN WRITES OF REFUGEES WHO STARVE WHILE NATIONS QUARREL

Into Pen on Beach of Bosporus Were Put 200 Men, Women and Children Who Have Nowhere to Go.

The following story of how Soviet Russia, Turkey and Bulgaria are starving 200 human beings to death was written for the New York World and Post-Dispatch by Mrs. Sheridan, whose articles have previously appeared in this newspaper. Mrs. Sheridan, who is in Constantinople, was a witness of the plight of these innocents, which first was reported in the Post-Dispatch by a special cable from Arthur Train, on June 3.

By CLARE SHERIDAN

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 24.—The political chaos of the world and the indifference to suffering as a result of war conditions, is vividly illustrated in Constantinople today.

An extraordinary story is that of 200 human beings who belong nowhere, whom the world rejects, who apparently have no right to their place in the sun. They are denied the possibility of work; they are not free to beg and no one feeds them.

Madness and Starvation.

I was taken to see these 200 humans, and found them in a state bordering on madness and starvation, inside their police-guarded inclosure. The Bosporus hemmed them in on one side, a stone wall, a lean-to shed and a fence of barbed wire and old petrol tins on the three other sides.

I refer to some Russian refugees who were forced on to a small boat by the Bulgarians and sent to Constantinople. The story of their arrival is common knowledge. The boat they were embarked in had already been condemned as unseaworthy before Bulgarian authorities put them on board with food for three days. It was a small fishing boat, and 20, not 200, was the maximum that it should have held.

After 26 days, becalmed and in storm alternately, they arrived. Among them were 11 women and 16 children. Their food was exhausted and they were already in a state of exhaustion. The Turkish authorities refused to let them land. They have had too many Russian refugees on their hands since 1917.

Among the 200 souls, 170 had applied to be repatriated back to Russia, the rest asked to be allowed to go to France. The Russian Soviet Consulate, however, has orders from Moscow not to repatriate anyone from Bulgaria, the reason being that Sofia and Moscow are not on speaking terms. The reactionary Government of Tzankoff has expelled the Russian Repatrition Committee that was working in the days of Stambouliski and murdered one of the soviet delegates.

Moscow's Refusal.

Neither reparation nor apology being forthcoming Moscow announces that henceforth it blockades the repatriation of Russians from Bulgaria.

This is unfortunate for Bulgaria, who, harboring some thousands, finds it increasingly difficult to feed them. Unfortunate, too, for those Russians who actually had been granted permits to return. They are like people who, having got their tickets, were waiting for the boat. Before the boat was ready a coup d'etat had installed the Tzankoff Government and the Tzankoff Government put these people into a boat and towed them out to sea.

Such is the political "impasse" that hems them in.

Among them are ten or more prisoners of the Great War, people who were made prisoners in Germany, in Rumania and in Bulgaria, and who have neither taken part in nor fled from the revolution. There are even some Bessarabian refugees, who fled when Rumania was allowed to annex that province.

Russia, Turkey and Bulgaria being closed to them, the Turkish authorities considered it was useless to keep them longer in the harbor and ordered them to leave. When they refused (their boat being unseaworthy) a Turkish tug started to tow them out into the harbor. It was then discovered that the boat was sinking; she had sprung a leak.

On a Sinking Boat.

The indescribable scene that followed, the cries, and the attempts of women to throw themselves into the sea with their children was witnessed by an English Captain in charge of an English company's salvage ship that lay at anchor near by. The Turks came aboard the British ship and asked the Captain to lend his pumps. The Captain refused. He said that he already had observed the boat in question and that nothing could make her seaworthy, that pumps would not avail unless the Turkish officials deliberately meant to give 200 people a watery grave.

Whilst this was going on an S. O. S. telephone message arrived at the office of the League of Nations—an appeal on behalf of these drowning people. Immediate intervention succeeded in allowing them to come ashore while the boat slowly sank in shallow water. The 200 were interned on the very spot where they disembarked. Providence might have been kinder, it might have been a more hospitable spot, but the patch of ground enclosing a lean-to shed was there, and there the Turkish authorities oblige them to remain.

The Captain of the salvage ship sent them of his stores, but 200 people take a lot of feeding and his stock was soon exhausted. Then Miss Mitchell, attached to the League of Nations, collected some money and fed them. She had no funds, for the League does not undertake to feed the international destitute. When her charity was exhausted, the Red Crescent was appealed to, but the Red Crescent did nothing. Official Turkey was then appealed to, but the official Turks said they had not enough money to feed their own poor.

Half Clothed People.

"Come and see them," Miss Mitchell said to me. And she was right; for one had to see them. Hearing was not enough.

They were half naked, for they had sold all that was possible in order to buy bread. A few of them had had money, perhaps £100 among the lot, but that had been confiscated, when they landed, by the Turks. There they were, caged and starving.

"We have had nothing to eat for four days," their spokesman said.

I looked at the faces around me, faces that had grown dull and expressionless from weakness. In the shed a man was devouring a crust, his eyes glittering with the luster of starvation. The others stood around and looked at him apathetically.

"Death awaits us," said one of them.

(The children, I must add, were fed, for the British Captain sent them daily some tins of milk.)

"You shall have food," I promised them, "today and tomorrow, too."

I could not promise more, for it is not in my means to feed 200 people a day.

These two days, however, gave me the time I needed. I went begging. First to the American Embassy; and the friends I begged from set to and begged also. From private individuals, from Turks, from an American yacht in harbor, from English tourists passing, we gathered sufficient to feed them for a month.

French Are Useful.

"The month has not yet run out, and after that?—

The French have been most useful. Sixty "coupons de travail" have been telegraphed from Paris and so, to that number they are starting off immediately.

France can offer work. It is worth more than charity, but still there remains the problem of the rest, whose great sin is, apparently, that they asked to be repatriated. France will not have anything to do with them, no country will accept them—people who wish to go to Russia must be Red.

In truth, there is no politics among them. They want work, they want food. They want to go back to their own country because their families are there. The Russian Consulate in Constantinople receives letters by every mail from mothers of the men who are interned, begging that they should be allowed to return to Russia.

But they are the victims of the diplomatic row between Moscow and Sofia. If they could be released by the Turks, or admitted to any other country, they would then no longer be "Russians from Bulgaria" and as "Russians from France," or from any other country they could be repatriated; but meanwhile, God's earth is only under their feet because no one dared to let them drown in the face of onlookers.

Urgent Appeals.

Discussing their fate with an unofficial Turk, I asked him: "Is it in the possibility of things that these people can die of starvation and then, being dead, the Turks will release their corpses for burial?"

He answered: "Under the present tangled form of administration it is possible."

I have heard people sentimentalize because the dogs of Constantinople were put on an island and left to starve to death. These are humans and the same method applies.

"We have seen so much suffering in the last few years," say the Turks indifferently.

Urgent appeals have been addressed to the League of Nations with no result up to the present time.

If anything is to be done it must be done quickly. Politicians and diplomats are discussing and "considering," but meanwhile, unless the ultimate decision is to concern corpses, these people must be fed at least.

Even the smallest contribution would be helpful toward this end and, if sent to Mrs. Bristol, the United States embassy, Constantinople, it will be used for their instant relief.

Unsafe Safety Zones.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HOW much longer will the Safety Council permit pedestrians and street car patrons to go unprotected at De Baliviere and Delmar avenues? At 10 a. m. Friday, June 12, in leaving a Union car at that corner, a string of autos ignored my effort to get across to the north curb (at Block's drug store). While I was standing in the so-called "safety zone," a double-deck motorbus pulled out from the line of autos and headed right into the "safety zone," in a mad effort to get ahead of the other autos. Then, in self-protection, I raised my hand and shouted, "When do I get by?" After two autos had passed me, the driver of a car in the lineup actually stopped in time to permit me to get to the curb before the motorbus rolled through the "safety zone."

Had there been a raised platform there for safety zone, similar to the ones at Union and Delmar, no driver would have attempted to crash into such a safety zone at a risk of damaging his car, not to mention hitting a woman. Had I not survived this incident, the driver no doubt would testify at the inquest that he "did not see me," just as he "didn't see" Miss Walsh, who was killed a few days ago. And as a car patron and pedestrian, I was the only one in this mixup who had the legal right of way. Now is the time to forbid any auto to pass a waiting street car.

"Stop to Think! Think to Stop!"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MY attention has been called to the cartoon by Fitzpatrick in your issue of June 7, in connection with the careful crossing campaign of the American railways.

The thought developed by Mr. Fitzpatrick is striking and should be very helpful, and I feel that both you and he are doing your part toward lessening the unnecessary loss of human life through thoughtlessness.

Again expressing my appreciation, I am

Golf Clubs in Forest Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

APROPOS Alderman Eilers' bill providing for a $10 charge for golf permit, does the great City of St. Louis intend to discriminate against the Forest Park Golf Club in favor of the Triple A Golf Club by permitting the Triple A Golf Club to operate and manage its own golf course and not allowing the Forest Park Golf Club the same privilege?

How much rent and how much taxes does the Triple A Club pay, and why should they have this special privilege and the Forest Park Golf Club not?

The success of municipal golf in this city depends upon this very issue. The situation has a tendency to create embarrassment and should be corrected by the city administration and the Park Department.

MEMBER OF FOREST PARK GOLF CLUB.

Hick Town Tactics.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ONE reason why the county and city of St. Louis should be merged: On my way to St. Clair, Mo., it was necessary to pass through Brentwood. I was driving my car very carefully and my friend from East St. Louis was following directly in back of me.

As is well known to many St. Louisans who travel the Manchester road, there is a boulevard stop at this point. I made a complete stop for about two seconds—my friend in the car behind had to make the stop also. My idea of the law is that two cars in back of the first car that stops at a boulevard "stop" can proceed with the first car without having to stop at the line a second or third time. However, a "road cop" at the intersection arrested my friend riding behind my car for not making the boulevard stop.

He was forced to turn around and go to a one-story frame shack that serves as both a court of supposedly "justice" and the fire department.

After making explanations to the court, they offered to be lenient on a plea of guilty and made a fine of $8 and costs of $8.50, a total of $16.50. After making a threat to withdraw the plea of guilty, the two men sitting at the desk (who I suppose were the Judges) went into conference and decided to waive the fine on payment of costs. This we refused to do and after more talking we accepted and paid $4 for the privilege of riding through Brentwood.

The above happened Saturday afternoon on the 6th day of June, 1925. The above are absolute facts and I have 10 witnesses to bear this out.

MOTORIST.

CALLES REPLIES.

Washington officials profess surprise at President Calles' reply to Secretary Kellogg's note. In what respect Calles' answer has offended we do not know and cannot know until Mr. Kellogg produces his facts.

As far as public information goes now Mexico is charged by our State Department with having confiscated the property of Americans and with having failed in her international obligations. Mexico was also told in the Kellogg note that she was on probation, so to speak; that her conduct was unsatisfactory to the United States, and that she would have to mend her ways if she expected to enjoy our friendship.

In his reply Calles serves notice on the United States and the world that Mexico is a sovereign nation, conscious of her obligations as a member of the family of nations, striving honorably to meet those obligations and taking some satisfaction in the fact that she has been punctiliously keeping faith with other nations. But Mexico, Calles asserts, has not adopted that course from any sense of inferiority or fear. Mexico suffers from no such complex. Mexico refuses to be placed in the position of mandated territory. Mexico will brook no interference in her domestic affairs.

Calles feels there is a contradiction between the Kellogg note's profession of friendship and the anxiety, based on a rumor, that another revolution is brewing. He acknowledges that the Government of Mexico is on trial before the world, but only in the sense that every other Government is on trial. If Mr. Kellogg implies that Mexico is on trial "in the guise of a defendant, my Government absolutely rejects with energy such imputation which in essence would only mean an insult." Finally, she is determined to maintain her sovereignty against any invasion.

The news from Washington this morning is that the administration has not been bluffed by Calles' vigorous answer and does not intend to weaken in the stand taken by the Kellogg note. We are told, too, that the Kellogg note had the approval of President Coolidge, Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; Senator Smoot and others. So it was not simply a Kellogg explosion, as might have been surmised, coming as it did like a bolt from the supposedly tranquil blue, but, on the contrary, a considered statement of our grievances, prepared by some of our best minds. Admittedly this gives a different aspect to the situation, but the public, nevertheless, is still groping in the dark as regards the facts.

The question raised at the outset in the public mind becomes more insistent as the controversy proceeds. What are the facts? What Americans have been robbed down in Mexico, either by the Mexican Government or by some bureau, acting with or without the Government's knowledge and approval? What is the extent of the robberies? We are given to understand that our State Department is loaded with information as to the wrongs done Americans in Mexico. We are told that one of the objects of the original Kellogg note was to warn American investors to keep out of Mexico. Those are grave accusations. But the American people can have no intelligent opinion regarding them until the plundering facts are set forth.

As it now stands, the United States has brought serious charges against the integrity and capacity of the Calles Government and President Calles has spiritedly denied them. In the circumstances the burden of proof is on the United States. At the very least the Government at Washington owes it to the American people to set forth the facts on which it has indicted a friendly neighboring nation that has been trying heroically through agonizing years to free its people from the curse of feudal slavery predicated on the age-old vicious system of land tenure. And without venturing a judgment as to the merits of the present case it may fairly be observed that not all the barons of Mexico are Mexicans. There are a good many Americans in Mexico with vast baronial holdings whose titles to the property may be technically clear, but are essentially inequitable. It may further be ventured that, if these are the American victims of Mexico's spoliation, if these are the persons whose wrongs have so deeply stirred our State Department, American public opinion is not likely to rush emotionally to their rescue.

Such speculation, to be sure, may be quite unfair to our State Department. But Mr. Kellogg has a remedy at hand if the facts in his possession support his charges. All he has to do is to give the American people the facts.

H. OGUMA AND HIS SON-IN-LAW.

A forthright man is H. Oguma of Tokio, as good as any that ever drew a 'ricksha. A kindly man, too, but one not without certain principles and standards of conduct. He pays his respects to the Mikado and his homage to the gods—and he likes his nip of sake, a liquor fermented from rice. H. Oguma's daughter recently looked into the slant eyes of Yoshijiro Kurokawa and therein read her destiny. They were married and the feast was spread. When the sake was passed, young Yoshijiro turned down his glass. "What!" shouted old Oguma. "You don't drink sake? Then neither can you have my daughter." The stuff, as the saying goes, was off.

For many years H. Oguma has found his sake good. In warm weather it has cooled him, in cold weather who can doubt that it has warmed him? Friendship flows out of the sake bowl, and many a chat with an old crony has waxed enthusiastic under its effect. To such a plain man of the old school as H. Oguma it would be startling and incredible news that the taking of sake in some parts of the world is a legal sin, punishable by fine and imprisonment.

Instead, old Oguma has a mellow feeling of righteousness and the profound conviction that he has saved his daughter from a sad mating.

EXIT CAILLAUX, THE MAGICIAN.

It is not too soon that Joseph Caillaux has dispelled the illusion about himself. When he became Minister of Finance, after a long period of disgrace and exile, his optimistic countrymen saw in him something of a Thurston, who could produce revenue magically from the ether. Others had failed, but Caillaux was different. Persistent echoes were heard of another time when he ably engineered French finances, and these cheered the hearts of the tax-shy French. Besides the intense dramatic quality of Caillaux's return by itself seemed to augur wonderful happenings.

In the midst of all this pleasant revery, Caillaux explodes his Beauvais speech, which, far from containing magical remedies or occult solutions, speaks of financial rejuvenation in terms as common as the dirt. France must do economic and financial penance. France must wear the hair shirt of discipline. France must cut down its mode of living. There must be scraping and saving and sacrifice. All the old thrift, once a national virtue, must be brought into play.

It will be disappointing to the French that Caillaux's "magic" is of the simplicity of copybook maxims. They will say, "We could have thought of that ourselves." Yet the very bluntness and severity of Caillaux's speech, its intrinsic common sense, will not fail of effect. He has challenged the moral fiber of the nation. He has said to the nation: "Discipline yourselves or perish." Caillaux, the magician, is gone, but the Caillaux who spoke at Beauvais is the stronger and more compelling figure.

AMEND THE MAYOR, NOT THE CHARTER.

Mayor Miller is violating both the letter and spirit of the Charter in discharging employes in the classified service for political reasons. The language of the Charter is explicit on that point. The article already quoted in these columns will bear repetition:

> No person in the classified service or seeking admission thereto shall be appointed, reduced, suspended, discharged or in any way favored or discriminated against because of his political or religious opinions or affiliations.

Chairman Hertenstein of the Efficiency Board believes that this provision of the Charter is contradicted by another provision which reads:

> The appointing officer may suspend, discharge or reduce any officer or employe under him, with or without cause, except as in this Charter is otherwise provided.

We do not see the contradiction. The qualifying clause in the section last quoted, "except as in this Charter is otherwise provided," distinctly bars the appointing officer from discharging persons in the classified service for their political opinions. That manifestly was the object of the Charter and the intent of its framers.

Mr. Hertenstein proposes that the Charter be amended to clear up what he considers a contradiction. We do not believe an amendment is necessary, nor do we believe that such amendment, however phrased, would restrain an official who has no respect for the law or for his fervid and reiterated promises, and who puts loyalty to what he calls "his principles" above the Charter.

Our Charter is all right in the point under discussion. It is Mr. Miller's disrespect for the city's organic law that needs amending.

New York's favorite dish is corned beef and cabbage, which shows that the big city is gradually becoming sophisticated.

CHIROPRACTORS IN TROUBLE.

What might be called a "drive" by the Board of Health against chiropractors is being resented by these claimants of healing powers as persecution. But if the chiropractors are possessed of a genuine art of healing and have complied with the provisions of State and city ordinances dealing with the privilege of healing, without the use of drugs, they have nothing to fear.

Drugless healing has been definitely given an honorable status by the laws of Missouri. Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes has eight sections providing for the practice of osteopathy, exempting it from the ban against those who fraudulently attempt to practice medicine and surgery. A duly certified osteopath may lawfully compete with the best physician of the older recognized schools.

Chiropractic, or chiropracty is defined as "a drugless method of treating disease chiefly by manipulation of the spinal column." It depends for success, as does osteopathy, upon relieving pressure upon nerves, or adjustment of misplaced bones or joints. Unlike the osteopaths, however, the chiropractors apparently have not convinced the legislators or the medical authorities of the genuineness of their claim to recognition as actual healers. It may be that they can succeed in doing this by following the example of the osteopaths in proving their claims. The lawmakers, the medical authorities and the public have a right to be "shown."

Harmony, to enable a city hall subordinate to keep his job, means to have been a Miller man first, last and always.

ANOTHER LEGEND BUSTED.

It certainly beats all how our fondest legends are always getting knocked into a, so to speak, cocked hat. There, for example, was that soothing legend about the phlegmatic Nordics. We Nordics all admitted that we were a calm, cool-headed, thoroughly poised, steady race. Not brilliant, perhaps, but always dependable. Then there was the equally precious one about the fiery and temperamental Celt, sitting on the world one minute and down in the depths the next. No well informed person could doubt either of these traditions and retain his or her scientific standing in the community.

Along came Eddie Held and Jimmie Manion. Eddie is a Nordic of the purest Scandinavian type. By all canons of popular ethnology his pulse beats should be slow and regular. The glacial breezes of Northern Europe should linger in the ancestral blood. In short, he should play them all in par. Jimmie's Celtic strain is equally pronounced and established. Hence, by the rules, he must be flashy and wretched by turns. He must make a birdie on one hole and hurl his clubs into the lake on the next. What happened? A sad tale, fellow Nordics. As the sport writers say, "Manion simply foured him to death." Our champion was everywhere but on the course. His drives were long and sloppy, his putting phenomenal and terrible. He broke the course record one day and his financial backers the next.

Bernard Shaw once wrote a play called "John Bull's Other Island" to prove that when the supposedly canny Anglo-Saxon encountered the presumably erratic Celt, the supposedly calculating Anglo-Saxon would usually lose his suspender buckles and gold fillings. Out at North Hills Saturday they proved it. But we have one legend in stock that remains intact, namely, that you can't beat the Irish. It may last us a while.

Dawes may be an imitator in his fight on the Senate rules, as one Senator charges, but there is nothing plagiaristic in his big noise.

WANTED, A PARK

JUST A MINUTE

KEOKUK, Ia.—Whistles blew, bells rang and friends waved from the shore when the steamer Piasa pulled out with 50 St. Louis fishermen aboard to explore and fish on the new $1,500,000 fish and game preserve which Congress has just bought on the upper Mississippi River.

Whether or not there are enough bass for so many fishermen at one time, or the party should have been half or twice as big, or we have the right flies, or our expectations exceed the possibilities of the place, or what will happen, we don't know. We do know that we are enjoying the river and the fish lies, that 50 fishermen at once are a lot, and that all other fishing trips in which we ever participated or heard of were by comparison with this one almost solitary quests.

We hope to make Wabasha, Minn., Tuesday night. The rest of the week will be devoted to seeing what the new preserve has in it. If it is as good as the Izaak Walton League, which induced Congressman Harry B. Hawes of Missouri to sponsor its bill, thinks it is, we will bring home fish enough for everybody in town and all you need do to get one is to be in line when we hit the old home wharf.

Some of the men on the boat—they are as weather-beaten a lot as went with Jason or came home from our wars—have been to Wabasha. They have fished the waters around Lake Pepin, and to the rest of us, who as a whole know much more about the headwaters of the River des Peres than we know about the headwaters of the Mississippi, what Isaac T. Cook, Joseph A. Tumulty and one or two others tell us about it is precisely what we know about it.

However, fishermen are by nature hopeful, the river is beautiful, we spent all of 30 miles above and below Hannibal in reminiscences of Mark Twain, Huckleberry Finn, Tom Sawyer and Indian Joe. We saw the cave where the treasure was found and the island where Huck deceived his bibulous dad with the bloody trail to the river. Perhaps also we saw the little edge-of-town house where Huck's attempt to disguise himself as a girl broke down when he was asked to thread a needle. Anyway, all that hangs over the river about Hannibal like the tenderest of memory mists and will always be to the traveler much more real than things that actually happened.

It seems from all we can learn that small-mouthed bass of a singularly athletic type are what we are practically after. We are told that these fish are hardest to handle at about two pounds, just as our own young are least tractable at about 18 years. The fish go in schools. If you land them as fast as they strike you get the whole school, but if you lose one you would just as well seek another school. Fish are very much as we are. They tell everything.

—One wonders on a trip such as this is why everybody wants to travel on the ocean and nobody wants to travel on the river. You see nothing at sea, but on the river it is nature's own movie—always the willows waving, the hills beckoning, the green and beautiful earth bordering water. If it is the sea air we enjoy, then the river air is cool and sweet with the smell of the fields. Someone on the boat, which is packed with the reflective thoughts of those who fish, says it is the freight loading—the everlasting struggle to load a bull or at last successfully to pen on deck a recalcitrant hog—that has sent us all seafaring and made a river steamboat something to stare at. Maybe that is correct. If so, the thing can be worked out by trying a few passenger boats that do not try to land difficult hogs and recalcitrant bulls.

It has been years since I started from St. Louis and went any great distance up the river. Everywhere from the cool heights about Chain of Rocks Park, the discriminating hilltop dweller looks off on the river. St. Louis, Alton, Clifton, Piasa, Elsah, Grafton, Clarksville, Louisiana, Hannibal, Quincy, La Grange, Canton, Keokuk—it is everywhere the same. They say the automobile did it. God made the world, and Henry Ford, running Him a close second, showed it to us.

Steamboats are slow. Whatever you see has time to soak in. You don't back up, as you do motoring, to make sure what you did see. Most of us are enjoying it in the same way that the angels enjoy occasionally walking. We have, in a way, pretty much of St. Louis aboard. Just as you do not have to drink a barrel of wine to determine its flavor, so you do not have to bring everybody to discover what kind of a city we have. The community is epitomized by bankers, publicists, lawmakers, philosophers, poets, topwits, lowbrows, ins, outs, business men—all in the sum approximating us all. Life on the Piasa indicates what life in St. Louis might be if it were our town. It is our boat.

PARAGRAPHS.

You don't get something for nothing nowadays, unless it be a couple of club bumps on the bean from somebody on the police force.

Mme. Geo, the French designer, says men should start wearing Turkish bloomers around the house. We say "Never!" First thing you know, the ladies (who appropriate everything in the line of masculinity nowadays) would be wearing 'em, and who wants to see the darlings rigged out in such roomy, heel-length outfits?

No doubt the American press would now be "astonished, but amused," were anybody to attempt to say "Howdy, shake!" to that Des Moines celebrity who greeted King George of England in that manner recently.

Probably the millennium is so slow in arriving because it is traveling via interurban trolley.

THEODORE TRILSEY.

TRAGEDY AT 90 DEG. FAHRENHEIT.

The day was hot and torrid
And the monkey in the zoo—
Though he really doesn't matter—
Was very warmish, too.
He scratched his shaggy thorax
With a long and wrinkled hand
And heartily he hankered
To be with his monkey band.
An educated anthropoid,
Who owned the cage next door,
Disturbed the sizzling atmosphere
With howl and lusty roar,
Proclaiming to the monkey world
With hearty Simian glee,
The very latest radio
From Dayton, Tennessee:
That certain scientists of note,
Or so the message ran,
Had claimed that men were monkeys
And the monkey tribe was man.
Our hero heard with horror
This wild tale of yesterday.
He gnashed his teeth in fury
And he howled the livelong day,
'Till the deep humiliation
Sent the blood up to his head
And they sent him to the rubbish heap,
A martyr, cold and dead.

HYDE APPOINTEES.

From the Carrollton (Mo.) Republican-Record.

AS the record of the Hyde appointees unfolds it reveals an orgy of crime and corruption unparalleled in the history of the State. Donald W. Ross, one of his bank examiners, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for looting the funds of the defunct Night and Day Bank of St. Louis. Frank C. Millspaugh, his finance commissioner, has been indicted in connection with the failure of the Citizen's Trust Co. of Gorin. Charles S. Prather, his pure food and drug commissioner, pleaded guilty to the charge of accepting bribes from the Griesedieck brewery, in a conspiracy to violate the Volstead act; and Heber Nations, his labor commissioner and a Jefferson City klan leader, was convicted in the Federal Court of St. Louis last week for having participated in the same corrupt conspiracy. If this thing keeps on there will soon be as many Hyde appointees in the penitentiary at the foot of the hill as there used to be in the capitol building on the hill.

A HAGUE CONFERENCE.

From the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

THE world has progressed a long way in the right direction since the first conference at The Hague. When the permanent court of international justice was formed and accepted by more than 50 nations, arbitration became outmoded and was displaced by the theory of a judicial settlement of a dispute based on established principles of equity. It may be years before this theory is in complete operation. But the acceptance of it in principle marks the dawn of a new era. Incidentally, the calling of a conference at The Hague to write down certain principles of international justice may have the effect of winning over to the indorsement of the permanent court of international justice those Senators who have been opposing it on the ground that there is no body of law for it to enforce. Then the United States would put itself in line with the other nations which have already accepted the court, and American influence for peace would become more effective.

TEXAS AT THE TOP.

From the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

THE Department of Commerce reports that Texas in 1924 furnished goods for export to the value of $737,218,937, which is approximately one-sixth of the entire country's total of $4,498,151,936. To be the greatest producing unit of the greatest producing country in the world is no small honor. Cotton was the chief maker of Texas' pre-eminence for 1924. This staple shipped abroad brought $565,270,762. Mineral oil exports followed with $66,817,[illegible], and wheat was next with $45,273,161. These figures should be sufficient to drive out of Texas minds the belief that what goes on in Europe has no concern for Americans.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

THE weary commercial gentlemen whose wits were cruelly racked under the torsion of W. S. Gilbert's literate humor and Arthur Sullivan's satirical music in "Ruddigore," will find surprising contentment in "Her Regiment," a work by Victor Herbert and William Le Baron, which is on display this week at the Municipal Theater.

The musical comedy is only a few years old, and has never before been heard in this city. It represents Mr. Herbert characteristically when he was writing for money instead of art, and is filled with easy, tuneful and frivolous melodies. The childish book, with negligible action and proletarian humors, grants to the brain cells an evening of undisturbed relaxation.

These demerits were masked somewhat by a spacious, lively and tasteful production, further vivified by plentiful dancing and singing in some cases of admirable quality. The costumes and stage sets were pleasing, and the singing of the chorus was excellent. The effect on the whole was jolly and guileless.

Peasant Girl and Trooper.

The heroine is Mlle. Estelle Durvenay, who for some reason appears in the disguise of a peasant girl, and who, to introduce a ragtime strut amid the orchards of Normandy, is compelled to have spent some years in America. The hero, Andre de Courcy, is plausibly discovered as a private trooper, known as Jollicieur, in Col. Ponstable's regiment. He has thus concealed himself from the pursuit of creditors.

The couple meets at the Pomme d'Or, Lisette Berlier's inn, through the obliging offices of a bull, which chases Estelle into Andre's arms. In the second act they meet again, under their real names, during a ball at the Chateau Belleville. One dance is enough to bring them to osculation, which is witnessed by Col. Ponstable. This martinet is considerably vexed, as he fancies himself engaged to Estelle. He fights a duel with Andre and gives him a thrust in the arm.

In the third act, Andre is about to be placed under courtmartial for escaping from the guardhouse in order to attend the ball. Col. Ponstable betrays his rival's masquerade by the amiable device of twisting his wounded arm. But the hero's friend, De Merriame, a painter, arrives with Andre's discharge from the army. The Colonel, only recently incensed to the point of manslaughter, experiences a sudden onset of magnanimity, and gives his blessing to the lovers.

Woodruff Dances.

Miss D'Arle sang with her usual beauty and skill, and gave us the spectacle, in one episode, of a Metropolitan artist writhing through a Senegambian swagger. Mr. Huff, who is a good actor and whose voice improves week by week, was cast as Andre. Mr. Young, as the Colonel's orderly, with a Napoleon complex, was broadly amusing. Mr. Woodruff gave the character of Sergt. Sabretache to perform a charming solo dance. The skill of the chorus was displayed in several ballets.

The first act set was effective and intelligent, with a rustic bridge and a windmill for its chief properties. The second act set, with its fountain and summer house, would have been equally artistic had the chateau been left to the imagination. The third set, at the barracks, was also fitting.

FUNERAL SERVICES TOMORROW FOR DR. DAVID A. DYER

Social Activities

MRS. JOSEPH L. WERNER of Hotel Chase and her small son, Louis Werner II, and Mrs. James W. Garneau, will depart Thursday for Coronado, Cal., where they will be guests at the Coronado Hotel for the sum-mer. Mr. Werner will join his family later and Miss Claire Gar-neau, sister of Mrs. Werner, will visit her. On their return in the fall, Mr. and Mrs. Werner will take possession of their new home to be built this summer on the Ladue road.

Mrs. Daniel W. Jones of 4330 McPherson avenue will depart in July after the national clay court tennis tournament, in which Mr. Jones is interested, for Newport, R. I., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Norman, at their summer estate. Mrs. Jones will have as her guest during August Miss Eppes Hawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes of Vandeventer place.

Mr. and Mrs. George Barnard Gannett of 6435 Cecil avenue, and their sons will depart July 1 for Neville's Ranch in Colorado, to spend the summer. There will be a colony of St. Louisans at that ranch this summer. Among them will be Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fun-sten, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Brown of Cabanne avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Anderson of Belt ave-nue, Mrs. Stratford Lee Morton and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Koken of Webster Groves. Mrs. Gannett re-turned last night from a brief visit to Chicago, where she accompa-nied her mother, Mrs. Pettibone, after the latter's visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Meier of Pasadena, Cal., formerly of St. Louis, have been at Hotel Chase for two weeks, and will depart Friday with their son and daugh-ter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan I. Meier, of 6457 Cecil avenue, for Harbor Point, Mich., where they have summer homes.

Cards were received this morn-ing from Mrs. Marie Reine Fusz de Penaloza of Ferguson for a tea Sunday afternoon, June 21, from 4 to 6 o'clock, in honor of Miss Helen Cox, Misses Margaret and Rose Marion Breier and Miss Jane Hays Campbell.

The wedding of Miss Gladys Schultz, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Wil-liam L. Niekamp of the Gatesworth Hotel, and Dr. Edward F. Sullivan took place at 10 o'clock this morn-ing at the Immaculate Conception Church, the Rev. Father O'Sullivan officiating. Miss Mary Rose Rob-erts attended the bride as maid of honor and John Porter was best man. The bride wore flesh-col-ored georgette over satin of the same shade. The skirt was made with godets headed with georgette roses, and the bodice was simple and sleeveless. Her hat was of cream horsehair and pink maline adorned with a single pink rose. She carried roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Roberts wore green georgette and cream lace, and a hat to match of hair braid and maline. Her flowers were pink roses. A breakfast for the bridal party and a small reception followed at the Gatesworth Hotel, after which Dr. and Mrs. Sullivan departed for Creston, Ia., to visit his parents. After a brief visit in Chicago they will make their home in Gillespie, Ill.

The bride is an alumna of Lin-denwood College, and the bride-groom was graduated a year ago from St. Louis University Medical School.

Mrs. James M. Franciscus of 10 Lenox place, who is chairman of the Women's Division of the American Legion Endowment Fund for War Orphans Campaign, announces the following women as sponsors for the Women's Com-mittee: Mmes. CHICAGO CRITICS' VIEW OF "MUSIC ROBBER"

Edward Moore of Tribune Says It Is "Best American Opera."

THE Chicago press accorded generous comment to Sun-day afternoon's production of the first act of "The Music Robber," which took place at the Central Theater in that city. Part or all of this new opera in American rhythms will be given during August at the St. Louis Municipal Theater, as a feature of Guy Golterman's season. Excerpts from the Chicago reviews follow:

Edward Moore, in the Chicago Tribune: "Your kind attention is hereby directed to Isaac Van Grove, composer. He emerged from a whole series of operatic perform-ances yesterday afternoon by far the most interesting figure of the day and one of the discoveries of the year.

"In other capacities he has been known hereabouts for a number of years. He has been pianist, coach, accompanist, conductor — pretty nearly everything in music but singer. A few weeks ago a song programmed as by an anonymous composer was introduced by Gladys Swarthout at Orchestra Hall, with Mr. Van Grove at the piano. It turned out to be an item from an opera by him, then in process of construction. The initial act had its first performance yesterday at the Central Theater. It was 'The Music Robber,' with book by Richard L. Stokes of St. Louis.

"'The Music Robber' tells of an incident in the life of Mozart. It is not yet arranged in its most effective form or order. The name ought to be changed, there are some dry recitative passages that would bear rewriting, and some shifts in the order of incidents would help.

"These are its faults. Its great merit is that Mr. Van Grove has something, as we say in the best circles. He has a gift of melody and a joyous and irreverent man-ner of presenting it. Tunes writ-ten around Mozart with jazz in their accompaniment are a long way from the customary attitude of approaching this well-known composer, but if Mozart had lived in this day he would undoubtedly have written jazz of the most ornate kind.

"Anyway, Mr. Van Grove's mu-sic was refreshing beyond all tell-ing. Admitting the need of re-vision, it is the best American op-era that has appeared yet. I be-lieve that he could write a ballet or a frankly comic opera that would make us all sit up. It is be-cause he has something to say that is not an imitation of what other people are trying to say in Eu-rope. And in spite of the obvious temptation, his quotations from Mozart were limited, brief and merely incidental.

"He conducted his opera and was presented by Mrs. Eleanor Ev-erest Freer with the David Bis-pham Memorial Medal for his achievement. The cast was semi-amateur, with especially good singing by Robert Malone as Mo-zart, Howard Preston as Count von Walsegg, and Mabel Sherwood, who was fully professional in her performance of the opera singer, Nancy."

Herman Devries in the Chicago American: "With the production of 'The Music Robber,' Isaac Van Grove adds another leaf or so to his laurel crown. We have affec-tionately followed his career since his student days under Walter Knupfer at the Chicago Musical College and watched his rise to pianist, accompanist, coach, master at his own Alma Mater, and to a conductor's post with the Chicago Civic Opera; and we witness his first successful essay as a com-poser of a new 'school' of opera.

"'The Music Robber,' written to the libretto of Richard L. Stokes, music critic of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is not 'grand' opera, nor is it musical comedy. And yet it is both while being neither. The story is an idealized narrative fol-lowing the closing events of the life of Mozart, and the alleged theft of his Requiem by one Count Johann von Walsegg of Stuppach. It in-troduces other characters of fu-ture fame—the young Beethoven, Haydn and Mozart's pupil, Franz Suessmayr—and a pageant by members of Schikaneder's opera troupe. Schikaneder was Mozart's librettist.

"This first act was composed, says Van Grove, at white heat, and was rehearsed scene by scene as it was being written. It is indeed a brilliant promise of achievement by this most popular and engaging musician.

"The orchestration is very clever, sometimes positively brilliant, often quote original and always highly colored and effectively contrasted. There is no attempt at ultra-mod-ernity, nor any effort at any par-ticular 'style.'

"Then, too, the action is never allowed to drag. If we are to give everyone his due, it may be just as well to say right here that the very expeditious, crisp, snappy, routined stage management, the excellent costuming of the mise-en-scene, and the more than capable hand-ling of effects, all the work of Les-ter Luther, lent professional finish and authority to the entire produc-tion.

"The co-stars of 'The Music Robber' were easily Howard Pres-ton and Mabel Sherwood—in other words, Mrs. Van Grove. We think we are paying Miss Sherwood quite a compliment when we say she reminded us forcibly of Mary Garden. And we do not know when we have seen her look so lovely, or act with greater aplomb and stage wisdom.

"Howard Preston was tremen-dously effective. He created a Count von Walsegg that deserves rank among stage classics. He amazed even his intimates by the power and limitless physical re-sources of his histrionic concep-tion. We believe he has learned a thing or two from Messieurs Challapine and Baklanoff, and more glory to him to study such models at their best.

"The other assisting artists were good—Andrew Cole, a capital serv-ant; Myra Platt Peach, a sympa-thetic, appealing Constanze Mo-zart; Robert Malone, effective; Watt Webber, Clayton Quast, Ste-phen Johnson (exceedingly good) and a fine ensemble."

Maurice Rosenfeld in the Chica-go Daily News: For many of those who follow the musical doings of Chicago, much interest centered in the initial production of Isaac Van Grove's opera, 'The Music Robber,' an original work dealing with the life and music of Mozart of which the first act only was given.

"Mr. Van Grove has the gift of originality. He has written a score which is distinctively American in the accents of its rhythms, in the use of the newer styles and com-bination of instrumentation, and in tonal colorings.

"He did not display any great wealth of sensuous melody or of fascinating tunes, but the general effect, while perhaps a trifle dif-fused, was good. The soli are well put up and have definite develop-ment; and the ensembles are bril-liant. The text is by Richard L. Stokes."

Karleton Hackett in the Chicago Evening Post: "The Music Robber," by Mr. Van Grove, with the com-poser conducting, followed. The story was taken from life, with some fanciful additions. Only the first act was given on this occasion.

"Mr. Van Grove has a genuine gift for music in the lighter form. There was pleasing melody with a spontaneous lilt to it, grace in the harmonic setting and vigor in the rhythms. At times the syncopa-tions suggested the America of to-day rather than the Vienna of Mo-zart, but many of them were very fetching. If he will put his mind to it, there is in him the stuff for light opera of quality.

"The libretto, by Richard L. Stokes, was effective, and made no demands on our credulity which an opera habitue would not will-ingly grant. Robert Malone as Mozart had some graceful bits to sing and did them well, though histrionically the role made rather heavy demands on him. Howard Preston sang excellently, and played his role in striking fashion. Miss Mabel Sherwood sang with pleasing tone and played her role with skill. Mr. Gielow, Mr. Web-er and Clayton Quast added their share.

"Mr. Van Grove conducted with authority. The orchestra had a great deal of color and charming spots. The ensembles went well."

S. P. System to Halt for Funeral.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—The Southern Pacific Railroad Co. an-nounced today that as a tribute to the late Julius Kruttschnitt, former head of the company, who died yesterday, all trains and all ma-chinery of the system would stop for one minute Thursday, the day of the funeral.

Smallness of Fortune Comes as Somewhat of Surprise to Gen-eral Public.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 16.—The greater part of the estate of the American painter, John Singer Sargent, who died April 15, is left to his sisters, Miss Emily Sargent and Mrs. Violet Ohmond.

The will of Sargent was probated yesterday and it was found that his estate had a gross value of only £25,703, or about $125,000. The smallness of the estate came as somewhat of a surprise to the gen-eral public. It had been expected that the greatest portrait painter of his generation would leave a large fortune but Sargent always was a generous spender and care-less about money-making. Friends say that in recent years he is known to have declined profitable commis-sions for portraits in order to de-vote himself to landscape work, which he liked the better, although it was less profitable.

AVIATION PIONEER DEAD

Vicomte de la Jarrie Sponsored Wright Brothers' Efforts.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Vicomte Gastave de la Jarrie, head of the French Government's information bureau in New York City, and one of the pioneer promoters of avia-tion in France, died yesterday after a brief illness at 62.

The Vicomte induced the Wright Brothers to go to France in 1909 and constructed the first airdrome in France at Cannes. He was asso-ciated with the King of Spain in promoting the Wright Brothers' ac-tivities at Pau, France.

Warns Middle-Aged Women to Check High Blood Pressure

Thousands of women at the changing time of life are in danger of high blood pressure. It is caused by poisonous waste matter accumulating in the system or the weakening of one or more organs. This forces the heart to do more work and raises blood pressure.

The symptoms are dizziness, shortness of breath, head pains, flushed face, nervousness or sleeplessness. High blood pressure must be treated and stopped, for everyone knows it brings on Bright's disease, apoplexy and often sudden death. It is too dangerous and quick acting to go without heeding its symptoms.

Norma is a doctor's prescription for high blood pressure that has been used with great success.

Being a purely vegetable medicine, it contains no habit-forming drugs, is harmless, and works in such a way that it drives out waste matter, lessens the duty of the over-taxed heart and reduces blood pressure swiftly and safely. Often one bottle brings great relief. Get a bottle of Norma today and free yourself of life shortening high blood pressure. CAMPAIGN TO STOP SALE OF SALACIOUS MAGAZINES

Representatives of Board of Religious Organizations Tell of Petitions to Prosecutor.

The Board of Religious Organizations held its final departmental meeting for the summer, yesterday morning, in the Victoria Building. It was announced that, although many of the members would be out of town for the next few months, the charitable and recreational work of the organization would continue.

A report for the department of protection and delinquency, made by Mrs. M. M. Hart, explained the methods used to stop the sale of salacious periodicals. Petitions of protest were signed, and these, together with newspaper editorials on the subject, and copies of the statutory injunctions against their sale, were presented to Allen Curry, United States District Attorney, and to Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer. The latter sent a letter to Chief of Police Gerk requesting police aid in a cleanup of the drug stores and magazine shops selling this type of literature.

twice have gone to disastrous defeat?"

"Undeterred by these debacles are we to repeat the blunder by declaring in favor of submitting the disputes of America to a so-cialed world court?"

A further adherence by the Democratic party to "the false doctrine of Internationalism," Senator Reed asserted, "is merely politic suicide."

Taking a fling at William Jennings Bryan, the senator said that Mr. Bryan may not be descended from a monkey but he made a monkey of the democratic party."

He declared the Carnegie Foundation to be "the most sinister influence in America because it is devoted to internationalism and the world court."

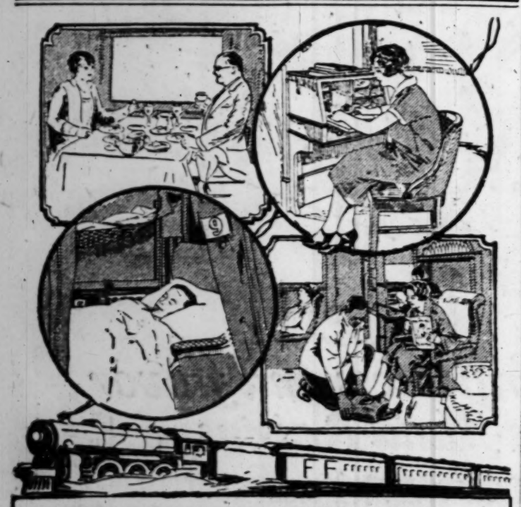

"Every pacifist and freak from Henry Ford to Edward Bok," he continued "unite their voices and their dollars to merge love of country into a philosophy of internationalism consistent with the teachings of the Third International and advanced European socialists."

Touching on prohibition Reed said:

"A man may commit the worst crime imaginable and only the State prosecute him, but let him sell a glass of beer and the whole machinery of the Federal Government is turned loose to catch him."

NEW GAMBLING RAID ON KEARNEY'S PLACE

Daniel Murphy, His Clerk, Arrested and Two Tabs Seized as Betting Evidence.

The cigar store at 407 Walnut street, owned by Thomas Kearney, widely known betting commissioner, whose recent $300 fine in Police Court under the general vagrancy statute was dismissed on appeal by Judge Gayer, in the Court of Criminal Correction, was again raided by the gambling squad, under Detective Sergeant Mulcahy, yesterday.

Kearney was not in, but the police arrested his clerk and assistant, Daniel Murphy, as on the previous occasion, whose $300 fine also was dismissed. Marked racing forms, which the police previously have gathered as evidence of bookmaking, were conspicuous by their absence, but further search disclosed two tabs, which the police said were records of racing bets. Murphy was held on a charge of "suspected of gambling."

Another Store Visited.

The gambling squad next visited the cigar store operated by Charles Deibel, better known as "Curley," at 312 Walnut street. Similarly, no marked racing forms were found, but one memorandum was held to record a bet. The proprietor was arrested.

In all 74 persons were arrested by police yesterday in their campaign to suppress bookmaking, liquor violations and other crime. Of the number 23 were held as robber suspects, three for carrying concealed weapons and 11 for alleged liquor law violations. Eight saloons, one negro policy game and six negro disorderly houses were raided.

At the grocery store of Vincenzo Enfusino, 4440 Cote Brilliante avenue, the police reported finding a half pint each of whisky and gin, hidden in a partition in the cellar. They arrested a young Italian and also a young woman in the store, and also arrested the proprietor when he appeared after the raid.

Saloons Raided.

At a saloon at 2644 Lawton boulevard, policemen reported having observed the bartender put a bottle in his pocket as they entered. The bottle, partly filled with liquor, was recovered when they arrested the bartender, Louis Marlow, of 5130 Shaw avenue. In a rear room over the door they discovered a cache which contained 24 half pints and one full pint of whisky.

A search of the saloon of Victor Frettini at 5101 Shaw avenue, disclosed, the police say, a quantity of wine behind the bar. The proprietor was arrested.

EDITOR OF SOVIET PAPER OUSTED BY PARTY LEADERS

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 16.—Communist and non-Communist circles alike were stirred today to learn of the removal by the controlling commission of the Communist Party, of one of its most conspicuous officials, M. Stekloff, editor of Izvestia, the official organ of the Soviet Government.

No reason has been officially announced for Stekloff's removal, but it is stated he has been "living beyond the Communist scale of existence and violating party discipline." These are believed to be the principal causes of his dismissal.

Not only has the once-powerful political figure been removed from his important post as editor of Izvestia, but he no longer remains a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Soviet, under whose authority Izvestia is published. It is even stated that Stekloff's expulsion from the Communist Party was seriously considered, but this will not take place if he conducts himself to the satisfaction of the Communist authorities during probation.

Sugar Irritates

Sugar is manufactured daily in the human body. In a normal person this sugar is burned into carbonic acid, but when there is an excess of sugar that is not oxidized it becomes the duty of the kidneys to remove it from the blood and excrete it.

This irritates the kidneys and causes the exeretion of large quantities of urine—which is one of the most common symptoms of Diabetes.

Aid your kidneys to get rid of any excess of sugar and retard the progress of dread Diabetes, by drinking Mountain Valley Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas. Phone us for a case today. Or ask your druggist or grocer.

Stomach Remedy A Fast Seller

DARE'S MENTHA PEPSIN

Six Thousand Bottles Sold in One New Jersey Town Last Year—Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores Declare Money Back if One Bottle Doesn't Make Any Stomach Sufferer Rejoice.

At last the way has been found to combine Pepsin with other corrective stomach agents so that it will do the most good in the shortest possible time.

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of despondent people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Judge &Dolph Drug Stores and druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

Plain Axminster Rugs

Slightly Imperfect

Among the many exceptional values to be secured in our Rug Department during our Semi-Annual Pre-Inventory Sale now in progress, are several hundred plain Axminster Rugs in taupe, gray, natural and blue with band borders.

These Rugs are slightly imperfect but the imperfections are only perceptible to the eye of an expert and in no way affect the beauty or wearing quality of the Rugs.

We are not permitted to advertise the manufacturer's name or the name of the particular Rug which you would instantly know as a product of one of the largest Rug mills in the country specializing in the weaving of Axminster Rugs of the highest grade.

Our buyer recognized this offering of Axminsters as one of the greatest Rug bargains in several years and purchased the entire allotment for the St. Louis district. No other house can duplicate these values. Prompt purchases while stocks are complete will avoid disappointment.

NOW PACKARD PRESENTS—

New ease of routine care
Greater motoring comforts

EVERY five years or so it has been Packard's privilege to make some revolutionary advance for others to follow.

Now, having exhausted present possibilities in power and smoothness, Packard presents improvements of an entirely new nature:

1—New ease of routine care

The thousands who have taken delivery of new Packard Six and Eight cars during the past few weeks have found the Motor Oil Rectifier and the Chassis Pressure Lubricator, a combination not to be had in any other motor car in all the world.

They have found that motor oil life has been multiplied several times; that they need to change oil but a few times a year. They have found that they may lubricate the chassis in less than one second of time, the pull of a plunger forcing oil to the 45 points requiring regular attention.

2—Greater motoring comforts

These new Packard owners have also found greater motoring comforts; notably an ease of steering and wider and even more luxurious enclosed bodies.

For example, the enclosed models of the Packard Eight have the widest and roomiest bodies offered on any motor car.

They have found that the utmost in beauty, distinction and comfort is now combined with an easy ability at least to double the mileage life of their Packard cars.

And Packard has found that now, more than ever, Packard should say—

Ask the man who owns one

Packard Six and Packard Eight both are furnished in ten body types. Packard Six enclosed cars have been reduced by an average of $750—and now sell at the same level as the open cars.

Meet the Foot Expert from Headquarters
Here This Week

PERHAPS your feet hurt and burn at the ball. Perhaps they pain and ache in the arch, the heel or the toes. In any case, the cause undoubtedly can be traced to the breaking down of the intricate 26-bone structures of your feet. Lowered bones are pressing against sensitive nerves. Pain is the warning signal.

Now End Your Foot Troubles

All that stands between you and absolute foot comfort is the proper support at the exact point to hold the bone structures of your feet in natural alignment. This is exactly what Wizard Arch Builders will do for you. Beneath their flexible leather soles are series of pockets at the arch, the ball and the heel. Smooth inserts of any desired thickness may be placed in the pockets, providing support at the right height and right spot required by your feet. Arch, heel, ball and toe pains instantly cease. Callouses gradually disappear. All because Wizard Arch Builders hold the bone structures of your feet in correct position.

Wizard Arch Builders—invisible when worn—are featherlight. Can be adjusted in practically any style shoe that meets with your approval. The results in comfort and graceful poise are priceless.

Free Examination—Free Advice

Visit our Foot Relief Department this week. Here you may have the expert advice and a free stockinged foot examination by a special Wizard foot representative direct from Wizard Headquarters. You merely slip off your shoes just as you do in buying a new pair. The cause of your foot trouble will be revealed. A test fitting of Wizard Arch Builders will convince you quickly that your foot troubles are unnecessary. There is no obligation—and surely no inconvenience.

TWO IDENTIFIED AS STORE ROBBERS

Both Recently Had Been Paroled From Boonville — Neither Admits Charge

Two young men, recently paroled from the Boonville State Reformatory, who were arrested at midnight Sunday, were identified today as the robbers who held up two grocery store owners within the past week.

James J. Woods, 19 years old, giving his address as 6431 Wade avenue, was identified this morning by Herman Wahlbrink, owner of a grocery store at 1342 Hebert street, as one of the two men who robbed him of $900 last Saturday. Wahlbrink had just returned from a neighborhood bank with the money to cash pay checks for factory employes in the vicinity.

Woods denied the accusation. He was arrested early Monday morning by Detectives Chamblin, Tozer, Shelton and Kilfoy, at Grand boulevard and Cass avenue, after a short chase. Just before his capture, the detectives reported, Woods threw away a loaded .44-caliber automatic.

In April, 1922, Woods was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on a charge of highway robbery. The sentence was commuted to the State Reformatory, where he served 13 months and was paroled. He is at present out on bond charged with participating in the $900 payroll holdup of the Union Ice and Fuel Co. on Feb. 9.

The other youth, Morris Lampert, 18 years old, of 6024 Maple avenue, who was arrested on suspicion at 11:30 p. m. Sunday, was identified today as the lone robber who held up Ted C. Berg at his grocery at 4622 Spalding avenue last Wednesday, taking $75. Lampert does not admit the charge. He was arrested by the same group of detectives that caught Woods, when he was seen on Sheridan avenue near Jefferson. As the officers approached him Lampert fled, and was caught before he had gone more than a few steps.

About a month ago detectives saw Lampert and a companion leave a saloon in North St. Louis. They gave chase, and just before overtaking them, Lampert's associate was seen to throw a revolver away. Warrants were applied for and refused.

Chief of Detectives Kaiser at that time notified the Juvenile Court authorities that it was his belief that Lampert was engaged in robbery. In February, 1924, Lampert was sentenced to the State Reformatory for two years on a charge of forgery. He served less than a year and was paroled last March.

DRY AGENTS SEIZE 280 GALLONS OF GRAIN ALCOHOL

Shipment Had Been Sent by Express From Philadelphia to Fictitious Address Here.

Acting on information provided by express company officials at Philadelphia, prohibition enforcement agents waited at the local office of the American Railway Express Co. for a week for persons to call for nine large crates. While they waited none seemed to want the boxes.

Tiring of their vigil the agents yesterday seized the crates, which were found to contain 260 gallons of grain alcohol in cans. They were consigned to the "Mayfield Auto Supply Co., 4415 Easton avenue." The company and address were fictitious.

This is the sixth shipment of alcohol seized by prohibition agents in the express company offices in recent months. The price of the product in its natural state is low, but when converted into "whisky" by the addition of an equal amount of water and coloring matter, it is sold for a good price to the unwary.

JUDGE GRIMM PRACTICING LAW

"I Am Done With Politics for Good," Says Mayoralty Candidate.

Judge J. Hugo Grimm, who last February resigned from the Circuit bench, upon which he was serving his third successive term, in order to make the race for the Republican nomination for Mayor, has resumed the parctice of law, with offices in the Bank of Commerce Building. Before the end of the year he expects to take his oldest son, Elmer, into partnership.

"I am done with politics for good," said Judge Grimm. "In fact, my race for the nomination for Mayor was the only real political contest I have ever engaged in, and one such contest is sufficient for any man who is in the least degree sensitive. While I have had some opposition to my renomination for Judge on the part of some overly practical politicians, who foolishly opposed me because I turned a deaf ear to them, the newspapers and the people made the fight for me, and made clear that they believed in independent Judges."

How to Relieve Neuritis

If you want genuine, lasting relief from those keen, darting pains of neuritis, you must first restore the diseased nerves to sound, healthy condition.

Neuritis is nerve inflammation brought on by colds, injuries, bruises, or septic tious diseases. It usually centers its attack about the shoulder or nape of the neck, in the forearm, thigh or leg, and sometimes in the small of the back.

For real relief, procure a bottle of Eopa Neuritis Tablets from your druggist and take two tablets before each meal. The result will amaze you. Never in your life have you used anything like these marvelous tablets.

Eopa Neuritis Tablets contain no habit-forming drugs—no narcotics. Perfectly harmless to every one. Price $1.00 at Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson, Johnson Bros. Drug Stores and all leading druggists.

OPENING OF MUNICIPAL POOLS DRAWS 10,000

Youthful Splashers Make Wild Dash as Outdoor Swimming Season Starts.

More than 10,000 persons took advantage of the opening of the municipal swimming season yesterday by a plunge in the Fairgrounds and Marquette pools. The oppressive humidity in the early afternoon brought swarms of bathers of every age and degree of aquatic ability, taxing the facilities of the two pools and the patience of attendants.

No group of thoroughbreds ever broke away from the barrier with more vim than that displayed by a youthful crowd of approximately 2000 persons, who dashed for the water when the gates were thrown at the Marquette Pool, Minnesota avenue and Osage street, in the afternoon.

The crowd, the majority of grammar school age with boys predominating, began assembling before the entrance to the dressing rooms before 11 a. m., at which time a dozen boys were already clamoring to get in, although opening time had been announced as 2 p. m. Thirty minutes before opening time a line three and four abreast stretched for more than half a block in each direction, with a perspiring group of more than a hundred pressed together on the entrance steps.

"Ladies First" Policy.

A lone policeman attempted to maintain a "ladies first" policy at the door when admission was finally permitted. Eager and alert urchins, however, managed to evade his watchfulness, gaining entrance along with the girls. In several minutes both sexes began appearing in bathing regalia under the showers in their respective inclosures facing the pool.

At 2:20 p. m. Chief Life Guard Pat Sheehan clanged the opening gong and the gates were thrown open. This was followed by a shout and a wild dash through the wading pool, immediately in front of the inclosures. A girl in a red bathing suit and cap was the first to splash the water of the main pool. She was followed a second later by several hundred of the fleetest of the thousand odd dashing figures in multi-colored bathing attire. In a moment the wide concrete walk around the pool had been drenched with the spray sent up by diving bodies, while the water was being churned by glistening arms and legs.

The rush of eager swimmers from the dressing rooms continued for more than five minutes, with the smaller wading pool attracting a proportionate number of the more juvenile bathers, many equipped with water wings and similar floating apparatus.

Gets in Deep Water.

Spray from the first splash had hardly settled back in the pool when a life guard flipped off the center diving tower and rescued a struggling 10-year-old, who had unwisely jumped in the deepest water. After shaking the water from his eyes the lad heeded an admonition from the guard and retreated to less dangerous depths.

The suits of the first group in the water had hardly been wetted when a crowd of several hundred began assembling on Minnesota avenue for admission to the second period. Moving pictures were taken of the dash for the water and the subsequent antics of the bathers.

At Fairgrounds pool the crowd is described as being as great as any that has clamored for entrance on opening day. The rush of youthful swimmers in the afternoon was followed by an equally large number of adults in the evening, the swimmers continuing the sport until 10 o'clock closing time. The three indoor municipal pools also began operating on a summer schedule yesterday, there being a good attendance at these also. The Fairgrounds and Marquette pools will remain open until Labor Day, with the summer schedule in effect at the other pools until that day.

Rhem Scores His Sixth Victory; Cards Have Won 12 of 16 Under Hornsby

Jimmy Ring, Defeated in First Game of Series, Will Try to Stop St. Louis Sluggers This Afternoon—Left-Handed Batters Pound Southpaw Mitchell.

By Herman Wecke

Having won their fourth straight game from the Phillies of Philadelphia, sending their record to 12—4, .750, since May 31, the Cardinals today will strive for another conquest over the sadly fading men of Art Fletcher. The reverse yesterday was the ninth in succession for the Phillies.

Without a doubt Jess Haines will be on the hurling hill for the Cardinals, with Jimmy Ring doing duty for Fletcher. Ring was defeated in the first clash of the series, but he is all that Fletcher has left. Since starting the battling with the Cardinals, the Phillie leader has trotted out every pitcher on the club's payroll.

In adition to having a tough time winning games, as nine losses in a row indicate, Art Fletcher is having a hard job deciding on a regular batting order. In the four tilts with the men of Hornsby, the enemy has shown a new battle front each day, but always with the same outcome—another defeat.

Many Infield Shifts.

Most of the shifting has come at shortstop and third base. The Phillies have shown three shortstops—Kimmick, Wrightstone and Sand getting a chance at the position—while Huber and Wrightstone have shown at third. Not only that, but each day has shown a complete shakeup in the way the men have been going to the plate. George Burns is about the only one who has not been shifted.

Four different batting orders in as many days is quite a bit of shifting, but the chances are Fletcher will keep at it until the club finally returns to the winning column.

Taking the fourth game of the series, Flint Rhem, the Cardinals' young right hander, added another victory to his season's list. He now has won six and lost three for a winning percentage of .667. Rhem was not as good a pitcher as on his last out against the Robins of Brooklyn, but he proved good enough to win over Clarence Mitchell, the only left handed spitball pitcher now in captivity.

Sand Hits a Home Run.

The former Clemson College star was found for nine hits. Four of this number were bunched in the fifth, when the Phillies put over two runs. One of the swats in this round was a home run by Heine Sand. After this outburst from the enemy, Rhem settled down and for the remainder of the distance was touched for only two safeties.

It was another case of the club with the heavier punch getting the victory. Hornsby's men also starred in the field, turning three double plays. Each came at a critical moment and saved Rhem a lot of trouble. One of the twoply killings came in the first when the Phillies had — on; another was completed in the fourth after the enemy had counted once, and the other came in the fifth, when Phillie runners were on first and third. Which shows clearly that not a little of Rhem's success was due to the good fielding of his mates.

The Cardinals reached Mitchell for a dozen safeties. Ten of these were bunched in the four rounds in which the locals put over tallies.

That Southpaw Theory.

The old theory that a left-handed batter cannot hit a southpaw pitcher again got a jolt. George Toporcer, a southpaw swinger, pounded out three straight doubles; Jim Bottomley, another left-hand swinger, connected for a home run, while Max Flack, the other port side hitter, connected for a single. Five of a dozen swats for the left-handed clubbers. Quite a day!

Toporcer's two-bagger in the third was the first hit off Mitchell and he counted the run that made the score 1-all. Flack's single started the three-run rally in the fourth and Toporcer's double helped along. Bottomley's four-sacker came in the fifth and was his seventh of the campaign.

So it can be seen that the three left-handed hitters — Toporcer, Flack and Bottomley—had quite a bit to do with beating the southpaw pitcher, Mitchell, by a score of 6 to 4.

Since Rogers Hornsby took charge of the Cardinals the aggregation has shown a percentage gain of 121 points, boosting its figure from .342 to .463. The club is but four games behind a .500 mark for the season and nine games behind the league leading Giants.

A ladies' day crowd of 6000 turned out to see the locals crash their way to another triumph. There were 3000 paid, in addition to 2000 women and 1000 Knot Hole Gang members.

Against the Eastern invaders the Cardinals have a .667 percentage, with eight victories out of 12 starts. The count was 1—3 against New York, 3—1 facing Brooklyn and now 4—0 with the Phillies.

Jim Bottomley was retired on two fine plays. In the first he cut one past Hawks, but Fonseca dashed over, grabbed the sphere and tossed to Mitchell for the out. Then in the seventh, Burns made a nice running catch of his line drive.

The local first sacker's play against Williams in the fifth was one of the best of the game! He made a glove hand capture of Cy's hard liner and touched first, easily doubling Fonseca, the Portuguese Thrush, who had singled.

Walter Schmidt was behind the bat for the Cardinals. He handled Rhem in fine style and made a hit that drove in a run.

Les Bell's triple in the eighth was a real smash. It went over Harper's head in center and rolled to the flag pole.

Benny Meyer, Phillie coach, annoyed the fans by yelling "It ain't gonna rain," during the early innings. When the Cardinals took the lead, a follower in the stand pointed out that it was raining—raining base hits all around Mitchell. This was in the fourth inning when the first four men to face the left-hander swatted safely.

GIARD HURLS FOR BROWNS AGAINST WALTER JOHNSON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Southpaw Girard, obtained by the Browns last winter in the Busch-Shocker trade, started in the hill for Sisler this afternoon in their game with the Senators here.

Girard's opponent was Walter Johnson.

MILLER'S HOME RUN GIVES STARS VICTORY OVER CUBANS, 8-3

Miller's home run in the seventh inning enabled the St. Louis Stars to defeat the Cuban Stars 8 to 3 in a National Negro League game at the Stars' Park yesterday.

Redus also hit a home run in the eighth inning, scoring four men.

Miller was in perfect form, allowing the visitors but seven scattered hits and fanning 10 men. The fourth game of the series will be played this afternoon.

Veterans to Attend Cardinals' Jubilee Celebration Thursday

Judge C. Orrick Bishop, Who Helped Organize National League at Meeting in St. Louis Fifty Years Ago, Will Be Present.

One of the organizers of the National League, Judge C. Orrick Bishop of St. Louis, will be present when the golden jubilee anniversary of the organization is celebrated at Sportsman's Park, Thursday afternoon. Judge Bishop is the only surviving member of the group of men who met at the old Lindell Hotel here 50 years ago to discuss plans for the formation of the circuit.

In accepting the invitation from Sam C. Breadon, president of the Cardinals to attend the luncheon to the veteran players who will be present, Judge Bishop wrote as follows:

Your letter has given me much pleasure. I shall be very glad to accept your tendered courtesies and be proud of them as well. Fifty years ago I was an ardent fan—loving a good game of baseball better than a good dinner.

Brought Bradley Here.

When the talk of having a professional club in St. Louis came to a head, I organized the corporation, became one of its officers, and was deputized to go east and get players, which I did with some good advice from the veteran Chadwick and one of the very first whom I seduced into a contract was the veteran Bradley, who in 1875 had 17 shutouts to his credit.

The idea of the league originated with Will Hulbert, president of the Chicago Club. In spite of the rivalry between Chicago and St. Louis, the officers of the two clubs were good friends and stood together. Hulbert and Al Spalding, the pitcher, came to St. Louis and requested a confidential conference with us which took place at the old Lindell Hotel and lasted some two days. At the end of this time the National League, constitution, regulations, contract forms and penalties were ready to be sprung on an unsuspecting National Association. But the scheme took with these clubs whom we admitted to the ground floor (eight of us) and the league started on its grand career.

I am the only surviving member of that Lindell Hotel caucus.

C. ORRICK BISHOP.

"Silver King" to Attend.

Among the veteran ball players, who have accepted invitations to the luncheon and later to assist in the raising of the Golden Jubilee pennant are George McGinnis, Charles Koenig (known to baseball in the 80s as "Silver King"), Mike McDermott, Bill Gleason, Jack Gleason, Theodore Breitenstein, Bill Joyce, Jack O'Connor, and George Bradley.

Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, and the only man to ever win a pennant for St. Louis, has written President Breadon that he will be present, if his health permits him to make the trip.

Athletics Score 13 in Inning to Set 1925 Record

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Connie Mack's Athletics have increased their lead in the American League race by one of the greatest uphill battles ever waged in the majors.

Eleven runs behind, they scored 13 runs and defeated Cleveland 17 to 15. Simmons' home run with two on base polished off the batting attack in the eighth and accounted for the winning runs. Six pitchers were used by the Mackmen and three by their opponents. As Washington was idle, Philadelphia became a game ahead of its nearest competitor.

The Athletics' feat in scoring 13 runs in one inning established a new record for the 1925 season. The previous mark was 11; set by the St. Louis Cardinals in a game with the Reds in April. The mark, however, is one behind the A. L. record set by the Yankees against Washington, July 6, 1920. The N. L. standard is 18, set by Chicago against Detroit, Sept. 6, 1883.

The Red Sox easily defeated the White Sox, 13 to 5, in the only other American League game.

A ninth-inning rally by the Giants fell one run short and the Pirates won their third straight victory from the National League champions, 7 to 6.

Cincinnati resumed its winning stride at the expense of the Robins, who lost, 5 to 2. The victory places the Reds within half a game of Brooklyn, now in third place. It is reported that the Robins have offered two players and $50,000 for Pitcher Jimmy Ring of the Phillies without response

The Cubs annexed their fifth straight by downing the Braves 8 to 4. Chicago registering four home runs and Boston, one. Brooks drove two four-baggers, while Gabby Hartnett poled out his fifteenth of the season.

Phillies Get Friberg.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Barney Friberg, third baseman of the Chicago Nationals, yesterday was released to the Philadelphia Nationals via the waiver route. James McAuley, Los Angeles shortstop, obtained when Maranville was injured last spring, was returned to his Pacific Coast berth.

EDDIE HELD SETS NEW AMATEUR RECORD FOR STATE TOURNEY COURSE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Eddie Held of the Algonquin Country Club, St. Louis, set a new amateur record yesterday in a practice match over the Lakewood course, in "tuning up" for the State tournament which starts tomorrow. Held turned in a 33, 36 for 69 which is two strokes under the former record held by Cameron Nesbitt of Lakewood.

Practically all of the favorites were near par in the practice rounds. James C. Ward of Kansas City, former State title holder, clipped one stroke off par, shooting a 71. James Manion St. Louis, turned in a 75, Lawsoni Watts of St. Louis negotiated the course in an even par, 72. Walter Murray of St. Louis served advance notice when he turned in 70, two strokes under par, while Richard Bockenkamp, another St. Louisan, equalled Manion's mark of 75. Frank Watts Jr. of the St. Louis Country Club was in great form, his score being 74.

Bonnie Miller, secretary of the State Golf Association, arrived yesterday and went to work on the pairings.

Jimmy Goodrich And Chilean to Fight for Title

American Outpoints Valger, Loayza Kayoes Cuban in Semifinals.

By Hype Igoe.

Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo and Stanislaus Loayza of Chile will meet for the lightweight championship of the world. Both defeated their opponents in the lightweight elimination semifinals at the Queensboro Stadium, last night.

Goodrich defeated Benny Valger on points in 12 rounds, and Loayza knocked out Cirlin Olano, champion of Cuba, in three rounds, after a thrilling battle.

Goodrich and Loayza will meet in the final at the above club at a date to be set. Oddly enough Goodrich can now call himself the American lightweight champion, whether he wins or loses the battle with the Chilian.

Goodrich won last night because of his determined rush in the last four rounds. He set a dizzy pace and kept pounding away at the body. If Benny had hoped that his speed and cleverness had scored for him up to this time, he lost ground rapidly in the last four. The judges must have seen it that way also.

Loayza Wins Bout by Kayo.

The bout between Loayza and Olano was a wonderful fray, while it lasted. It was a toss-up until the knockout came. Both were bleeding as early as the second round as a result of the hammering each took in the first furious minutes of the bout.

A right hander to the jaw staggered Olano in the third and he fell against the ropes but didn't go down. Loayza, a hard, true hitter, clipped Olano with a second right to the jaw and down went Olano for a count of nine. He got up and another right to the jaw sent the Cuban flat on his back. He rolled over on his face and was counted out. Loayza was a sensation and created a profound impression.

LACY ASKS A

Sergeant Testifie Was Forced to Pay To Appear at B

Representatives of National Featherweight Ti Jefferson Barracks and Business Men's sociation Admit They Violated R

President Verne Lacy of the Western Distr Athletic Union of America, today drafted the National Registration Committee asking for organization of National Featherweight Champ Business Men's Athletic Association and the Jeffe Association.

This action was taken following hearing last night during which representatives of Alfano and the clubs admitted to officers of association that they had violated the rules of the organization, Alfano as to the acceptance of money for boxing, the clubs as to giving cash prizes in connection with amateur contests.

Direct testimony was obtained from Sergeant Edward F. Farrell, manager of the boxing shows at Jefferson Barracks, who handles arrangements for bringing outside boxers to Barracks exhibitions.

Farrell testified that he not only had been forced to pay money to amateur boxers to appear at Barracks shows, but also that the Barracks boxers were paid money by the Business Men's A. A. and other clubs to appear at their shows. He mentioned the names of Sergeant Rothermel, Mike Clayton and Tom Smith as three that he knew had received money.

Gus Budde, of the St. Louis Boxing Club, who helps Tommy Gammell in the handling of Billie Reith and other amateurs, testified that he had heard that Reith, Alfano, Eddie Goldberg and others had been paid for their bouts.

Refused $50 Bid for Reith.

He also stated that Harry Cook, associated with James Solari in the management of the Business Men's Athletic Association, formerly a professional fight promotion organization, had offered $50 for the services of Reith if he won and $35 if he lost a special bout which the club was arranging.

Budde declared he had refused the offer because the sum was insufficient.

In the case of Ray Alfano, the champion was cleared of minor charges concerning his Little Rock match and his expense accounts. Verne Lacy himself brought out facts damaging to Alfano's case.

Lacy set a trap to catch Alfano by having a friend in Springfield, Ill., wire a $250 offer for the match. The reply telegram from Alfano's manager accepting conditionally was offered as evidence against Alfano.

Manager's Statement.

Manager L. F. Skye, who handles Alfano's "amateur" affairs, admitted the telegram but declared

Ray Casey Wins Hennessey Loses In British Event

American Tennis Stars Oppose Members of English Davis Cup Team.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EASTBOURNE, England, June 16.—Ray Casey of San Francisco sent the United States away to a flying start in the premiere of the three-day Anglo-American matches today by defeating F. P. Wheatley of Great Britain, in straight sets.

The scores were 6—0, 6—1, 6—3. The three-day series has been modeled along the lines of the annual Davis cup competition and England's Davis cup team, of which Wheatley is regarded as a star, was fully represented.

Great Britain evened the tally in the second match, however. J. Gilbert retrieved Wheatley's defeat by winning a torrid three-set match from John Hennessey of Indianapolis, 6—2, 6—3 and 7—5.

Hennessy seemed unable to get going at top speed until late in the final set, where he forced Gilbert into extra games before yielding the issue.

Umpire Owens Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—"Brick" Owens, American League umpire, is a hard luck arbiter. "Brick," who suffered a broken collar bone last season, and who received a few foul tips on the chin, went down in a heap yesterday when Spurgeon of the Indians crashed into him at the plate.

The umpire, who at first was believed to have suffered a fracture of the hip, was rushed to a hospital, where it was said he suffered only a torn muscle in the lower spinal region. His condition is not serious and he may be back on the field today.

Crisler to Be Coach.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 16.—The St. Paul Pioneer Press says it has received information from a dependable source that Frits Crisler, for several years chief assistant to Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago, will be the next football coach at the University of Minnesota.

LACY ASKS A. A. U. TO EXPEL CHAMPION ALFANO AND TWO CLUBS

ergeant Testifies He Was Forced to Pay Boxers To Appear at Barracks epresentatives of National Featherweight Title-Holder and of Jefferson Barracks and Bu siness Men's Athletic Association Admit They Violated Rules.

President Verne Lacy of the Western District of the Amateur thletic Union of America, today drafted a recommendation the National Registration Committee asking for the expulsion from organization of National Featherweight Champion Ray Alfano, the siness Men's Athletic Association and the Jefferson Barracks Ath- Association.

This action was taken following earing last night during which epresentatives of Alfano and the clubs admitted to officers of association that they had vio- ed the rules of the organization, lfano as to the acceptance of oney for boxing, the clubs as to ing cash prizes in connection ith amateur contests.

Direct testimony was obtained om Sergeant Edward F. Farrell, anager of the boxing shows at efferson Barracks, who handled arrangements for bringing tside boxers to Barracks exhibi- ns.

Farrell testified that he not only had been forced to pay oney to amateur boxers to ap- ar at Barracks shows, but al- that the Barracks boxers ere paid money by the Busi- ess Men's A. A. and other lubs to appear at their shows. He mentioned the names of ergeant Rothermel, Mike Clay- n and Tom Smith as three hat he knew had received oney.

Gus Budde, of the St. Louis owing Club, who helps Tommy ummell in the handling of ilis Reith and other amateurs, ntified that he had heard that ith, Alfano, Eddie Goldberg and hers had been paid for their ces.

Refused $50 Bid for Reith.

He also stated that Harry Cook, ociated with James Solari in e management of the Business n's Athletic Association, for- rly a professional fight promo- r organization, had offered $50 the services of Reith if he s and $35 if he lost a special ut which the club was ar- nging.

Budde declared he had refused e offer because the sum was in- fficient.

In the case of Ray Alfano, the ompion was cleared of minor arges concerning his Little Rock atch and his expense accounts, ne Lacy himself brought out ts damaging to Alfano's case.

Lacy set a trap to catch Alfano having a friend in Springfield, wire a $250 offer for the tch. The reply telegram from go's manager accepting condi- ally was offered as evidence ainst Alfano.

Manager's Statement.

Manager L. F. Skye, who han- Alfano's "amateur" affairs, ntified the telegram but declared that he had been preparing to let Alfano turn professional when- ever a sufficiently good offer devel- oped. Alfano was formerly profes- sionalized but had been reinstated by the local registration committee.

Other testimony backing up the charges against the clubs were made and after the hearing repre- sentatives of both clubs admitted the offenses imputed to them. James Solari, of the Business Men's A. A. explained by saying that he thought "the $10 or $15 cash prize was more useful to some of the boys, who looked as though they really needed the money."

Sergeant Farrell volunteered the statement that he intended to pro- mote purely professional shows for the Army boys at the Barracks.

Amateur Shows Expensive.

"I'm glad this amateur stuff is over," Farrell volunteered. "The fact is, amateur shows cost more than professional ones. In the amateur shows we not only have to pay cash to the fighters for themselves, but we have to give them cups and medals to pull the wool over the eyes of the A. A. U."

The hopes of the Business Men's Athletic Asociation will be cen- tered on a possible revival of the professional game in this city.

President Verne Lacy today de- clared that the setback would not abate the organization's activity in promoting amateur boxing and that as in the past sanctions would be issued to all clubs that were members in good standing of the Western District A. A. U.

Alfano Testifies He Sold Watch Won as Prize to Bob Probst

RAY ALFANO, national ama- teur boxing champion, testi- fied at a hearing of the Board of Governors of the Western District A. A. U., last night, that he had sold a watch, won as prize in an amateur boxing contest, to Robert Probst, chair- man of the Registration Com- mittee of the A. A. U.

Probst, questioned about it, admitted the purchase, but de- clared there was no engraving on the watch to indicate that it had been won as a prize in an amateur event.

Probst, as chairman of the Registration Committee, last week suspended Alfano on five charges.

WRAY'S NOTES

Strike Averted.

ANOTHER strike has been called off. Rather it was knocked off. Today the Jour- neymen Amateur-Boxers of St. Louis are reconciled to any old wages the promoters of amateur shows of the future may offer them.

Time was, only a few days ago, when some of our best simon pure boxers had reached a pri- vate agreement that no member of the journeymen amateurs would fight for a medal in a special bout unless it was gilded by not less than $125 in cash to the winner.

But the Board of Governors, of the A. A. U. last night re- moved from the amateur body the only known bankrolls in the amateur district. And so the Journeymen Amateurs are now ready to make a rock-bottom price agreement as to honorari- ums of the future.

Amateurs Must Live.

THE problem of "How to Live, Though an Amateur," has been tackled by many simon pures of the past. Judging by the number who have no visible means of support except indul- gent parents, yet who always show up where they are expected in illuminated rags and at least four-cylinder transportation, the solution of the problem is not difficult.

Somebody pays and pays well for amateur talent.

In the more refined spheres of amateur endeavor, the emolu- ments are highest and the con- doning influences more suave and persuasive. Concerning am- ateur incomes of between $5,000 and $10,000 we hear few com- plaints.

It's down there at the foot of the ladder, where the amateur compromises with his future for a $10 note, that the guilt stands out in all its heinous hideous- ness.

But they effectually eliminate the ten dollar culprits and let the 10,000 dollar lads get away with it.

Unto him that hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, it shall be taken away.

Bill Thomas in Hospital, May Lose Left Leg

Diseased Bone, Result of Football Injury, Lays Athlete Low.

Bill Thomas, former Central High backfield man, is in St. John's Hospital suffering from a diseased bone in his left leg. Thomas has been under treatment for several weeks, and it is possi- ble the leg may have to be ampu- tated, according to doctors at- tending him. He is doing as well as could be expected, it was stated today.

The infection is the result of an injury sustained in athletics of some sort, although it is not known exactly when the trouble began.

Thomas last year was a member of the St. Louis University fresh- man football squad and partici- pated in several contests without apparent injury. He was being re- lied on to star in the varsity back- field next season, but it is doubtful if he will ever be able to play again.

Thomas played halfback on the Central High eleven for several years and was a sensational ground gainer.

SAUNDERS IS MEDALIST IN MIDLAND TOURNEY, WITH SCORE OF 76

Lynn D. Saunders' duties as chairman of the Greens Commit- tee at Midland Valley have not in- terfered with his golf this year. He qualified in the championship class of the district tournament with 78 and has won medal honors in the club's annual handicap tourn- ament of the Midland Valley Coun- try Club, shooting the Midland course in 76.

Match play starts this week. Three-fourths of the regular han- dicap will be allowed and strokes will be taken as indicated on the score card. A round a week must be played in all classes.

MISS COLLETT TO PLAY IN FRENCH TOURNAMENT STARTING TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 16.—Miss Glenna Col- lett will carry the hopes of the United States in the French inter- national golf championship tourna- ment for women which begins at Labouli tomorrow. Thirty-two of the best women players of England and France, excepting Miss Joyce Wethered of England, the British open champion, are entered.

Miss Kathleen Fairbanks, daugh- ter of the United States Consul at Diephe, is the only other American who is to play. Cecil Leitch, Gladys Bastin, Molly Gourlay, Phyllis Lob- bett and Mrs. Gavin, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Colgrave and Mrs. Morris will play for England. The youthful Mlle. Simone Thiende La Chaume, Pauline Debellet, Mlle. Kuhlmann, and Marie Gouy Darcy are France's most promising entrants.

SOUTHERN GOLFERS START TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 16.— The largest field the annual tourna- ment of Southern Golf Association has ever known was spread over the Biltmore Forest Club course today as the qualifying round play began. The play today was to de- cide the 96 who are to take part in the battle for the title. Only 32, however, will be in the first di- vision and match play tomorrow will reduce the championship flight to 16. The finals will come Satur- day.

Asheville, host to the tournament, has furnished 30 of the 175 entered in the tournament, while Atlana follows with 25. Smaller contin- gents came from every section of the South.

Giant Rookie Spiked.

Gertrude Ederle Breaks Men's Record for 21-Mile Swim

Nineteen-Year-Od Girl Cuts 6 1-2 Minutes Off Mark for Course Between Battery and Sandy Hook in Prep- aration for Attempt to Swim English Channel.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 16. — Ger- trude Ederle, a 19-year-old girl, accomplished yesterday the double feat of swimming the 21 miles from the Battery to Sandy Hook and beating the men's record for this gruelling test. Her time of 7 hours 11 minutes and 30 seconds, lowers the course record set by the late George R. Meehan of Boston on July 20, 1914, by 6 minutes 30 sec- onds.

This triumph was Miss Ederle's final accomplishment before de- parting tomorrow for England, where she will attempt the Channel swim. On Sunday the girl swim- mer carried the colors of the Wo- men's Swimming Association to vic- tory when she broke the world's record for 150 yards free style, thus displaying the most amazing ver- satility.

The night still hung over the city when Miss Ederle set out on the big test at 4:42 a. m. It was pitch dark along the sea wall at the Battery and a dense fog made the black water look particularly uninviting.

Piloted From Rowboat.

She was piloted from a row boat by two friends who alternated at the oars.

Directing the oarsmen was the 50 foot motor boat Helys, with officials, friends, press representa- tives and guests aboard.

Miss Ederle had not been under way very long before it became apparent that those who had given the information concerning tidal conditions were badly in error. The current was supposed to be ebb- ing in favor of the swimmer, but Miss Ederle found herself bucking a strong tide.

Only her great speed enabled her to stem it and the first phase of the journey was arduous. It was 5:59 before she drew clear of Gov- ernor's Island and out of Butter- milk Channel.

Changes Stroke Frequently.

The bitterly cold water and hard struggle began to tell on her. She felt chilled and stiff, and repeate1- ly she changed stroke to relieve her muscles.

But soon the sun arose, the tide changed favorably, and it was re- markable how quickly she recov- ered after that.

One hundred yards from the beach she actually sprinted and it was impressive to see her thrash up to within a few feet of land then run briskly on to shore.

After receiving congratulations Miss Ederle stretched out on the sand and asked to have her eyes bathed with fresh water. They were bloodshot from the salt water and painful. That was the one thing Miss Ederle complained of. At times she became so blind from the brine that she hardly could see the piloting rowboat.

BIG TEN GOLF TOURNEY WILL START JUNE 24

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The West- ern Conference championship golf tournament will be decided at the Sunset Ridge Country Club at Wi- netka, a suburb, June 24 to 27. Maj. John L. Griffith "Big Ten" com- missioner of athletics, said last night. The tournament would be ouen to both team and individual championship plays.

French Net Stars To Play English

Holland Meets India in Other European Zone Davis Cup Match.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, France, June 16.— France versus England and Indi versus Holland will be the program for the semifinal matches in the European Zone Davis Cup elimina- tion play. The matches will be played after the conclusion of the English champion tournament at Wimbledon, which begins June 22. France and England will probably play at East Bourne, England. The place for the India-Holland con- test has not been definitely chosen.

The final matches will be played at Deauville, France, late in July or early in August should France be one of the participants.

Tinkering at best will only stop this trouble temporarily!

. . . You can jiggle a faulty tank ball every which way. Fit it in position with your hand—or flush your closet tank ever so carefully—but sooner or later the old trouble will return. Just at a most annoying or embarrassing time, it will gurgle, swish, gr-r-r-r and gush. There is only one way—one "ball" that will stop that trouble permanently—

What you need is a Mushroom Parabal.

Here's a tank ball that cannot leak. Shaped like an inverted mushroom, it fits down deeply into the valve seat—and seals it at every point. Made of one piece of pure, live gum, it will not split, collapse or swell. Phone your Master Plumber to put in one for you today.

SALOON SCREEN LAW HELD TO BE INVALID

Circuit Judge Pearcy Grants Permanent Injunction Against Its Enforcement Here.

A decision holding that the State law which prohibits the use of screens or partitions in saloons is unconstitutional was handed down yesterday by Circuit Judge Pearcy. The law was enacted by the Legislature two years ago and was designed to prevent violation of the State dry law by soft-drink proprietors. It never has been enforced in St. Louis, as the Police Department was prohibited from taking any steps under it by a temporary restraining order issued about the time the law went into effect. This injunction is now made permanent by Judge Pearcy.

More than 100 proprietors of soft-drink places were plaintiffs in the suit. The law provided that it shall be unlawful for any person conducting a saloon to erect any partition, screen, blind or anything else that will obstruct a view of the interior from the sidewalk or street. It was added that this was not to be construed to mean any department store, drug store, restaurant or any other place where a soft-drink stand is merely an adjunct to regular business.

Defects of Law Pointed Out.

The court points out that the section of the act relating to removal of screens is in violation of and repugnant to sections of the State constitution. The legal argument against the act was made by Earnest F. Oakley Jr., attorney for the petitioners. Oakley said today that the injunction so far only applies to enforcement of the law in this city, but if the Supreme Court should sustain the trial court's decision the law would be of no effect anywhere in the State. The case was tried last November and taken under advisement by Judge Pearcy, who at the time was presiding in one of the equity divisions of the Circuit Court. The opinion states:

"The court may not presume that because one is able to operate a department store that he will therefore not violate the laws against intoxicating liquors and at the same time indulge the same presumption as against those whose means are only sufficient to maintain a soft-drink stand. They must all stand equally before the law."

The decision further states that there are other reasons why the two sections of the act in controversy are discriminatory.

"Convicts Before Trial."

"The act, so to speak," declares the court, "convicts before trial and judgment and therefore does not afford one who conducts a soft drink stand due process of law. There is a vast difference between laws which undertake to abate a place as a nuisance after a certain number of convictions of the sale of intoxicating liquor and these sections which undertake to put persons conducting such business in the class of law violators and determining in advance that they are engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquor and therefore the partitions should be abated.

Judge Pearcy adds that sale of intoxicating liquor is unlawful whether by a soft-drink proprietor or drug store or any other kind of business while the sale of soft drinks is a lawful business. Therefore the latter business does not require a different legal classification than any other legitimate business, the court states.

The Police Department, through the City Counselor, contended the law constitutional and further that there was a misjoinder of the parties of the plaintiff. A motion for a new trial probably will be filed.

BITTEN BY RAT AT CLUBHOUSE

Man's Injury Pronounced Serious by Doctors.

Clarence Kennedy, 29 years old, of 1854 Cass avenue, a chauffeur, applied at city hospital last night for treatment for a rat bite on the right arm suffered Sunday night while he was asleep in a clubhouse on the Meramec River. He was awakened by the rat gnawing on his arm. He had treated the wound himself until yesterday evening, when the arm swelled and he sought antitoxin treatment at the hospital. The injury was pronounced serious by doctors.

'WOLF OF LA SALLE STREET' DISAPPEARS

He Left California Sanitarium With Daughter, Presumably for Short Walk.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—John W. Worthington, the "Wolf of La Salle street," was sought by Federal and county officials today, following his mysterious disappearance from Glendale Sanitarium, where he was supposed to be dying.

Sentenced in Illinois to serve three years in Federal prison on charges of using the mails to defraud, Worthington obtained permission of Federal authorities to come to California for his health. Recently he was charged here with grand larceny and was accused by Federal investigators of possession of bonds stolen in the downtown mail robbery in St. Louis in 1923, of which the Egan gang was convicted.

Worthington left the hospital accompanied by his daughter more than a week ago, it was said, and nothing has been heard from him since. At the time he disappeared he was presumed to be out for a short walk, it was stated. Officers searched for days through Los Angeles and vicinity but have been unable to find a trace of the former Chicago broker.

All of Worthington's belongings except one trunck disappeared with him, hospital authorities declared. They also recalled today that just before he was last seen, Worthington cashed a certified check for $1000.

Miss Alice Worthington, the broker's daughter, said to be a motion picture actress, gave a Hollywood address, but inquiry there failed to locate her.

Worthington was receiving the insulin treatment at the Glendale sanitarium and was desperately ill, physicians said. He had been in bed for weeks and only a short time ago became able to take short walks. Without hospital treatment, his condition would become critical, physicians said they believed.

Granted a stay in Chicago, Worthington came here for his health, which improved up to the time his wife became ill. When Mrs. Worthington, who had fought for her husband's freedom in a long court contest died, the Chicago broker became seriously ill and rapidly lost strength.

Granted a stay in Chicago, Worthington came here for his health, which improved up to the time his wife became ill. When Mrs. Worthington, who had fought for her husband's freedom in a long court contest died, the Chicago broker became seriously ill and rapidly lost strength.

While in the hospital charges that Worthington had been a silent partner in a brokerage house in Los Angeles known as Ballantine and Co. were made by the district attorney and a complaint charging Worthington and S. F. Ballantine, a former Texas promoter, with embezzlement and larceny was issued. More than $50,000 was reported to have been lost by investors in offerings of the brokerage house.

Several weeks ago federal officials connected Worthington with the St. Louis mail robbery and he was declared to have or to have had in his possession some of the stolen bonds.

Worthington, a former St. Louis grocer is under indictment in connection with the downtown mail-truck robbery by the Egan gang here in 1923. He is accused of having had possession of part of the $225,000 stolen securities.

Missing Four Days.

D. F. SELTZER, 25 years old, an attorney, has not been seen by his family since Friday. At 5:30 that afternoon he told a friend who met him on a street car at Maplewood that he was going to the river to swim.

Relatives said Seltzer frequently carried considerable sums of money. His offices are in the Merchants-Laclede building, and his home is at 1387 Montclair avenue, where his parents live.

U. S. RECEIVES $69,000,000 ON WAR DEBT OBLIGATIONS

Five Foreign Countries Make Remittances to Treasury, the Largest Being from Britain.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Approximately $69,000,000 was received by the Treasury yesterday from five foreign Governments account of their funded indebtedness to the United States.

The British payment, a semi-annual remittance of interest, amounted to $68,310,000. It was paid in 2¾ per cent treasury certificates, with a $75.94 payment in cash necessary to adjust the interest accrued.

The total payment from Finland, $133,650, was made in cash. Hungary funded half of its third semi-annual payment of interest, and paid the other half, $14,905.69, in cash. Lithuania also funded part of its first annual installment on principal and interest, and turned over to the Treasury $75,225 in cash, of which $45,225 was for interest and $30,000 for principal. This payment also was in cash.

The first payment on account of the Polish Government amounted to $500,000, but approximately $136,000 was turned over to the Treasury last January, and the remainder was remitted today in cash.

Markham Addresses Graduates.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Greatly increased investment will be required for the railroads, now celebrating their centennial, to meet the problems of transportation for future generations, Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central Railroad, declared today in the commencement address at the University of Chicago. The appearance of Markham, who began his railway career as a lowly worker for the Santa Fe Railway, was a departure from custom at the Chicago commencement. He spoke on "Transportation in Modern Life."

$5000 Accident Insurance Policy

Protection for Travelers and Pedestrians

For Only $1 Per Year

You DO NOT Have to Subscribe for Any Newspaper to Get This Policy

Heretofore, Travel Accident Insurance Policies, less liberal in terms, have been offered to readers of other St. Louis newspapers, but the policy holder had to subscribe for the newspaper offering the policy, and continue the subscription in order to keep the insurance in force.

This Post-Dispatch offer does not require that you subscribe for any newspaper, so the risk of losing your insurance following a stopped subscription is not present in this offer. Your dollar, accompanied by the application clipped from this advertisement, completes the transaction.

This Policy Is Not Sold by Solicitors

Mail or Bring This Application Today With $1.00 to the Post-Dispatch Insurance Bureau, St. Louis, Mo.

I certify that I am more than 10 years of age, and less than 70 years of age, that I am neither deaf nor blind and that I am not crippled to the extent that I cannot travel safely in public places, and I hereby apply for a $5000.00 Travel Accident Policy in the Federal Life Insurance Company, issued through The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

P.-D. READER.—Consult a coin dealer as to the value of the old coins.

A WIDOW—You might take the Midland Trail, No. 18, out of St. Louis to Denver, Colo.

JOE.—John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s home address is 4 West Fifty-fourth street, New York City, N. Y.

PERPLEXED.—You had better consult a reliable paper hanger as to proper treatment for the walls which have been oiled.

A. B.—We cannot undertake to prepare a budget upon which you should run your household. Prepare your own budget and stick to it very closely, then you will be able to live on your husband's salary.

TOURIST.—To reach Perryville, Mo., by automobile, drive out of St. Louis to East St. Louis; take route No. 3 through Columbia, Waterloo, Red Bud, Chester, Ill., to Clareyville, Mo., then to Perryville.

MRS. G. C. K.—The rat poison to which you refer is 100 parts of powdered white arsenic, 5 parts soot from the kitchen stove or furnace, 1 part oil of anise, sufficient lard and sufficient wheat flour. Make into 400 globules.

SHANNON.—Moses and Mohammed were entirely different men, Moses being the Jewish prophet who led the Jewish people out of Egypt and gave them the law on Sinai, his span of life antedating the oldest works of the Old Testament, putting many centuries between him and Mohammed, the founder of Islam, who lived A. D. 570 to 632. The story of Moses' discovery in a cradle on the Nile and of his adoption by Pharaoh's daughter, is told in the second chapter of Exodus. Moses died in Moab and his tomb is unknown. (Deut. 34, 6.) Mohammed was a native of Mekka, whence he fled to Medina in 622. He engaged in many wars, vigorously propagated his religion and compiled the Koran.

AN INTERESTED MOTHER.—The Y. M. C. A. has different classes in the boy department, arranged according to age. A boy must be 10 years of age in order to join the Y. M. C. A., and at this age he comes into the youngest class, at the rate of $3 per year, where he has a course in gymnasium and swimming once a week. Boys 12 and 13 years of age are put in the next class, and have swimming and gymnasium twice a week, the membership fee being $5 a year, and so on up according to ages, until the boy becomes 18, when he is automatically transferred to the men's department. Commencing June 15 the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool will be open to all members three times a week and there will be outdoor gymnasium work.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A SUBSCRIBER.—It is permissible to beat rugs and carpets in your own yard.

E. A. Y.—Report the facts to the police and ask them to put a stop to the annoyance caused by the noisy dogs.

DAILY READER. — Notify the wife that her husband is supporting the other woman, since he is contributing nothing to his wife's and children's support.

RONIA M.—The girl's marriage to the second man was illegal and bigamous, but she should have it annulled before she marries anyone else. She should consult a lawyer.

J. G.—There is no law against "packing" the street cars with people, or having them change from one car to another, although the sign designated a certain destination.

A. R.—The statement which you quote means that the receiver says you will receive between 20c and 30c on the dollar on the $159 which you paid. We suggest that you write to the Better Business Bureau, City Club Building, St. Louis, regarding this transaction.

E. V. D.—The legal title to the house passed to the children on the death of the husband and wife, leaving no will. However, the children should take out administration on the estates, in order to make their title clear of the claims of creditors. Consult a lawyer.

I THANK YOU.—It is safer to make a will than to depend on a joint bank account. The child cannot sue the parent or present a claim against his estate for nonsupport. If there was no divorce the husband would be entitled to a share of his wife's real estate notes, equal to a child's share. You could not purchase articles at the factory at a wholesale price unless the company is willing to sell to a stockholder at the wholesale price.

ANXIOUS. — The father will have to support the child until she is able to support herself. The first wife can garnish her divorced husband's wages to collect her alimony at any time. In Missouri the man cannot be sent to jail for failure to pay the alimony. Court costs in divorce cases are usually paid before the decree is granted, if there is no deposit to secure them. The man is not guilty of bigamy, as we understand the facts. The first wife can levy on his property and garnish his wages, to collect the alimony and court costs.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

READER—We do not think epsom salts in the bath water will reduce your weight.

FRANK.—If the condition occurs in a young, robust man it is normal.

AMONIA. — Peroxide applications will not remove superfluous hair nor will it injure or irritate the skin.

P. D. READER.—The intelligent thing for you to do is to have an examination of your heart and thus ascertain the true trouble.

NE'ER MISS READER—Reduction of regional fat is most difficult. Dependence should be placed upon reduction of the general body fat.

MARY A.—If your skin is oily the following is advised: One-half ounce each of sulphuris praecipitate and spiritus odorati, 4 ounces amyli muciliginis. Apply at night. The following morning wash off and powder with one part sulphur and 7 parts Fullers earth.

COTTON PRICES HIGHER ON NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 16.—Failure of the weather news to show rains in Texas and another private report indicating that the crop had gone slightly backward since the end of the last month, led to covering in the cotton market early today. The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 12 points, and active months soon showed net advances of 16 to 24 points October selling up to 23.34c, or 12 points above last Wednesday's low level.

A private report estimated the condition of the crop at 74.7, compared with an end May report of 77.1, the second private mid-month report to show deterioration from the end May figures. This, combined with the continuance of drouth complaints from Central Texas, led to apprehension of disappointing end-month crop-condition figures, but early buying was attributed chiefly to covering by shorts.

The early advance was checked by the realizing and offerings increased after the publication of the census report showing domestic mill consumption of 531,471 bales for May compared with 597,104 for April and 413,967 for the same month last year. After October had declined to 23.12c and July to 23.38c, the market steadied on renewed covering promoted by the high temperatures in the southwest. October rallied to 23.27c and the market was about 8 to 17 points higher at midday.

The early afternoon market was firmer on the detailed weather reports showing a lack of rain and high temperatures in Texas, private reports of deterioration in Central Texas because of the continued dry hot weather and announcement of large exports for the day. October advanced to 23.50c, with active months showing net gains of 26 to 40 points around 2 o'clock.

531,471 Bales of Cotton Consumed

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Cotton consumed during May totaled 531,471 bales of lint and 61,187 of linters compared with 597,104 of lint and 59,036 of linters consumed in April this year, and 413,967 of lint and 42,661 of linters in May last year, the Census Bureau today announced.

Bond Market Review

NEW YORK, June 16.—Current ease of money conditions remained undisturbed despite the heavy "tax day" turnover of funds and encouraged a renewal of constructive operations throughout the bond list in today's trading. Buying activities in the rail group correspond to operations in carrier stocks, with securities of the Western roads receiving most of the attention. Local traction issues spurted ahead on the belief that city transit affairs were shaping up more favorably and other public utility liens scored moderate improvement. Mexican obligations continued to display uneasiness over indications that interest payments on the external debt would not be resumed this year.

Railroad Loadings Set Record.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Railroad freight loadings during the week ended June 6 set a new record for the year, reports filed by the carriers today with the American Railway Association showing a total of 994,874 cars. This was not only a substantial increase over the preceding week, when loadings were reduced by the Decoration day holiday, but it also was 84,081 cars more than the total for the corresponding week last year. Compared with the same week in 1923, however, it was a decrease of 17,439 cars. All classes of freight shared in the total increase over the preceding week.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—In the following table will be found a list of sales, highest, lowest and closing prices of bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange today, sales on bonds being in $1000-share lots (000 omitted).

FURTHER DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICES

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 16.—Wheat closed 3c lower at about low point of day, after an irregular course. Corn also was down at finish.

In the local cash grain market, soft wheat was 2c to 11c lower on poor demand. Hard was scarce and steady. Corn was steady to 1c lower. Demand was good. Oats were ¼c to ⅝c higher. Demand was good.

Favorable weather from the spring wheat belt more than offset the effect of reports of poor threshing returns from Kansas.

After opening lower wheat sold both over and under previous close and then in early period was unchanged to fractionally off. Corn futures also were down early. September at one time being 1c off. Liverpool wheat closed 3¼d to 3⅝d lower.

July wheat opened at $1.50. September wheat, $1.50; December wheat, $1.51⅝. July corn, $1.08. September corn, $1.09 and December corn, 88¼c.

Comment on European and Canadian crop outlooks affected wheat while indications of more rain exerted influence on corn.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 642 cars of wheat, compared with 517 a week ago and 1275 last year. Minneapolis receiving 115 cars, Duluth 178 and Winnipeg 349.

Local wheat receipts, which were 48,100 bushels, compared with 96,200 a week ago and 63,700 last year, included 16 cars local and 21 through. Corn receipts, which were 71,400 bushels, compared with 95,200 a week ago and 68,600 last year, included 40 cars local and 11 through. Oats receipts, which were 44,000 bushels, compared with 92,000 a week ago and 88,000 last year, included 14 cars local and 8 through. Hay receipts were 10 cars local and 9 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were 887,000 bushels, compared with 738,000 a week ago and 520,000 last year. Corn receipts were 484,000 bushels, compared with 733,000 a week ago and 823,000 last year. Oats receipts were 569,000 bushels, compared with 696,000 a week ago and 767,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 439,000 bushels, compared with 979,000 a week ago and 520,000 last year. Corn shipments were 585,000 bushels, compared with 477,000 a week ago and 700,000 last year. Oats shipments were 368,000 bushels, compared with 370,000 a week ago and 647,000 last year.

Clearances were 352,000 bushels of wheat, 113,000 bushels of oats, 13,000 barrels of flour and 411,000 bushels of wheat and flour.

Winnipeg Wheat Breaks, Reacts.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 16.—Further sharp declines in July delivery featured early trading on the local wheat market today. An overnight loss of 5¼c to $1.60⅝ was registered on receipt of heavy selling orders. Some strength was shown after the break, however, and within an hour July had regained half the net loss. October held relatively firm.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Increased activity with an advance of 1-32 of a cent in prices featured the raw sugar market early today. Sales included 150,000 bags of Cuban and Porto Rican sugar for June shipment to a local refiner at 4.46c, duty paid. Raw sugar futures were higher on active covering and increased outside demand, promoted by the advance in the spot market. Prices at midday were 2 to 3 points net higher. No changes occurred in refined sugar prices, which were listed at 5.55c to 5.70c for fine granulated. A continued good withdrawal demand was reported.

Sugar futures closed easy. Approximate sales, 91,000 tons. July, 2.70c; September, 2.85c; December, 2.92c; January, 2.93c.

WHEAT MARKET IRREGULAR ON THE CHICAGO BOARD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The wheat market was stabilized today by shorts taking profit. The resultant buying was the only thing that stopped a further drop because of heavy liquidation that continued.

A break of 7⅜c to 8⅛c in the Buenos Aires market yesterday, followed by a half-cent decline at the opening here today, led to selling that sent early prices materially lower. Then came a quick rally when shorts bought in, order to take their profits. When this buying stopped another decline came.

Wheat had another sinking spell in the last hour as a result of further liquidation, especially through a leading holder. Closing prices were near the lowest of the day and showed losses of 3¼c to 3⅝c. Corn closed ⅛c to 1⅝c lower. Oats were 1c to 1½c lower. Lard closed 7½c to 12½c lower; ribs 10c to 15c lower; bellies unchanged to 10c higher. Cash sales were 35,000 bushel wheat, 358,000 corn, 250,000 oats, 30,000 rye. Vessel room was chartered for 150,000 bushel corn to Georgian Bay.

Many orders to sell indicated that long lines are fairly well worked out. The orders were mainly from those who bought on the break for a little profit. They believed that a reputed bull leader was unloading part of his holdings.

The break in Argentine showed that farmers there have stopped holding their crop for higher prices. Liverpool was steadier in tone, though 3¼ to 3⅝ pence lower. A private London cable said that Russia this year would have 75,000,000 bushels of wheat alone for export. A little of our durum wheat was taken for export and enlarged sales of domestic wheat are expected because of the price break. Crop news in Canada and the United States is favorable.

Corn trade was so light that it was difficult either to buy or to sell without materially influencing prices. Crop news was improved with further rains, but bulls found one prop in the Texas situation where drouth and hot winds are impairing the outlook. Cash corn basis was improved ¼c to ½c higher.

Oats were nervous at the start, but liquidation seemed to be over with rallies holding well. There was a fair amount of buying and an improved shipping demand.

Provisions started lower, but picked up on buying by Eastern interests.

MODERATE TO FAIR HOG RUN AND PRICES STEADY

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., June 16.—Receipts today, estimated: Cattle and calves, 6700; hogs, 16,000; sheep, 5500; horses and mules, 25.

HOGS—Hog receipts were moderate to fair at the local yards today; offerings estimated at 16,000 head. Quality was good, grading about like the average in this respect. Trading opened active, although later rounds saw offerings moving somewhat lower. Initial rounds found hogs changing hands at prices steady in most cases, some sales, however, showing a stronger trend. The top of $12.90 was paid for several loads today, with the bulk of early deals of all hogs averaging from 160 lbs. and over in a spread of $12.75 to $12.85 mainly. Local butchers and shippers furnished the main outlet early, with a few hogs to packers at $12.80. Pigs were in good demand at prices that were steady to 15c to 25c higher than Monday. The better weight kinds around 150 lbs. average sold at $12.50 to $12.65, with the offerings from 130 to 140 lbs. at $12.25 to $12.50. Lighter pigs and pee wees from 130 lbs. and down sold at $11.50 to $12.25 mostly, sales of plain kinds ranging downward, according to weight and quality. Packer sows were strong to 25c up, sales today at $11.50 largely, some rough kinds at lower figures. Stags quotable at $10 to $10.50 mostly.

RAILS AND UTILITIES TAKE LEAD

Ease in Money Continues Important Factor in Market — Italian Exchange Rate Declines, Featuring Market.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"There was a quiet recovery in the stock market today with most interest attached to trading in rail-road and public utilities shares. Call loans held steady at 3¾ per cent and the bond market in response to easy money developed greater activity. Traction issues were in good demand. Restoration of confidence was marked by gradual rallies in the bulk of the pivotal stocks and further advances in favorite speculative issues.

Money Rates Still Favorable.

"One of the reasons for the improvement in sentiment and the generally steadier tone in trading was the continued ease in money rates. In many parts of the district traders were frank to confess their surprise at the failure of conditions to force a rise in call loans to 4 per cent, this week. With the heaviest demand for funds apparently past for the time being operators were preparing today to extend their commitments. The volume of business was comparatively light, although there were signs of awakening interest in scattered parts of the list. Oils were irregular and not so much in favor as last week.

"Specialties were in better demand. Pierce Arrow and Moon motors rallied firmly while renewed buying appeared in the traction group. B. M. T. and I. R. T. were favored. International Paper, Sears Roebuck and Safety Razor ruled firm. Robert Reis & Co. forged ahead to a new high record for the year. U. S. Steel, Baldwin and American Can were fairly well supported.

Heavy Freight Loadings.

"Announcement of another new high record for the year in freight car loadings serve to turn the attention of speculators from the Mexican situation to domestic affairs. Preliminary earnings statements of several of the Northwestern carriers indicate that the figures for May should be exceptionally good. As a result the rails shares were more active than in several days, and buying of some of the stocks that were depressed a few months ago was impressive. Grangers were favored. Public utilities again were favored with increased activity. Electric Power certificates jumped into prominence with a spurt to a new high record above 37. Heavy trading took place at prices ranging from 37 to 37¼. Havana Electric moved steadily forward. Peoples Gas soared to a new top since before the war at above 122.

Lire at New Low for Year.

"Reasons for the recent $50,000,000 revolving credit established here for a consortium of Italian banks apparently have become known to speculators in Europe, for selling of lire showed a further increase in volume today with much of the pressure coming from Italy. The London market was unable to absorb the offerings and considerable selling came into the New York market. As a result rates for the lire fell to a new low level for the year. French and Belgian francs were also weak, but sterling ruled firm and the remainder of the European list was steady.

Wheat Continues Decline.

"Although selling pressure was successfully resisted for a time in the wheat pit today, offerings again increased towar dthe end of the session and July contracts broke below $1.50 a bushel for the first time in weeks. The net loss in July deliveries was more than 3 cents. Confidence was lacking in the corn market as well as prices drifted easily to lower levels with July contracts again below the $1.10 mark. The loss for the day was a cent a bushel. Cotton, on the other hand, was in good demand and prices moved steadily higher with the active contract months up from $1.50 to $2 a bale.

Clearings, Money, Silver

UTILITY SHARES PROMINENT ON NEW YORK CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—There was another heavy buying movement today in the public utility issues, carrying some of these issues up to new high records and making that group again take a permanent position on the curb market. Commonwealth Power advanced about 4 points, crossing 164, and there was heavy trading in National Power, which moved up close to its previous high record. Western Power, United Light and Power A and Southwestern Power were among other important features in the day's trading.

Fox Film Corporation 900,000 shares class A common stock without par value was admitted to trading, and sold on a large scale at prices ranging from 51 to 49½. Pathe A, in which there has been pressure for some days, had a further decline of about 3 points, selling at 66⅝. Victor Talking Machine, after selling at 73½, dropped to 70. There was heavy trading in Continental Baking B, which made a new high record. Lehigh Valley Coal was active and strong, advancing to above 44, and Lehigh Coal sales continued in demand. The trading in these two stocks was accompanied by reports that Lehigh Coal Co. would absorb Lehigh Coal Sales Co.

There were mixed movements in the petroleum issues, Humble Oil first moving up over a point and then losing this gain. Prairie Pipe Line moved in the same way, but Gulf Oil was in steady demand and advanced a point. American Maracaibo was the most active feature of the miscellaneous oil issues, large sales being made on an advance to above 10.

Financial, Trade And Industrial Briefs of Day

NEW YORK, June 16.

A deficit of $36,276 after taxes and charges is reported by the Rutland Railroad for the first quarter of 1925, in contrast to surplus of $99,044 in the corresponding period of 1924.

The Producers and Refiners Corporation reports net income of $1,197,322 for 1924, after depreciation and charges but before depletion, compared with $2,819,256 in 1923.

Strength of the preferred shares of the Great Northern Railway reflects its earning ability in the first four months of 1925, a better record than any of their carriers operating in the northwest and the largest net earnings for the period in eight years. Although gross decreased $98,189 to $28,398,829, the drop was smaller proportionately than that of other carriers. Reductions of $766,279 in operating costs aided in producing net operating income of $3,114,367, a gain of more than 10 per cent over the same period last year.

Sales of the Pan-American Petroleum Co. for the first quarter of 1925 exceeded $28,000,000, or about twice the amount for the corresponding period of 1924, Chairman Wickett told stockholders. Fixed assets increased $6,000,000 in the last year, of which $2,000,000 was spent for distributing facilities in the East and South. About $1,500,000 additional was spent this year. Daily production of crude oil in Mexico was about 130,000 barrels. Directors were re-elected, and the regular quarterly dividends were declared. E. G. McKeever was elected a director and vice president of the Mexican Petroleum Co.

GLOBE-TROTTER HELD HERE FOR DEPORTATION

Charles Girnus, Ship Cook, Who Deserted Job Has Travelled Extensively.

Charles Girnus, world-wanderer, is in jail here in default of $1000 bail pending deportation to British South Africa. He was arrested here June 18, nine months after he entered the country with no immigration papers. He had deserted in New York from a liner on which he was making his way as a cook.

Girnus speaks German, Lithuanian, Dutch, English, Spanish and Chinese. Most of it he has acquired by force of circumstance in his going to and fro and up and down the earth. In his 54 years he has been a planter in Africa and South America, a soldier in Germany, a member of the British police in South Africa, a military instructor to the Chinese army, a sailor on the high seas and a cook.

Fancy Turned Toward U. S.

"My first acquaintance with Americans came when I was an instructor in the Chinese army," he told a reporter yesterday at the jail. "When foreign warships came to port I had some part in entertaining the sailors, and I liked them. Many of my relatives had left our home in Germany, now a part of Lithuania, to come to America, and so my fancy had always turned toward this country.

"No matter. When I left home I went, not to the states, but to China, and later to South Africa, where I became a naturalized British subject. A year or so before the war I sold out and went to Northern Argentina.

"After the signing of the armistice I returned to Germany, working my way on a cattle ship. I wanted to return to South Africa, but I could not make it. That failing, I intended to go to Antwerp, but the ship took me to Hamburg.

Held Once for Observation.

"At Danzig, where I lived for a while, I turned over a tennis court to American officers, and in newspaper articles, advocated friendliness. For that I was arrested and held for mental observation until a political upheaval allowed me to regain my freedom.

"Nine months ago I took employment as a cook on a liner sailing from Hamburg to New York. It seemed that at last I would have a chance to see and understand this great country. But since I've been here I've had to work too hard to see or understand anything. And now I'm in jail, to go back to South Africa about July 1. No matter."

But he said it as though it did matter a great deal.

Weeks to Leave Hospital Soon.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, June 16.—Secretary of War Weeks, who has been at the Phillip House, Massachusetts General Hospital, since an operation for gall stones May 28, probably will leave the hospital Thursday or Friday. In a bulletin issued by his physician, it was said that "Secretary Weeks', convalescence is progressing favorably. He is up in a chair twice daily and walks about his room."

UNWRITTEN LAW FREES KANSAS CITY SLAYER

W. H. Arnold and Wife Whom He Found in Detective's Auto Embrace in Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—William H. Arnold was found not guilty of the murder of Lawrence I. Hatfield. The jury returned its verdict in Judge Johnson's court last night. Hatfield, a Pinkerton detective, was shot to death by Arnold on a road near Grandview, Mo., Nov. 30, 1924, when Arnold found Hatfield in a car with his wife, Mrs. Mildred Arnold. The jury deliberated 55 minutes.

Arnold jumped from his chair and started shaking hands with the jurors immediately after Judge Johnson had dismissed them. Mrs. Arnold left her chair, too, to shake hands with the jurors. In the midst of their congratulations Mrs. Arnold threw her arms around her husband and kissed him.

The verdict was a triumph for the "unwritten law." Although the jury had been instructed by Judge Johnson to disregard the evidence of that character, the testimony of Arnold and his wife of their broken home apparently had left its impression on the jury.

It was a jury of married men, most of them with children, some with daughters as old as the defendant. Arnold said he had planned to go to Dallas to live and said he would take his wife with him.

The charge of murder against Mrs. Arnold growing out of the Hatfield slaying will be dismissed, Prosecutor Hanna said.

Arnold, testifying in his own defense, said his wife had confessed to him the morning of the slaying that she had been intimate with Hatfield. Later in the day, Arnold testified, he saw his wife get into the car with Hatfield. He followed them, he said, and shot Hatfield, when the latter drew a pistol as Arnold's car drew up beside that of the detective's. The State charged that Arnold conspired with his wife to lure Hatfield to his death. Mrs. Arnold testified that she was kissing Hatfield when her husband found them.

Seek to Abolish Governor-General.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, June 16.—Labor members in the House of Commons have started a movement to abolish the office of Governor-General of Canada in the interests of democracy and economy. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor party leader from the floor, last night denounced the proposed $500,000 appropriation for maintenance of the Governor-General's office as a waste of money. The chief justice of Canada, Woodsworth said, could discharge the duties of the Governor-General.

JUDGE ROSS DENIES HE OWES TENNESSEE BANK BANK $4750

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Tenn., June 16.—Judge J. W. Ross of the Federal District Court, in a letter addressed to T. I. Taylor, liquidating agent for the People's Savings Bank of Jackson, denies he is indebted to the bank in the sum of $4750—the amount of a check bearing his name and found among the papers of the bank, now in the hands of the State Banking Department.

The letter to Taylor is in reply to a demand made by Taylor for payment of the amount within a three-day period.

"At the time the check mentioned in your letter was given to the People's Savings Bank at Jackson, a note due one day after date was also given to said bank, which note was payable to the Exchange Bank and Trust Co. of Memphis," Judge Ros ssays, "and the check and note were given to the bank with the understanding and agreement that the check would not be used unless arrangements were made for its payment by the Exchange Bank and Trust Co."

Lightning Hits Skyscraper.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Lightning struck a glancing blow at the giant Equitable Building in the financial district, during the height of a severe electrical storm early today. Pieces of stone as large as baseballs were knocked from the coping.

YOU SERVE YOUR OWN BEST INTEREST BY GETTING CURED

Read the Following:—

Mr. Geo. W. Hamilton of Pattonville, Mo., 23 years ago came to me on Sept. 10, 1923. I cured him sound and well. He did not loose a day from his work as a die-setter while under treatment. On Dec. 8, 1923, Mr. Hamilton brought his wife to me, who had been afflicted 15 years. I treated and cured her sound and well, and today, nearly two years later, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton are numbered among my best friends, and they have sent many afflicted persons to me, who have been cured as they were cured.

I desire to impress upon the minds of those seeking a cure that the highest recommendations of any doctor's treatment is given when the head of the family is cured, and in turn brings his wife, sons and daughters to be cured. This happens very frequently among my patients. I desire to impress upon any person afflicted and needing treatment that they can well afford to give careful consideration to the recommendations of former patients.

I give a guarantee in every case I treat, and all I ask of the afflicted person is that they will continue the treatment as per understanding with them at the time I take their case.

TO LADIES—Ladies should bear in mind that I treat as many ladies as men, and have lady attendants always present.

No man is able to perform his daily requirements, whether be in the shop or office when he is suffering with rectal trouble. No woman can carry on the duties required of her, whether in the household, in office work, or society, who is afflicted with rectal trouble. Therefore, it is well worth the while of any person afflicted, to investigate me, my record, methods, etc., should come for consultation and examination, at which time I will tell you exactly how much my fee will be, and about how long it will take to effect a cure, which is always governed by the severity of the case.

I am publishing a letter written by Mr. Hamilton over his facsimile signature. You will observe that in all the letters I publish, they are published over the facsimile signature of the writer. Therefore, it would be utterly impossible for me to publish such letters without the free and willing consent of the writer.

DR. C. MATTHEW COE.

Pattonville, Mo., June 12, 1925.

Dr. Matthew Coe,
501 Pine Street,
St. Louis, Mo.
My Dear Dr. Coe:—
I came to you for the treatment of a bad case of Internal Piles of years standing. My cure was so satisfactory, and was such a relief, I urged my wife to take your wonderful treatment.

Mrs. Hamilton had been afflicted with Internal, Protruding Piles and Fissure for 15 years. She came to your office twice a week for a few weeks, and later once a week, and was soon entirely cured. She is free from pain and her general health is much better. She says, "It would take a whole newspaper to tell what she thinks of Dr. Coe and what he did for her."

I don't think anyone could be found who would be any kinder or more patient with his patients than you are. We are both very grateful to you, and would advise anyone afflicted with rectal trouble to go to you and be cured.

Sincerely,

Geo. W. Hamilton

CHAPTER IX.

AS they went northward through the sleeping Connaught towns, May gave way to June, the blue of the barley took a faint, a very faint gold as yet, that later would be white as a child's head. The [sc]ythes swished through the tall grass, and there came to the nostrils the scent of mown hay and wild bees' honey. The blue road re[el]ed and slid and twisted, and great purple mountain was followed by small black lake. Some days the sun would shine merrily as a piper plays, and on other days a great dignity would come on him, and he would shine steadily as a great ship moves, ripening the meadows of clover and the broad fields of barley. And on other days he would not be visible, and broad sheets of fine Irish rain, gentle and light as feathers, would sweep the hills while they rode on, Hilaria wrapped in the great blue Irish clo[a]k, her face peeping from its cowl like the face of a small dark child; the brown face of Raftery brooding like some brown streaming boulder that broods upon the mists and hills. And on other days great boisterous gusts of wind would be out screaming and roaring around the shoulders of the mountains and racing over the plains, tang of salt sea and heather on them; lurching, curving playful winds, that would make man and woman light-headed and reckless and gay. They skirted the shore of Lough Mask and in the distance saw Lough Conn.

But in every village they passed there was not the hearty welcome Raftery used to find. There was courtesy and hospitality, but the people were not as lighthearted as he remembered them to have been or as free with him. And everywhere, which he did not see, were harsh cold glances at Hilaria, and sometimes whispering against her. And there were men who had laughter in their faces, until they felt the cold gray eye of the Scottish gillie on them, and noticed him finger playfully the hilt of his knife. In front of these people Hilaria's head was proud and high, but when she was away from them, her white chin would fall, and a cloud would come in her eyes.

And she saw, which Raftery did not see, many a gentleman riding toward them, put his horse at a ditch when he noticed them coming. And once an Irish lady rode toward and past them, surrounded by armed clansmen, and gave them neither "God bless you!" nor "May your road be lucky!"

"Was she who passed," asked Raftery slowly, "a slender haughty woman, with black hair, and gray eyes?"

"She was not, please your Honor," lied the gillie, "but a fair-haired fat Englishwoman, with no manners at her, and ignorant in the face."

"It is strange," said Raftery. "I have known only one woman with the scent of apples from her, and that was Lady Barbara Butler, who was close to me, and I young."

They rode northward still, hearing in the village inns the news of the day, of how Lord Clare was dead in France, and of the opening of Parliament in Dublin, and everywhere talk of the money that was being made in the shares of the South Sea Company, and of how queer it was that the Welshman of Claregalway was taking no interest in the scheme, he that had the cunning of a ferret when it came to money. 'Twas a strange thing surely, "but maybe," it was suggested, "they wouldn't let him have a share in it at all, at all, the South Sea Company being merchants of high degree and he having a name dirtier than a tinker's."

But they ran into more pleasant things than histories of the corruption of Parliament, and of the exile of the Dillions, and of how money can be made. Coming into Greenan Neeya, the Sunny Place of the Red Deer, they heard a blind piper, with a bellows of chased silver and silver stops on his reed, playing a tune with a great lilt to it. He was sitting on a bench outside a small white-washed house, and the sun shone warmly on his pathetic face and empty eyes.

"What tune is that you have, man of the pipes?" Raftery called, "for 't is a new tune to me."

"'T is a tune of my own making, your Honor," the piper said, "founded on a country poem of the great Irish poet's, Patrick Raftery."

"'T is 'The Fair of Ballinderry,' so."

"'T is, your Honor."

"What is it?" asked Hilaria.

"It's only doggerel, Hilaria."

"'T is not doggerel at all, your Honor," objected the piper, "but a grand rural poem, with a fine picture and swing in it, and some most intricate rimes."

"May I hear it, piper?" Hilaria asked. "I should feel happy to hear that poem."

"God bless your ladyship's sweet voice," said the piper. "Indeed you shall hear the poem. 'T is how it goes this way:

'T is pretty to be in Ballinderry!
'T is pretty to be in Aghadee!
'T is pretty to be in Little Ram's Island,
Sitting under an ivy-tree!

"On the day of the fair in Ballinderry,
From every county the cadgers come.
The dealing men who are whisky merry;
The recruiting sergeant with his fife and drum.
Pigs are trotting in grunting battalions;
And small brown donkeys patiently browse,
Under the heels of beribboned stallions,
Dodging the horns of the Kerry cows.
'Take it or leave it,' the farmers are shouting,
'And five pounds more, or be damned to you!'
While in the boxers' tent the bruisers are clouting.

The country fighters black and blue.
A Gipsy woman is telling the fortune
Of some thick gaping servant-girl
Promising her without land or portion
A castle in England and a healthy earl.
A slut is crushing a man who repulsed her,
Impeaching himself and his pedigree;
And claiming in all fair-womaned Ulster,
None is her beating for gentility.
A cloud of sheep come to scatter the cattle,
And all is deavened by the drover's noise,
But the cheers and groans that mark the battle Between Clann O'Loughlin and the Regan boys.
Down by the pond the Belfast Dandy
Is 'telling the story' to some village youth,
And steering him off for a glass of brandy
To Molly Brannagan's drinking-booth.
And all the money of the plowman's pay-day
Is taken from him by the gaming coves,
With 'trick of the loop,' and 'find the lady,'
And voices gentle as a wooing dove's.
On the village green the couples are tilting,
Merrily tapping with toe and heel,
Against each other to the bagpipe's lilting,
In 'The Walls of Limerick' and 'The Fou[r]-Hand Reel.'

"Ah, I wish I were in Ballinderry,
And I wish to God my poor eyes could see,
The blossoming boughs of Little Ram's Island,
And the hundred houses of Aghadee."

"My lady, that is the fair of Ballinderry, as a blind man would see it, the queer wee picture in his head, the shouts of the dealers, the lilting of the union pipes, the patter of dancing. And the four wee lines at the end of it, m'lady, that is the cry of the blind man. For the Raftery is blind, too, m'lady, since the smallpox spread black wings over Ireland and plucked out our eyes."

"You have never seen Raftery?"

"Sure, how could I, m'lady, and no eyes at me? But I can figure him in my mind, a powerful kindly man with an eagle's face."

"Blind man," said Hilaria softly, "this with me is the Raftery."

"Oh, my lady"—the piper's face quivered—"you wouldn't be mocking a poor blind man. . . . But I would know him if he would let me touch his hand."

Raftery slipped down from his saddle and put his arms around the old man's shoulder.

"Yes, it is I, brother."

"Asthore Na Erin," the piper wept, "Ireland's darling, sure I thought the day I met you my pipes would peal like an organ, but now they're like me, dark poet, ashamed and dumb. . . ."

It was at Boor Na Mocka, the Cadger's Road, that the little party were overtaken by the peddling man. He was a blackavised short greasy fellow riding on a mule, with a peddler's pack behind him, and in his eyes was a store of evil knowledge. He had a soft fawning smile, and wary eyes.

"It is Raftery, the great poet," he shouted. "May I die if it is not great Raftery!" And Raftery had to maneuver the white mare forward to avoid clasping hands.

"But it is a shame," he cried, "great Raftery with his hands bare as if he were a working man. Not a ring, not a diamond! Who would know you were a great poet? I have here in this pack a diamond ring—" Raftery waved him aside. But he would not be daunted.

"Great Raftery," he whispered hoarsely, "you have probably got a great deal of money on you, offerings and presents and fees. There is danger on the road; you may be murdered for them. Now, I have with me some stock of the great South Sea Company, which is better, may I die! than money, and safer, Raftery, to carry around, for thieves will not rob you of papers. They are easily traced; see, Raftery! And the shares will go up, Raftery, up to the sky."

"I have little money," Raftery answered wearily, "and little desire for riches. Packman, please leave me be."

They were passing, on the great lonely road, the wide pool known as Pollgon Thone, the Hole without a Bottom. A cold nor'west wind blew toward them on their left-hand side and rippled the dark waters, and the reeds quivered with the stark breeze.

"But something you will buy for the pretty lady, eh, great Raftery? A present for the pretty lady," he leered at Hilaria. "I know the ways of pretty ladies. They like presents, a ring for a slim finger or a bracelet for a soft arm, or a pair of gold spurs for delicate riding-boots."

"I want nothing," said Hilaria.

"I know you, pretty lady," said the peddler. "I have seen you in Dublin, at the theater in Fishamble Lane, pretty lady, and in St. Stephen's Green, when the gentlemen walk to take the air, each with his pretty lady on his arm—"

"Have you, indeed?" said Hilaria, carelessly, coldly.

"Merchant," said Raftery courteously, "we are but poor company on the road, madam and I. We are a silent pair, madam and I. So we will ride ahead, merchant, and good luck to you with your wares." And they rode on. The peddling man stood by the great pool, his face dark with anger.

"So that is the way!" he called after they had ridden a little distance. "A decent merchant is not good enough company for a penny poet. Anybody with a copper to spare can have your poems, cheap Raftery, and madam!" he laughed. "Madam she calls herself now. A great pair," he called out loudly after them. "A ha' penny Irish poet and the Welshman of Claregalway's whore—"

The wind whirled his words away, so that only the gillie, leading the packhorse after them, heard him. He slung the reins on the horse's back and returned with quick slouching steps. The packman watched the saffron tunic and kilt hustle toward him and became sick with fear.

"Hands off, yellow-belly," he screamed.

Quickly and painlessly his end came. The lad's right hand flashed upward toward the gullet with the broad knife, and there was a splash as he was whirled from the mule's back into the black bog water. . . . The mule fled down the road.

Raftery galloped up on the gray mare. "What is wrong, boy?" he asked. "A black wing touched my face."

"'Tis this poor peddling man," said the gillie, "fell from his mule, and there is neither sight nor sign of him in the bog water. They are treacherous things, the mules, please your Honor."

"Help me off with my clothes, boy," Raftery said. "I'll try for him."

"You will not, please your Honor, but myself am like a seal in the water, and I'll go. But there is little hope, please your Honor, for this is the Pollgon Thone."

He slipped out of kilt and tunic, and went into the water with the soft plunge of an otter. His white body disappeared in the black depths. He dived again and again.

"I can find neither bottom nor packman, please your Honor, and I feel the swish of great flippers near me, and I in the depths. But I'll try once more."

"Come out, lad," Raftery called after a little while. "You have done your duty."

"Indeed, sir," the boy answered grimly as he scrambled up on the grass, "if your Honor will allow me to praise myself, I have so."

How to Keep Your Skin Soft and White

By LUCREZIA BORI, The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

IN the season when most of us are out-of-doors more than usual, the proper beauty care of the skin becomes a matter of extra concern and effort.

Our skin is most likely to show the results of exposure, and those of us who treasure the smooth whiteness of our complexions hate to see it disappear beneath blemishes, even if we know they are only surface blemishes which will doubtless disappear next winter season.

Of course, prevention is one of the most excellent ways to keep our skin white and soft. If we take measures to weaken the effects of sun and wind and prevent our skins from showing the results of direct exposure to their rays, we will be just that much further along in our quest for beauty.

I advise that you give your face a light coating of cold cream or liquid lotion before you go out for anything so exposing as a dip in the ocean, a walk in the sun or a long motor ride. This first step should be followed by a light application of powder, for both these things serve to protect your face from the direct rays of the sun, and thus shield your delicate skin.

Almost any of the standardized liquid creams sold for hand and face lotions are good to use in this latter manner.

Now I am also going to give you a special treatment to whiten neck and arms which have come in too close contact with the elements. This is especially good for blondes who are subject to freckles and light coats of sunburn:

Before you go to bed at night, remove all dirt and dust from your face. You may do this by using cold cream or soap and water, whichever is your natural wont. Now you will need a bathing lotion, composed of Lemon juice, ¾ part,

Milk, ¼ part.

Apply this latter lotion to your face, allowing it to dry thoroughly. When it has dried, rub a little cold cream over your face and give it a few moments to be absorbed into your skin. Now remove the surplus cream.

Allow this much of the lotion to stay on your face over night, then remove it next morning by washing your face first with warm water and then with cold.

I advise you to repeat this treatment every night for a few weeks, and if you keep it up faithfully, you should see your skin become whiter and softer.

The skin, like the hair, possesses the happy faculty of responding quickly to treatment, and when you do lavish a few minutes' care on it at night you find it most satisfactory to see your complexion responding to your care with renewed beauty.

NOTES ABOUT WOMEN

More than 13 per cent of California's woman population are widowed, being the highest percentage for any State in the Union.

Miss Olive W. Dennis, recently granted a degree in civil engineering, is the second of her sex to be thus honored.

PICKLED CHERRIES.

Select large, firm cherries. Either red or black cherries may be used. Wash, dry and pack the cherries closely in jars, being careful not to crush the fruit. Make a syrup, using for each quart of fruit one cup white vinegar and two-thirds cup sugar, boiled together for five minutes. Pour the boiling syrup over fruit and seal the jars.

By Thornton W. Burgess

Peter Is Just as Wise as Before

Watch out for those with movements quick,
Lest they deceive you with a trick.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Chipmunk ran along on top of the old stone wall

OF course you have guessed that the five family cares of Mrs. Chipmunk were five babies. Peter Rabbit never had seen a baby Chipmunk. For that matter, very few people have. Peter had seen half-grown children of Striped Chipmunk, for then they were big enough to come out and follow their mother about. But the babies he never had seen, so when Mrs. Chipmunk invited him to follow her to see them he was delighted. You know just how curious Peter is. So he prepared to follow Mrs. Chipmunk.

Little Mrs. Chipmunk ran along on top of the old stone wall. Perhaps I should say she whisked along the top of the old stone wall. Peter hopped along just below, keeping his eyes on little Mrs. Chipmunk. Suddenly she disappeared. She had gone down between the stones in the old wall. Peter climbed up. He couldn't get very much more than his nose between those stones. You should have seen the disappointed look on his face. He hadn't a doubt that this was the entrance to the home of little Mrs. Chipmunk.

"Hurry up, Peter; hurry up. I can't wait for you all day," cried a sharp voice. There on top of a big stone further along the old stone wall sat Mrs. Chipmunk.

"Excuse me," cried Peter. "I took this for the entrance to your home, and I was wondering how I was going to get in." He jumped down and raced after Mrs. Chipmunk.

The way in which little Mrs. Chipmunk hopped in and out between the stones in that old wall was very perplexing. Could you have watched her you would have thought that she was playing a game of "Now you see me and now you don't." Peter began to suspect that. "Why don't you keep out in sight where a fellow can watch you?" he complained.

"Are you having trouble following me?" asked little Mrs. Chipmunk, her eyes twinkling. "I'm sorry. You shouldn't be so slow, Peter. Never mind; we are most there."

Once more she disappeared between the stones of the old wall. It was down in the corner nearest the Green Forest. Peter found that this time he could get in between the stones. In fact, he had hidden in there many times. It was a place quite familiar to him. "This is funny," thought Peter. "I've been here times without number and never have seen anything that looked like the entrance to anybody's home." He looked about carefully, but saw nothing that looked like the home of any one, nor did he see Mrs. Chipmunk. "Where are you?" cried Peter; "where are you, Mrs. Chipmunk?"

"Right on my doorstep waiting for you. Do hurry, Peter," replied the voice of little Mrs. Chipmunk. But for the life of him Peter couldn't tell where it came from.

"Which way, Mrs. Chipmunk? Which way?" called Peter.

"This way," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "This way. Hurry up, because I have got to see that those babies are all right."

Now this way didn't mean anything at all to Peter. You see, he was unable to tell from just which direction that voice came. It was very provoking. Peter began to be a little bit cross. "Why don't you show yourself where a fellow can see you?" he cried.

"Why don't you move quick enough to keep up?" retorted little Mrs. Chipmunk, and still Peter couldn't tell from just what direction that voice came. He knew that it was from somewhere under the stones of that stone wall. He popped his head out from between the stones for another look around. He was just in time to see the funny tail of Mrs. Chipmunk whisk out of sight farther along the old stone wall. Then Peter realized that little Mrs. Chipmunk was simply playing tricks on him. She could dodge in and out of such small places that it was perfectly useless for him to even think of trying to follow her, as he should have known in the first place.

CHERRY PUNCH.

Two cups water, 1¾ cups sugar, 4 cups cherry juice, ¼ cup lemon juice.

Boil the sugar and water together for five minutes. Cool and add the cherry juice, the lemon and a small piece of ice to cool the mixture. When ready to serve add a small spray of mint to each glass.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Before Vacationing.

Soon we will be on the wing, leaving town troubles for a while. But we must remember many details before closing the house. Pets and plants must be arranged for. Notices must be given milk, ice and paper men. Word must be sent to the telephone company for a temporary discontinuance of service. Leave the refrigerator doors open. Be certain that all lights are turned off. Be sure all windows and doors are locked and the shades pulled down. Look about the laundry and be certain no clothes have been left dampened down. These are just a few of the many "closing" details of the house, but they may serve as reminders.

Small Items.

Close the piano on damp days.

The tea ball is excellent to hold the spices during the canning season.

Tungsten lamps give twice as much light for the same power as carbon lamps.

Never put cucumbers in the refrigerator after they have been sliced. The odor will go through the entire ice chest.

SCHOOL—Next Year

By Emilie Hoffman

ARE you debating whether you should send your boy or girl to high school next fall? One mother who "has a fine opportunity" to place her son in business now asks "Would it pay to let this offer slip by and give him the high schol education?"

Another parent, whose circumstances are such that there is absolutely no prospect of her daughter being able to complete the course asks, "Would it pay to let her go just for a year or two?"

In both cases it most decidedly will "pay." The first mentioned mother need not worry. There are ample opportunities for work, but it is efficiency that counts in any position. Every year of high school training means greater efficiency in the service of the young man or woman and this means a better salary. This result increases proportionately with each year of high school study.

That a high school education really pays in dollars and cents is evidenced by investigations carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture, and various agricultural colleges to determine the advantage of high school training to farmers.

These investigations show that tenant farmers who have received a high school education have an average yearly income of over five hundred dollars more than those men who only graduated from the public school.

The report further states that a college education raises this average by $450. To be exact, the labor earnings of a college graduate farmer are $979 more a year than those of men who have acquired only a common school education.

These statistics, of course, apply to rural districts, but conditions are very similar in cities. Our business men lament the fact that they must contend with inefficient employees, due to lack of education, and they say they would willingly pay more for capable assistants who, by reason of their higher education, are to assume greater responsibilities.

So, by all means, give your children the best possible start in their life-work. Each additional year of school means an added asset to them. It may mean a sacrifice—this, however, is a considerable factor in the business of being a parent—but it is a worthwhile one and that is why so many parents allow their children to remain in school to the utmost limit. They realize they are thereby giving them the best equipment for success in life. A high school training most assuredly will pay.

The Appeal of a Slender Ankle~

THINK of a few of the women you know. How easy it is to remember which of them have the dainty feet and the beautiful ankles, and which of them have the thick and clumsy ankles that make you say to yourself "Oh, what a pity!"

The foot and ankle seem to have the power to glorify or mar the whole impression of the figure. And yet—because lovely ankle lines can disappear so very gradually, we hardly notice the little changes in them from month to month.

But still—there is a way to tell if slender ankle lines are leaving us. Little danger signals that let us know when something's wrong. A tired feeling in the feet—a heel worn down on the side—a little ache or pain from dancing or from walking in low shoes. These are the signs of a strain. And a slow strain like this is just as sure to swell your ankle by degrees as a sudden wrench will swell it all at once.

To save your foot and ankle from a gradual swelling and enlargement, tuck Trimfoot invisibly into your dainty shoe or slipper. Strain is instantly removed. Heels stand level, and don't wear down on the side. A graceful, erect posture is assumed. And dainty ankles hold their lovely slender lines, because the strain—the cause of swelling and enlargement—is removed.

IN AGAIN, OUT AGAIN.

COME all ye jolly gamboliers and listen to my tale,
It's all about a merchant who was carted off to jail;
Cut off from home and family he stayed behind the bars,
Held incommunicado for the selling of cigars.

The coppers all contended that he was a foxy guy,
And that in his cigar store there was more than met the eye;
And, while it was apparent he was busy as a bee,
They went to work and pinched him on a charge of vagrancy.

In time he was convicted in a well-known City Court
And fined five hundred dollars for conducting a resort;
But, after taking an appeal with all his might and main,
He walked into a higher court and walked right out again.

So he, like Mr. Finnegan, was in and out again.
And so ad infinitum something like an endless chain;
The cops kept on arresting though it really was no use
For when one Judge convicted him the other turned him loose.

THIS IS THE LIFE.

See where a bunch of .300 hitters in the Izaak Walton League under the guidance of that sturdy fisherman and Congressman, Harry
B. Hawes, set sail last Saturday for the upper reaches of the Mississippi for an inspection of the upper Mississippi River Wild Life Refuge.
A wild time will be had by all.

While the stock of bait holds out,
The fishing will be good, no doubt.

MEXICO STANDS ON AGRARIAN LAW, DECLARES CALLES

President Denies Policy Will Be Changed Because of Recent Statement of Kellogg.

AMERICAN ENVOY TO RETURN TO MEXICO

Kellogg's Statement Not Due to Delayed Settlement of Claims, but to Agrarian Forays.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—President Calles, in a statement, said that Mexico would not modify her agrarian policies. The statement was issued to deny reports that Mexico intended to change these policies because of the recent statement of Secretary of State Kellogg.

"Modification of our agrarian policy," said the statement issued last night, "would imply repudiation of principles heretofore stated, as well as treason to their supporters. The Government's agrarian policy is sanctioned by law, and, besides, it satisfies the people's aspirations."

Foreign Secretary Saenz denied reports from the United States that the declaration of Secretary of State Kellogg with regard to Mexico was due to a conflict to Mex-Saenz and James R. Sheffield, the United States Ambassador to Mexico.

Saenz asserted that relations between Sheffield and himself always had been cordial. This was shown, he added, by repeated invitations Sheffield had made for him to visit Washington.

Congratulating President Calles upon his forceful statement in reply to that issued by Kellogg, former President Obregon is quoted as saying:

"Behind Secretary Kellogg's declaration I have been unable to find a shadow of the American people, but another quite different."

By CHARLES MICHELSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Secretary of State Kellogg announced yesterday that Ambassador Sheffield would return to Mexico probably about the end of the current month. It can hardly be that soon as Sheffield is here for his health, which suggests a longer stay, but the Secretary's announcement of his early resumption of his duties indicates that the implied threat, in Kellogg's statement, of withdrawing support from the Calles administration is not to be carried out in the immediate future.

President Calles' reply, in which he practically said that he felt called on to "rectify Kellogg's statements in the interest of justice and truth" carried with it the implied accusation that the American Ambassador had misrepresented conditions in Mexico. This and the more direct arraignment of Sheffield, because of the statement that he had taken up the cause of foreigners, other than of his own countrymen, suggested that the Ambassador would no longer be a welcome representative.

The State Department neither will tell what its next step will be nor specify the incidents that gave rise to the Kellogg statement.

Kellogg's Course Questioned.

There is a disposition outside of executive circles to question the wisdom of Kellogg's course, and it has even been suggested that the treatment of the situation has made it serious whereas before it was only annoying.

The theory is that Ambassador Sheffield, being able to get no satisfaction to the hundreds of protests he had sent in because of recent depredations on American property, felt that he had to have some demonstration that his Government was behind him, and so the announcement through the newspapers was made.

The row was not over the delayed settlement of the American claims growing out of past revolutionary disturbances, as was implied in Calles' answer, but to the continuing forays by the agrarians, who are exploiting the prosperous farms and ranches.

These seizures are supposed to be compensated with bonds of the States that have authorized the Communistic land program, but the bonds have not even been printed, and Mexico's past record in settling claims or even paying interest on bonds does not make the indemnity promise very consoling.

It would appear that the sudden
